Christmas in the Forest

By MICHAEL GARDNER

FEARS THAT the massive Spanish Bay resort and condominium development will leave Pebble Beach residents and property owners without a guaranteed water supply and sewage capacity are groundless, says Stan Kawa, general manager of the Pebble Beach Community Services District.

Currently, sewage capacity and water supply in Pebble Beach are so limited that it would be impossible to service the Spanish Bay development and about 1,150 new lots of record that may be created as permitted by the Del Monte Forest Land Use Plan (LCP), Kawa admits.

But the Pebble Beach Community Services District is banking on development of its proposed $11 million wastewater reclamation project at Sawmill Gulch to provide enough capacity for all future development in Del Monte Forest, Kawa told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook Dec. 3.

The question of how the 270-room hotel, 80 condominiums and golf course at Spanish Bay will affect water supply and sewage capacity is expected to be addressed as part of the application for the resort now before the state Coastal Commission.

The Coastal Commission is to review the Spanish Bay application by the Pebble Beach Co. at 10 a.m. Dec. 12 in San Francisco.

However, it is unlikely the Coastal Commission will take a vote next Wednesday because the staff recommendation has not been prepared. Commissioners are expected to only hear public comments and then delay a vote until early 1985.

Pebble Beach currently contracts with the Carmel Sanitary District for disposal of up to 800,000 gallons of effluent per year.

However, Forest use has approached close to the 800,000 gallon limit. There currently is a moratorium on new sewage connections unless the new residence is on a lot of record that was created prior to June 1982. The moratorium expires in June 1985, Kawa said.

The reclamation project is proposed because there is not enough capacity through the Carmel Sanitary District to provide sewage disposal service to the existing lots of record, potential new lots of record, the new Poppy Hills golf course and Spanish Bay, Kawa said.

The Carmel district has applied to the state for an extra 600,000-gallon capacity, but that would provide only 200,000 gallons for Pebble Beach, Kawa said.

That extra 200,000 gallons would only provide capacity to guarantee service for existing

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. No teacher retribution

Dear Editor:

The teachers of Carmel River School are shocked and angered at some recent comments to the press by Carmel Unified School District board members Susan Bromfield and Pete Salmonsens, treasurer of Supporters of the Carmel Unified Schools, a support group of the board members being threatened with recall.

Mrs. Bromfield refers to a "fear" that "children's relationships with teachers may be damaged" if supporters of herself, Fenton and Yates made themselves known. Salmonsens states that "It's an honest fear that there will be some retribution."

However, these board members and their spokesman have failed to state that no incidents of this nature have occurred, that fear of such incidents is entirely unfounded and that parents have every reason to trust the experienced and dedicated professionals who teach in our schools.

It is ironic that in the same week in which the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education announced the goal of improving staff morale, these slanderous statements should appear in the Carmel Pine Cone.

We are educators. The word alone indicates a love and respect for children that surpasses all politics. We have been around a long time and suffered through many crises. Parents who know us know the absurdity of these statements. This is a year of minimal reinforcement for Carmel Unified School District's professional staff. Not only is the "money pot" empty but the "bank of good words" appears to have run dry as well.

COMSAT co-exists

Dear Editor:

Why has a company that has been providing satellite communications the last 16 years in relative harmony with local residents suddenly turned into the scourge of the community, a blight on the environment, and a threat to all mankind? The company has not changed, but exists as it always did. Only now it wants to do it a little better, a little longer.

Jamesburg Earth Station transmits and receives telephone calls and television throughout the Pacific. It is no more a threat to people or the environment than any local TV station or telephone center. It is a perfect example of a non-polluting high tech industry co-existing with, but not disturbing, its natural surroundings.

'Stepfordian' education

Dear Editor:

Gracious sake! These "Stepford Wives" and "Smooos" cloud local education. Capt. Fenton and Businessman Yates made Mister Rand walk the plank without the presence of Stepfordian Bromfield. Nor did it occur to Rand to tell the truth (which would have been human decency toward Ms. Condren) until his own male ego seemed threatened. Does Bromfield know she's been had? Does Condren, like Ferraro, regret having offered herself for public service?

Get rid of fence

Dear Editor:

Have you noticed how long that ugly wire fence has dominated Carmel Beach? It is really amazing that the Carmel Beach task force has done absolutely nothing to remove this blight on our beach. There is obviously something wrong with the bureaucrats in Carmel because they think that our feet destroyed Carmel Beach. They must have some psychological problem that compels them to project their anxieties on the defenseless public.

What power do we have in the face of the organized mob called the Carmel Beach task force backed by the Carmel City Council? The Carmel City Council has promised to remove that ugly fence in words, now let's see some actions. It would be a blessing if they just got rid of the morons who had that fence built in the first place.

Boutique to the world?

Dear Editor:

Carmel is 5,000 locals, 10,000 tourists and 15,000 dogs. It is 7,000 cars and 200 parking spaces.

Carmel is November sunshine and July fog. It is a Mercedes-Benz covered with pine needles. It is dogs and trees in the middle of the road. It is a lost Greyhound bus at Mountain View and Forest.

Carmel is the surf-pounded beach strewn with seaweed and alive with anchovies, pelicans, seals, sandpipers, gulls and surfers. It is the twisted cypresses along Scenic Avenue.

Carmel is computerized pines and casual but subtle landscaping. It is the confusion of the five corners at Junipero and Ocean avenues. It is the pitch blackness of walking home from the Sunset Center.

Carmel is the mission, still heavy with the spiritual presence of Junipero Serra. It is the Bach Festival and the great sand castle contest. It is English toffee at $12 a pound.

Carmel is the town council fighting the developers, struggling to be prosperous without killing the golden goose. It is discreet signs and the gentle discouragement of all that is vulgar.

As Chicago was hog-butcher to the world, Carmel is the ultimate boutique suburb for all of America. Everybody is in a movie. Everybody is beautiful. And everybody has a lot of money to spend on really lovely things.

Carmel is also the quiet men who repair the water lines and take the garbage on Monday mornings. It is the pretty women who go around chalking the wheels of long-parked cars. It is the policemen whose invisible presence makes you cautious about running stop signs.

Carmel is a work of art. It is the product of good taste and a sense of elegance. It is fragile and beautiful. It needs to be treasured and looked after.

Reasons to oppose

Dear Editor:

The following points were made in a letter sent to the Coastal Commission in Santa Cruz over my signature as president of the Carmel Area Coalition. The coalition is opposed to the entire concept of the Spanish Bay project because of:

- Inadequate understanding of mitigation measures for the impact of traffic on Pebble Beach property, Pacific Grove and Carmel.
- Lack of a comprehensive study of sewage and reclamation problems.
- Failure to request input from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, a mandatory requirement by state law.

- Actions of two "lame duck" supervisors to force approval of the project before they leave office, without sufficient public participation.

- Lack of understanding of what it takes to protect the environment, the forest, and the peninsula.

- Total omission of thought or care for low-income housing.

Struggle for power

Dear Editor:

I appreciate the excellent education provided by the majority of dedicated teachers in the Carmel Unified School District. This letter is not intended to undermine their position, but to express my opinion as a concerned parent.

A delicate balance of power exists between the voters, the school board, the superintendent, the administration, and the teachers in our educational system. There are now five CUSD trustees, two of whom are teachers: Doyle Clayton and Pat Condren. A successful recall of trustees Yates, Fenton and Bromfield, would give the teachers and their union a powerful majority vote in the event another teacher is elected.

Post cards are being sent out to many school districts, soliciting support from teachers by Imogene Speiser, president of the Association of Carmel Teachers, the local branch of the California Teachers Association Union. The cards are requesting fellow educators to support the recall of trustees Yates, Fenton and Bromfield who the recall committee alleges have violated the public trust. I would like to ask on what grounds can she say, "violated the public trust"? The petitions tables located at local stores are staffed primarily by teachers.

It appears the issue is who will control the Carmel School District: The California Teachers Association union or the publicly elected trustees?

It's 'urban acne'

Dear Editor:

Our peninsula's most beautiful assets are the ridge lines uncluttered with "urban acne" as Ansel Adams once said.

Well, say good-bye to the most prestigious ridge lines on the peninsula. Lobos Ridge, high above the Fish Ranch Property is the most prominent sight on the south side of the Monterey Peninsula. The ridge is pictured on almost every postcard of Carmel Bay.

Monterey County and the Coastal Commission have just given their approval to the destruction of this awesome sight. The two government agencies have granted a building permit for a 3,400 sq. ft. home site, including swimming pool and generator house on the ridge. Additionally, major subdivision permits are now pending before the Coastal Commission for further home development along the ridge.

"Urban acne" is breaking out on our most scenic and natural viewsheds. Unfortunately, land use policies for the high ridge line development do not prevent such misdirected development. In other areas of the county, local advisory committees review development and make recommendation to the planning commission. But this is not the case for the Lobos Ridge.

If this discrepancy in policy upsets you, please let your county planning commissioners and supervisors know that they are threatening the area's esthetic quality; which only elected representatives can control.

I cannot imagine Marin County allowing such development on Mt. Tamalpais, nor Contra Costa County on Mt. Diablo. Why then should this county create loopholes which allow such inexcusable actions?

Ms. Grace pulls woman from Carmel Beach kelp

A YOUNG woman, whose identity never was discovered, is alive today thanks to the quick thinking and bravery of Carmel resident Jean Grace.

And another Carmel resident only known to Ms. Grace as "George" aided the rescue just as Ms. Grace had almost-finished pulling the seaweed-entangled teenage girl from the Carmel Beach surf in the early morning of Sunday, Nov. 4.

"I left her sitting on the beach. She was going to go back to some friends, I guess. I really didn't think about it until later when I realized how close to the end she was," Ms. Grace told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook after the ordeal was over.

"It took me about 10 minutes to stop shaking. I was soaking wet. I went back home and changed clothes and took a nice long bicycle ride," said Ms. Grace, who is a member of the Carmel Beach Rehabilitation Task Force and a trustee of the Harrison Memorial Library board.

"I don't know her name. I never found out. I didn't ask her," Ms. Grace said.

The incident also provides a warning to beachgoers not to play in the surf when there are unusually large amounts of seaweed nearby. The plant is strong, wraps around legs and can pull an adult right out with the tide, Ms. Grace pointed out.

Ms. Grace on the weekdays takes a 15-minute walk along Scenic Road and then on the weekends strolls more leisurely along the sandy one-mile stretch of Carmel Beach.

Three twists of fate saved the girl. First, Nov. 4 was a weekend day; second, since it was a weekend Ms. Grace was on the beach; and third, Ms. Grace, like most beachgoers, likes to step on the round portions of seaweed and make the popping sound.

If Ms. Grace was not walking near the surf to pop the seaweed, she may not have heard the young girl's cries for help.

"I was walking along the beach stepping on the seaweed, you know, that makes the popping sound. Anyway, I heard this cry for help. I looked out on the horizon and didn't see anything," Ms. Grace explained.

But a second look revealed that a young girl was struggling to keep her head above water. "She was wearing a pink shirt. When I first saw her I didn't see any pink. That's how covered up she was," Ms. Grace said.

"One wave had pulled her back so I grabbed her hands. She couldn't move. She said 'don't let go of me or I'll drown.' I thought I wouldn't be able to pull her out. I realized how stupid it was not to call for help," Ms. Grace said.

"I screamed bloody murder for help. George came racing down and helped get her out. Without him I might not have been able to do it. I sure wish I knew who George is."

Library study suggested

A PLAN to develop an approximately $8,000 "function space analysis" is to be presented to the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees Dec. 10.

Trustees will meet at 4:30 p.m. at city hall. The session is earlier in the month than usual because of the holidays.

Library Director Margaret Pelikan will present the board with a proposal to hire consultant Ray Holt to prepare the study that is to be used as a foundation for planning a library expansion or annex.

The function space analysis is required as part of an application for federal funds to help pay for construction. The application deadline for those federal funds is March 1985.

Mrs. Pelikan told trustees Nov. 27 that some federal funding may be available to help offset the estimated $1.2 million cost of an expansion.

An environmental impact report is now being developed for a proposal to expand the library on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth avenues. That section of Lincoln Street would be closed.

"We need to develop a building program and function and space analysis in order to apply for federal funds, but it is even more essential for our own long-range planning," Mrs. Pelikan told trustees in a report.

"Over the past several years the library has investigated various expansion alternatives," she explained.

"It is not time or cost effective to develop a program for each alternative. We need a function and space analysis that can be applied to any expansion option — an analysis that the library's architect can use as a foundation when planning a library building."

In her report, Mrs. Pelikan also explained what a building program would encompass.

"A building program analyzes existing library services, collections, patrons and staff operations," Mrs. Pelikan wrote.

"Using this basic information, the program outlines current space requirements and discusses inter-relationships of departments within the library."

"The program then projects patron population, user needs, collection growth and space requirements into the future. When completed, this function and space analysis can be used as a basic planning document, a guide for future library expansion."

Mrs. Richter added that a consultant would have the time and expertise to prepare the building program.

"The library staff has limited time to devote to projects outside their daily job responsibilities and helping individual patrons. It would be difficult to release enough staff time to develop an analysis by March 1985," according to Mrs. Pelikan's memo.

'Right Stuff' sought by board

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE PROBLEMS that confront the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education are mirrored in the general qualifications trustees expect in a new superintendent.

Trustees are expected to continue public discussion on the costs, schedule and process for selecting a new superintendent when they meet at 7 p.m. Dec. 10 at Carmel River School, southeast corner of Monte Verde Street and 15th Avenue.

The school board at its Nov. 26 session gave its approval to wording in the recruitment brochure that lists the "general qualifications" a new Carmel superintendent needs.

Additional qualifications to be used to judge applicants who will be invited for interviews will be developed after the recruitment consultant has a chance to meet with staff, parents and the community in January.

Included in the recruitment brochure are several qualifications that directly relate to some of the admitted board-superintendent communication problems that eventually led to the Oct. 8 resignation of Supt. William Rand.

Trustees want a superintendent who demonstrates "the ability to work effectively with the board of education, respecting differences in role and function, and serving to facilitate harmony and trust among all members of the school community."

Rand admittedly had difficulty working with board President Robert Fenton. There also are allegations that Fenton and Yates forced Rand's resignation — a charge that prompted a recall campaign targeted at Fenton, Yates and Trustee Susan Bromfield.

Thus, the brochure wording "facilitate harmony and trust among all members of the school community" becomes an integral part of a new superintendent's duties.

Trustees also seek a candidate who has the "ability to assure that the board receives information, advice, recommendations and imaginative approaches that encourage analysis and development for policy making and problem solving."

Fenton, Yates and Mrs. Bromfield have expressed concern that under Rand's administration the board did not receive information either completely or quickly.

The three trustees also have made it a point to stress long-range planning, a concept they seem to feel was missing in previous years.

ELAINE BOYCE of School Services of California has been hired to help the Carmel Unified School District recruit a superintendent to replace Bill Rand, who resigned Oct. 8. The recruitment process and costs will be discussed further by the board of education when it meets Dec. 10. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Suspect

CARMEL POLICE have launched a search for a suspect in several residential burglaries in town. The above composite drawing was provided by police through descriptions from a victim. The victim arrived home to find the man in her yard. He "mumbled something about being a gardener and fled on foot," police said. The man left his loot behind. The attempted burglary fits a pattern that has developed in several local burglaries. The suspect(s) strikes unoccupied homes between 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Their primary targets have been cash, jewelry and audio and visual equipment. Police describe the suspect as an Oriental male, between 22 and 26 years old, 6 feet tall with medium build. He was last seen wearing a blue jacket, blue jeans and had a thin mustache. Anyone with information may contact Sgt. Pete Poitras at 624-6403. In an emergency, call 911.

THAT PHILOSOPHY is carried over into the recruitment brochure.

The ideal candidate shall possess "skill in long-range planning and the ability to administer a forward-looking fiscal program in order to effectively communicate district financial needs at both the state and local levels."

Past budget preparation also has been criticized by a majority of the board.

There even is a suggested qualification that directly warns the candidate that the district is in turmoil.

The new superintendent should have the "ability to face and work through conflict while retaining the confidence of those involved and to actively lead the schools and community in working together and in problem solving."

The "general qualifications" list also requires that the new superintendent possess:

- "Exemplary personal qualities essential to a highly visible leadership position: warmth, honesty, integrity and an appropriate sense of humor;

- "Ability to devise effective means of making the educational system responsive to current and future student needs and compatible with community expectations;

- "Ability to actively develop and maintain high standards of performance and to provide leadership in developing programs appropriate to the continued growth of a highly experienced and professional staff;

- "Ability to listen and be responsive to the concerns of staff, parents and community coupled with the strength to make difficult decisions and the courage to follow through with appropriate action;

- "Insightful and articulate in oral and written presentations."

A candidate also must have experience as a teacher and central office administrator.

The selection of a new superintendent is a difficult enough process, but there also have been some questions raised by the community about the procedures trustees plan to use to find candidates and the cost of a recruitment consultant.

Some of those concerns are expected to be addressed in a report that Interim Supt. Rich Hawkins will present to trustees Dec. 10.

Hawkins is expected to work with consultant Elaine Boyce of School Services of California on a financial limit to be placed on her expense account.

The contract with Ms. Boyce specifies a fee of up to about $9,000 plus expenses, which would include mileage from Sacramento,

County loses two rounds in Carmel land use

MONTEREY COUNTY has been dealt two legal setbacks in its protracted battles with the city of Carmel over land use.

One blow was delivered by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Maurice Jourdane, who ruled Nov. 27 that the board of supervisors erred when it rezoned the Mission Ranch Resort area to allow residential development.

If the county or Mission Ranch resort owners do not appeal the decision, supervisors will have to wait until the environmental impact report (EIR) is completed before they can grant permissive zoning for the area just outside the city limits, southwest of Carmel Mission.

Resort spokesman Doug Tuck told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook Nov. 29 that he will meet with attorneys this week to determine further legal action.

The Carmel City Council filed the lawsuit that successfully contended the county should not have rezoned the Mission Ranch Resort until after the EIR is certified.

The city is concerned about impact development will have on water supply, sewage capacity and traffic.

In addition, city-hired consultants claim that between 8.1 and 11.9 acres of the approximately 20-acre site should be designated "protected wetlands."

The county cleared the way for a density of up to 65 new residential units on the site with its rezoning that designated only 4.68 acres as protected wetlands.

On the heels of Jourdane's ruling came Superior Court Judge Richard Silver's Nov. 29 tounge-lashing of the county for its handling of the draft Carmel Valley Master Plan and the accompanying environmental impact report.

Silver is charged with determining whether the draft Carmel Valley Master Plan and EIR protect the environment enough to lift his 1980 moratorium on discretionary building permits in the Valley.

The city, which successfully sought the moratorium four years ago because the county did not prepare an EIR for the master plan, does not think the latest documents are sufficient.

Special city counsel Alexander Henson argued Nov. 29 that the county deleted many of the mitigation measures from the draft EIR after the document was circulated for public review.

And many of the remaining mitigation measures are not adequate to protect the environment from development, Henson told Silver.

IN RESPONSE to some of Henson's statements published prior to Nov. 29, supervisors adopted 39 new findings to support the master plan and its EIR.

Silver, who is not expected to make a final ruling until January, uplifted spirits for the MONTEREY COUNTY Superior Court Judge Maurice Jourdane has ruled the board of supervisors erred in its decision to rezone Mission Ranch Resort for residential units prior to certification of an environmental impact report. A key argument in the case was city with his verbal blasts at the county Nov. 29.

When told by Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos that the county had worked on the master plan for a year, Silver responded: "I haven't asked they do it quickly, only correctly and in accordance with the law."

Silver also scolded the county with this statement: "At times I think the county acts with such cavaliness that the law means nothing to them."

The judge also questioned why the county had not told the city that supervisors were to amend the master plan at their Nov. 27 meeting.

the issue of how much acreage should be set aside as protected wetlands. The county said 4.68 acres, while the city of Carmel argued for between 8.1 and 11.9 acres. Above is the resort property as it appeared after a 1983 storm. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Ramos argued that the required legal notices had been published. But Silver didn't accept the argument. "It dumbfounds me that you couldn't pick up the phone and at least give them notice that this hearing was going to take place," the judge said.

The day in court made Henson a little giddy about a city victory.

"We're clobbering them. Maybe they're going to learn," he said.

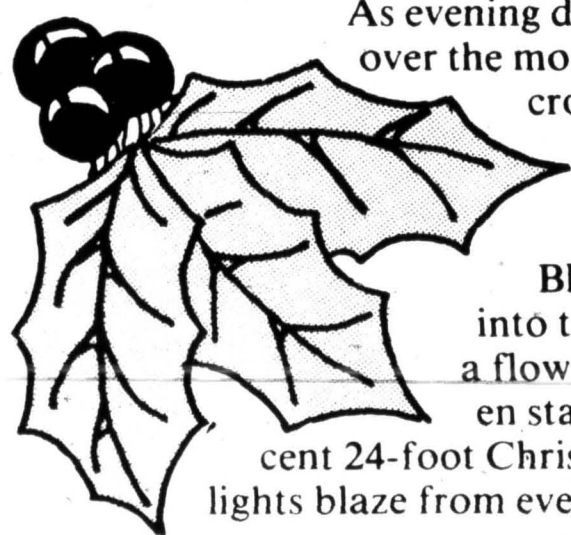

"It's always dangerous to anticipate a ruling from a judge," he said later. "But this case is so clear cut and the judge's comments make it certainly appear to me that he will send it back to them (the county)."

Weinachtsmarkt

very year on Dec. 6th, the beautiful gardens of The Barnyard are transformed into a European-style village fair, a 'Weinachtsmarkt', in celebration of the arrival of St. Nicholas. Shop owners spread their wares on tables in the poinsettia-filled Barnyard gardens, the aroma of holiday foods fills the air as children and adults search for that special Christmas gift, anticipating the appearance of ol' St. Nic.

As evening draws near and the cool dusk settles over the mouth of Carmel Valley, the gathered crowd listens anxiously for the sound of the bells on St. Nic's great white horse. Suddenly, appearing from the darkness and led by Black Peter, the looming figure rides into the center courtyard red-caped with a flowing white beard. He raises his golden staff, and as if by magic, the magnificent 24-foot Christmas tree explodes in color, festive lights blaze from every roof top as a choir joins in song.

Truly this is one of the most memorable Christmas celebrations anywhere and should not be missed by any one on the Monterey Peninsula. There is live music each weekend in December and the famous Barnyard gardens are decked in holiday finery.

The Barnyard is located at Highway One and Carmel Valley Road.

The authentic working windmill guides visitors to a variety of 55 fine shops and 11 quality restaurants.

lots of record and not for the other potential 1,150 new lots of record that may be created, he said.

IN PREVIOUS meetings the project has been the subject of protests by residents fearful of traffic and congestion they feel the resort will cause.

The Monterey County Planning Commission will review the wastewater reclamation plant application from the Pebble Beach Community Services District when it meets Dec. 12 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Meanwhile, the staff of the Regional Water Quality Control Board is expected to soon release a report on "preliminary conditions" for acceptance of the project, Kawa said.

If the conditions are met and no new problems arise, the application for the wastewater reclamation plant probably would be reviewed by the full state board in January or February, Kawa explained.

The wastewater treatment plan also would have to be approved by the Coastal Commission, he added.

The environmental impact report (EIR) for the reclamation project was certified by the PBCSD board of directors Nov. 19.

The reclamation plant is planned to coincide with development of Spanish Bay. The resort would be constructed on about 236 acres of an old mined-out sand plant near the Pacific Grove city limits, Kawa said.

The Pebble Beach Community Services District plans to start construction on the reclamation plant in June 1985, Kawa said.

A completion date of August 1986 is expected, "three to four months ahead of Spanish Bay... We can have it in line, in place and operating before Spanish Bay," Kawa said.

When completed, the plant will treat up to 600,000 gallons of sewage per year. No sewage will be discharged into Monterey Bay because the effluent is to be reclaimed to irrigate several Pebble Beach golf courses, he continued.

Kawa expects the plant will generate about 700 acre feet of water per year for the golf courses, which annually use about 975 ac. ft. (There are 325,851 gallons in an acre foot.)

The project includes a 60-million gallon reservoir so the treated effluent can be stored until the golf courses need the water. There are 1,900 acres of golf links in Pebble Beach, Kawa said.

The water savings will be passed on to Monterey County, which has a total allocation from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District of 6,501.1 ac. ft. The county used about 85 percent of its allocation in water year July 1 1983 to June 30, 1984, according to water district Manager Bruce Buel.

THE EXTRA water savings and sewage capacity will ensure that Spanish Bay and all future development in Pebble Beach will have those services available, Kawa pointed out.

And, current residents and owners of the 319 existing lots of record will not be charged a cent for the new plant. Forest residents now pay $90 per year for sewage service, he said.

A 2,200-acre assessment district has been formed for the Spanish Bay area and all subdivideable land that has not yet been developed as legal lots of record, he explained.

The Pebble Beach Co. because it owns Spanish Bay will pay between 25 and 40 percent of the cost of the wastewater reclamation plant.

The future lots of record would be billed $700 annually for the life of the bonds, which is expected to be between 25 and 30 years, Kawa said.

The Pebble Beach Community Services District has taken every precaution to ensure that existing lots of record — which are developed at the rate of 15 to 20 per year — do not face loss of capacity, Kawa said.

But Kawa is confident that all of the necessary state and county permits will be secured soon.

"We, as of now, have received no indication that it would be denied. Why would they approve Spanish Bay without the mechanism to service it?" Kawa questioned.

But if the reclamation project is denied, Pebble Beach Community Services District will have to scramble to find a way to provide sewage capacity for its 319 existing lots of record.

Some proposed alternative methods would be an extensive overhaul of the system to keep out excessive storm water runoff.

Another choice is to build a small "packaging plant" and ship out the effluent.

Currently, Pebble Beach has an unused capacity with the Carmel Sanitary District of 167,000 gallons, according to figures provided by Carmel General Manager Michael Zambory.

The Spanish Bay development is expected to use 77,000 gallons of that capacity, which would leave about 90,000 gallons left for future development and reserves.

But those figures are based on a dry year flow because of the lack of rain. In the wet year of 1982-83, the flow from Pebble Beach reached 751,000 gallons, or just 49,000 gallons short of its capacity, Zambory said.

Council resolute on specific plans

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A BATTERY of attorneys paraded before the Carmel City Council Tuesday night in a vain attempt to halt implementation of "specific plans."

But all arguments failed to sway the council, which firmly believes specific plans are the perfect tools to impose zoning policies on large vacant or under-developed lots.

The council unanimously adopted an ordinance to allow city preparation of specific plans.

Later the council approved hiring consultant John Gammon for $12,000 to begin work on specific plans. His first assignment is the R-4 (multiple-family residential zone) district.

A second and final reading of the ordinance is scheduled for January. The ordinance would go into effect in early February.

And in response to two of the most common questions, the council ruled that the ordinance is not a "moratorium" designed to halt applications for development on large parcels, nor is there any provision that will keep a developer from submitting his own specific plan.

These questions also were raised during the lengthy planning commission hearing on specific plans Nov. 28.

The attorneys represented several of the property owners who would be affected by the specific plan requirement, such as Tom Handley and Alan Williams, who are working on a deal at the lumberyard; and the heirs of the Gamble estate.

Although the attorneys were able to sway two planning commissioners to their side, the ordinance went handily on a 5-2 vote.

Voting in favor of a new law that would allow development of specific plans in Carmel were Chairwoman Sandy Swain, and Commissioners John Logan, Gene Cava, Fred McNulty and Gene Hammond. Commissioners Richard Barrett and Arthur Mertens dissented.

A specific plan is a mini-version of a general plan and governs uses and policies for designated sites. Some of the planning considerations to be included in a specific plan would be density, parking, drainage, height, bulk, water supply, sewage disposal and open space.

"The intent of a specific plan is to ensure that the general plan is implemented for designated areas within the city," Assistant Planning Director Diane White told commissioners.

"It allows the city to review these areas from a broad perspective rather than determining general plan conformity on a parcel-by-parcel basis," she said.

The city would hire a consultant to prepare specific plans for the designated areas. The developer then would reimburse the city for that cost, Mrs. White said.

Mrs. White, who prepared the proposed ordinance, believes the city definitely needs specific plans in three areas. However, the areas are not directly spelled out in the ordinance. The areas are:

- The multiple family zone (R-4), which mostly is between Sixth and Third avenues and Torres and Mission streets.

Mrs. White suggests that the specific plan for the R-4 zone be given top priority. She expects a consultant could complete the document within three months.

"Since the emphasis on the rezone changes last summer was on commercial uses, the R-4 area was not given a careful examination," Mrs. White said.

"Finally, in the joint study session with the city council in September, the council displayed dissatisfaction with the current residential densities permitted in the R-4 district.

CURRENTLY, the R-4 zone has a 33-unit per acre density with an additional 11-unit bonus to 44 units per acre if the developer provides low-cost housing.

- The Gamble property, a 56,000 sq. ft., potentially 14-lot site, is bordered by Santa Lucia and 13th avenues, and Lincoln and Dolores streets.

It was the unsuccessful council bid to buy the Gamble property that led the city to develop the specific plan concept.

The council fears that maximum development of 14 lots on the Gamble estate could create additional traffic, parking and density problems in the neighborhood.

"Given the investment required for purchase of the site, any potential buyer would most likely initiate development plans immediately for that property," Mrs. White told commissioners.

- A third specific plan should be developed for 14 lots on the west side of Junipero Avenue, just south of Seventh Avenue, she suggested.

The proposal for specific plans came under criticism from the attorneys in the audience and builder Alan Williams, who holds an option to buy the 56,000-sq. ft. lumber yard zoned R-4 on the east side of Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Third avenues.

The opponents focused on two major concerns: the so-called moratorium that would be in effect until specific plans are developed, plus the requirement that the city hire the consultant.

Opponents of the draft ordinance want to see the wording changed so that the developers could hire the consultant to prepare the specific plan.

"The city will get into the business of planning and designing these specific projects," said attorney Michael Cling, who represented the unidentified owners of the 14 lots on Junipero Avenue near Seventh Avenue.

"The property owner should do it and let the city look at it," he continued. "If they approve it, they approve it. If they don't, then it's back to the drawing board," Cling said.

A provision in the draft ordinance also was likened to a moratorium.

This provision states: "No building permit or design review for new construction, demolition permit, rezone, lot line adjustment, variance or subdivision shall be approved for any project within a designated specific plan area until the plan has been adopted."

Attorney Andrew Spears of Palo Alto questioned the need and legality of a moratorium.

SPEARS, who represents the Gamble estate property owners, said the city code requires an "immediate threat" to the health, wealth and safety of the public before a moratorium can be enacted.

"The property around it is already developed and why shouldn't the useable property be developed? Where is the immediate threat to the community by development of the Gamble property?" Spears asked.

Attorney Don Hubbard, representing Tom Handley, called the provision a "de facto moratorium. There's no question about it."

Hubbard said the city simply needs to look to the already-adopted general plan and zoning codes for the tools to control development.

"You have all the tools in place to do the job you're charged with," he said.

All of the speakers also said they do not believe the specific plans could be completed quickly.

"Specific plans don't get completed in three months. Some don't get completed in three years," Hubbard said.

But Mrs. White responded that the city will act quickly. "It's not going to be a long, dragged-out process," she said.

And some opponents argued that the specific plan concept simply is another name for spot zoning, which is illegal.

The majority of the commission sided with Mrs. White. They believe there is a threat to public health, safety and welfare if these projects are developed without tight city controls.

And they did not think the "moratorium" provision would hurt the developers, because the city plans to act quickly on the specific plans.

Both letters urge the board to extend the original Feb. 22 deadline for applications.

"We feel that by extending this date our chances of having a wider range of applicants from which to choose would be possible," the letter continued.

In response to these concerns, trustees extended the application deadline to March 15. Ms. Boyce explained that a later date in April would make it difficult for a new superintendent to start in June.

"We want to know the persons who will be involved and at what stages; is there a committee and, if so, who sits on the committee; and what is the anticipated community input.

"We also feel that the final interview process that has taken place in the past should be

"In light of the current problems in our district, we feel that community input is vital and we hereby request such at all stages of the search."

Those meetings are scheduled for mid-January.

Trustees have indicated that they agree with Ms. Boyce's proposal to have three outside professionals screen the mailed applications. The board would still review all applications and suggest others to be called for personal interviews.

A second, but much smaller community committee would interview selected candidates. The final interview and selection would still be the responsibility of the school board.

Another agenda item that may shed light on the political mood of the board is election of a new president and secretary.

Current President Robert Fenton is embroiled in the recall controversy, as is

dren have been at odds with the three-

- Discussion of the split reading programs at Tularcitos and River schools. Parents

The council Tuesday night unanimously voted to delay until January possible adoption of an ordinance to legalize the small housing units.

Despite the delay on the proposed second kitchen ordinance, it was mostly a night of action for the city council during a marathon four and one-half hour session. In

- Unanimously adopted an ordinance that will halt most new development in town until more water becomes available.

Councilman David Maradei was selected to be the spokesman to oppose the project before the Coastal

- Unanimously decided to spend $314,000 for two lots on the west side of Dolores Street between Fifth and Fourth avenues that will bring city ownership of land in that block to five properties.

The council hopes to work with the Monterey County Housing Authority and the Carmel Foundation for a joint senior citizen housing project for the site.

- Approved sending information to the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees on council objections to the proposed expansion of the library.

The council — although still committed to closing Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth avenues for the expansion site — has some doubts about the specifics included in a business survey being conducted as part of a draft environmental impact report (EIR).

- Adopted a resolution asking that the federal National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration reconsider its decision to drop Monterey Bay as a designated "National Marine Sanctuary."

The council fears that elimination of protection for Monterey has helped clear the way for a proposal from the cities of Monterey and Gilroy to dump wastewater in Monterey Bay.

Similar fears were expressed over a plan to drain into Monterey Bay the possibly toxic agricultural wastewater from the Kesterson Reservoir in the San Joaquin Valley.

- Adopted unanimously an ordinance that allows the city to enact "specific plans." (See related story, this issue.)

Although the evening was highlighted by lots of affirmative actions, the council still was not able to clear the second kitchen hurdle.

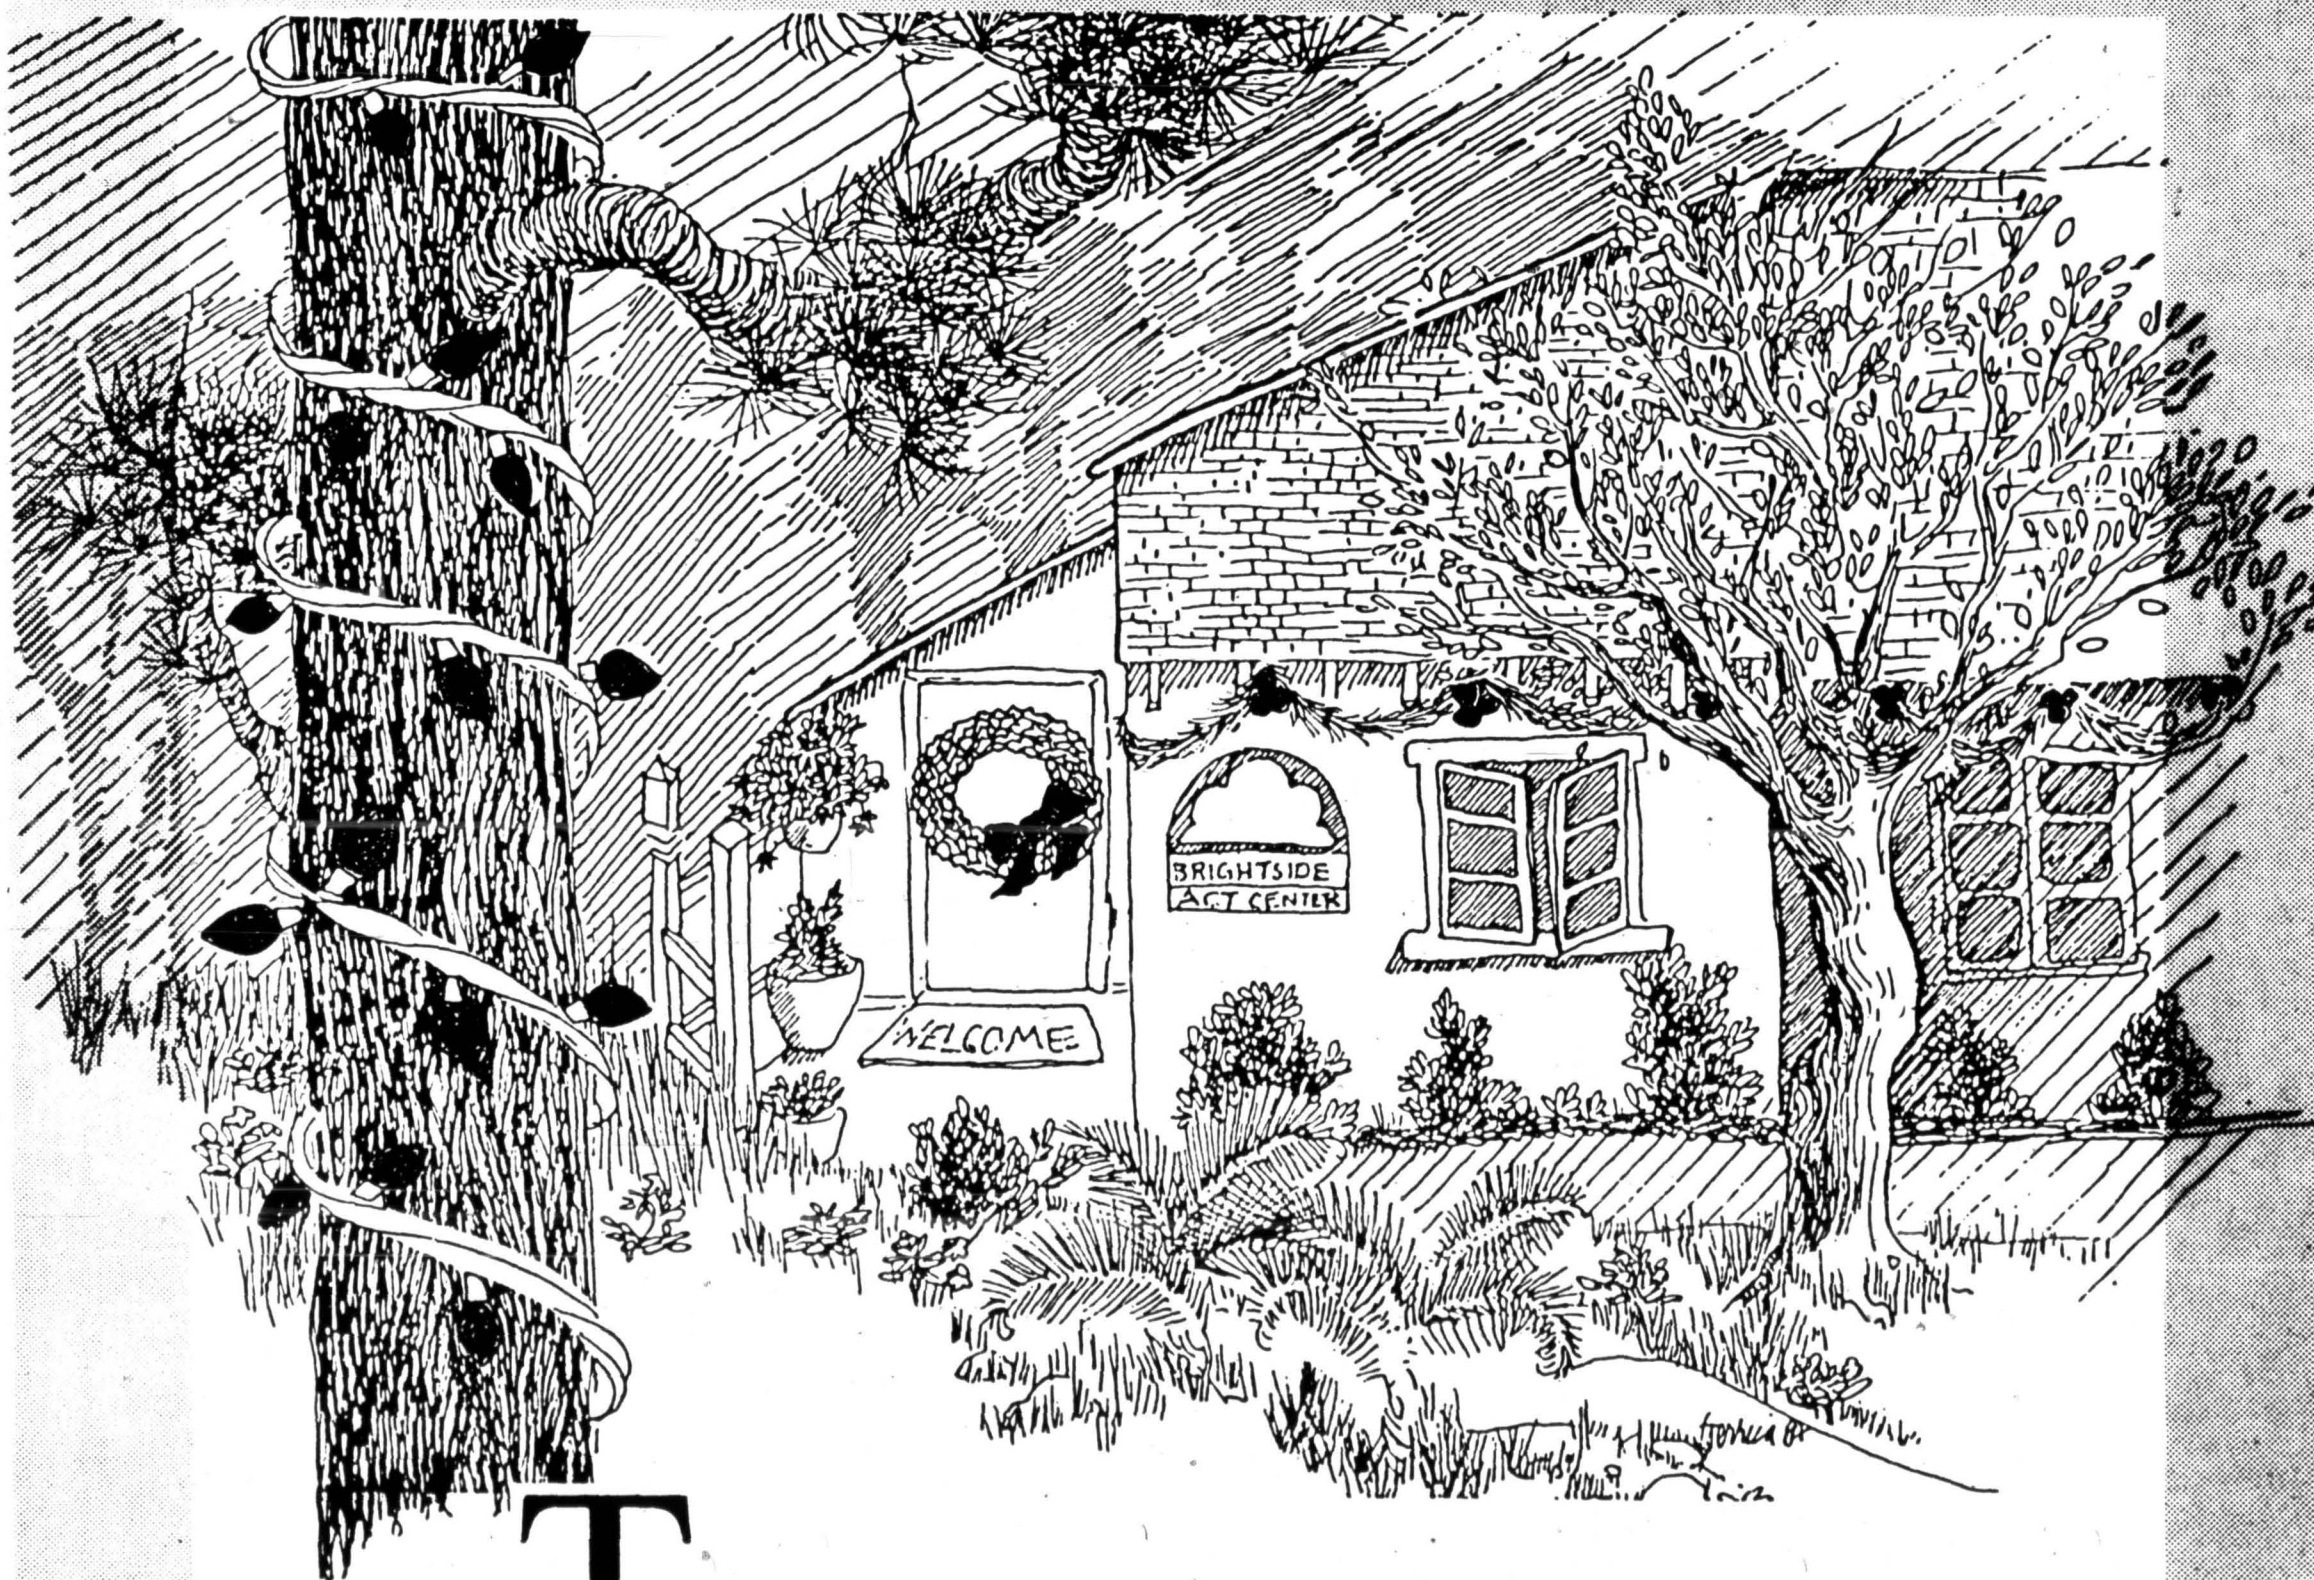

And it was evident from the outset that council members had no intention of finishing the 20-year-old business that night.

City Administrator Doug Schmitz, in his staff report, recommended that the council have the public hearing and then continue discussion until the January meeting.

Mayor Charlotte Townsend and Councilwoman Helen Arnold, who have rooming house permits, disqualified themselves from the discussion because of potential conflicts of interest. Restrictions on rooming house permits are incorporated in the new draft ordinance.

The proposal before the council, if eventually enacted, would legalize a still-undetermined number of second kitchens, which are

Carmel Woman's Club celebrates 59th year

MEMBERS of the Carmel Woman's Club met Friday, Nov. 16, to celebrate the 59th anniversary of the organization.

The occasion also was for remembrance of Sophie Bergdorff, a former member who left a welcome legacy to the club, and to honor Mr. and Mrs. Perry Moothart, whose efforts made the bequest possible.

For his assistance in legal matters and for his support, Perry Moothart was made an honorary life member of the Carmel Woman's Club.

Mrs. Frank Born, Mrs. Clayton Taggart, and Mrs. Talma Imlay recalled their acquaintance with Sophie Bergdorff, who died in 1981 in her 90s. A plaque is to be placed in the Fireside Room of the club to designate it as "the Sophie Bergdorff Room."

Entertainment for the celebration was provided by the Culver-Martin Duo from Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

Arrangements were by Michael Culver, who played vibraphone and who was assisted by cellist Carmen Martin.

Selections included baroque pieces by Handel and Bach, as well as contemporary music by Gershwin and Rodgers.

After the entertainment, tea was served by Mrs. Melanson and Mrs. Imlay.

PREVIEW PARTY AT MUSEUM

Paintings of Barclay Ferguson, inspired by games and tin toys, are featured among six diverse holiday season exhibits this month in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

The Ferguson paintings in the Frank Work Gallery, join a display of Christmas card art dating from the Victorian era, a Christmas Tree display featuring handcrafted Norman Rockwell subjects, old fashion doll houses and robot sculpture.

The Christmas Tree display was created by Mimi Weingarten, and scale models of Williamsburg houses were made by Mr. and Mrs. DuPre Sassard of Carmel Valley.

Robot sculptures in the Maureen Coburn Gallery are the work of Clayton Bailey. Upstairs in the Heller Gallery are works by developmentally, emotionally or physically disabled artists. The exhibit, "Art by Special People," was organized by Carolyn Berry Beaker through Handicapped Activities Unlimited in Pacific Grove.

The museum's holiday season preview party was sponsored by The Jesters, fund raising auxiliary for the museum.

CV CHAPEL GUILD CHRISTMAS TEA

The Carmel Valley Chapel Guild will give a Christmas tea at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 12, in the Fellowship Hall on Village Drive in Carmel Valley.

Organist Steven Tosh will perform his arrangements of traditional Christmas music. All Carmel Valley women are invited to join the program.

The Guild also will sponsor its annual bazaar from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, at the chapel. Luncheon will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

CIVIC CLUB STARTS ACTIVITY WEEK

Monterey Civic Club began its activity week with its annual Christmas luncheon at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4, in the Adobe Room at the Monterey clubhouse.

As they have since 1939, attending members brought a toy for a boy or girl and canned goods or staples for the needy. The Salvation Army will distribute the goods.

Board members and December "birthday girls" assisted tea and luncheon chairwoman Bernice Loop as hostesses.

A musical program featuring Quintessence, arranged by program chairwoman Evelyn Chinn, followed luncheon.

COHENS PARTICIPATE IN GYMNASTICS CAMP

Jeremy Cohen, 13, and Josh Cohen, 11, of Carmel Valley participated in the Junior Men's Gymnastics Camp Nov. 15-20 at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Boulder, Colo.

The Cohens are coached by Hiroshi Fujimoto at the Monterey Gymnastics Center and are the sons of Jerry and Madeleine Cohen of Carmel Valley.

Forty-two participants took part in the training session designed to teach national team testing skills that must be perfected by young athletes who hope to be chosen for the junior national team.

That team is to be selected Dec. 30 by the national coaching staff. Twenty-five gymnasts will be chosen from age 10 to 18.

Help end the uncertainty in the Carmel Schools

Excerpts from statement documenting grounds for recall of Mr. Fenton, Mr. Yates, and Mrs. Bromfield from The Governing Board of the Carmel Unified School District.

1. They have inappropriately assumed responsibilities of administration.

Management Team Report:

The report of the impartial ACSA/CSBA District Management Team on the current board observed "the board appears to have not given adequate attention to its role and function and to learning the many aspects of running a school district...It has not been elected to manage or operate the district; its role is to govern the district. The board hires a professional staff to manage and operate the district."

High School Renovation:

The Administration hired an architect to oversee the high school renovation. Design decisions were made in a timely manner by the administration and the professionals they hired. Board members inappropriately challenged chair color selection after the order had been placed; and outside of board meetings, unjustifiably accused the administration of failing to supervise the project.

Surplus Lands:

The administration hired a well known land use attorney. Following his advice a program for listing the surplus properties was undertaken. Apparently two board members disagreed with the speed with which the properties were listed, and impulsively stepped in and signed a contract during the one week vacation of the administrators negotiating the contract.

2. They have neglected their roles as edu- cational policymakers.

Management Team Report:

According to the impartial ACSA/CSBA Management Team report, members of this board appeared "uninformed" about significant district programs and procedures.

No Written Goals:

The board did not follow nor adjust the 1983-1984 goals set by the previous board. Thus, the superintendent was without guidance and necessarily operated under goals of the previous board.

3. They acted as individuals, not as part of a deliberative body.

Management Team Report:

"As a board member you have authority only at a board meeting... Individual board members cannot assume authority outside a board meeting. They cannot make commitments for the board." The report goes on to say "communications among all board members are not good" and "some members feel they have not received equal information."

Poor Personnel Procedures:

Individual board members influenced a highly esteemed superintendent to resign. It is not wrong for individual board members to have differing viewpoints. Nor is it wrong for board members to disagree with the superintendent. What is wrong is discussing those viewpoints and disagreements with the superintendent outside of executive sessions. If our board had implemented good personnel procedures, Mr. Rand would have been evaluated according to specific guidelines; Mrs. Condren and Mr. Clayton would not have been excluded from crucial meetings with Mr. Rand; and Mr. Clayton would not have said, as board minutes reflect, that he "feels he was shut out and that he cannot perform the duties that were entrusted to him if he...is not allowed an opportunity to give his input."

4. Consequences and risks to education:

The consequences of Mr. Fenton's, Mrs. Bromfield's and Mr. Yates' misconduct have been extremely destructive. Board meetings have become events of confrontation, rather than resolution.

Mr. Fenton, Mrs. Bromfield and Mr. Yates participated in meetings in which staff, parents and students have been insulted and demeaned. On some occasions participants have been acknowledged with sarcastic forms of address and with inappropriate jokes and comments. Some participants who have sought the attention and interest of the board have not been responded to at all.

This board's failure to resolve teacher negotiations has sapped morale. Published political advertising stating that "Carmel teachers are being offered a 3.27% increase, larger than the increase of the last two years" is misleading. Of that so called "increase," approximately two-thirds of it will pay for additional days that teachers are required to work. The remaining one-third will be divided between the cost of benefits and a less than .5% salary increase. It is insulting to teachers to propose it, and worse to mislead the public about it.

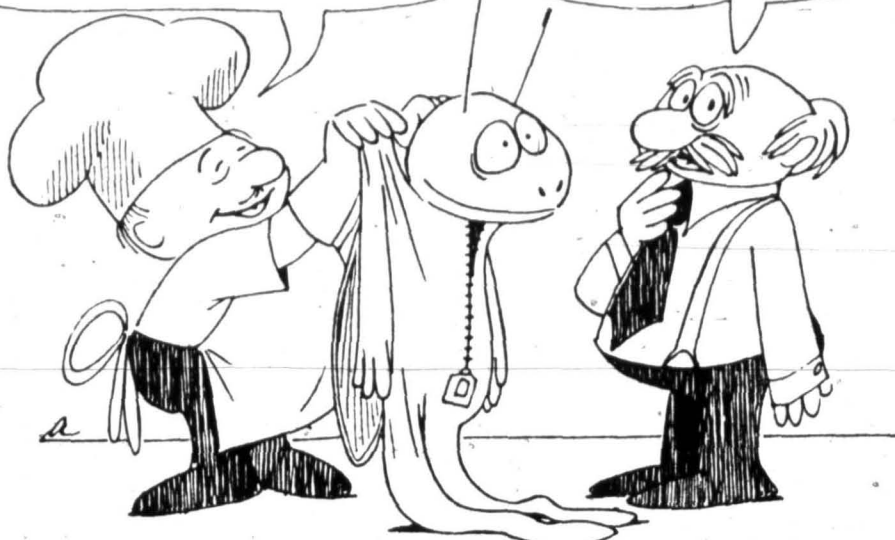

Your signature on a recall petition can place the record of Mr. Fenton, Mr. Yates, and Mrs. Bromfield before the electorate, so that the voters can restore stability to our school board.

CARMEL VALLEY PERSPECTIVE

No fault found in dam site check

THERE ARE no active earthquake fault lines in the immediate vicinity of the proposed new dam on the upper Carmel River.

That's the gist of a consultant's report to be delivered Monday, Dec. 10, to directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

The board of directors commissioned Rogers Johnson and Associates of Santa Cruz to investigate whether active fault lines lie in the area where the district hopes to construct a new dam with 18,000 ac. ft. of storage capacity.

In another matter, the board will conduct a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. in Monterey City Hall on passage of an urgency ordinance to impose an "augmentation fee" to help raise funds for the proposed $43 million dam before construction starts.

A finance advisory committee studied the issue and recommended the district impose a connection fee of 3 percent of construction value for new water hookups, which would generate $1.35 million per year for a "sinking fund," according to district manager Bruce Buel.

"With this ordinance, we'd raise $6 million by the time the dam is ready," Buel told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

Directors also are to conduct a public hearing on proposed permit conditions for annexation of the Carmel Valley Ranch lodge to the service area of California-American Water Co., as well as proposed annexation of 190 residential units at Carmel Valley Ranch to the Cal-Am service area.

In the first instance, Carmel Valley Ranch has never initiated a study of the so-called Tularcitos aquifer as an independent source of water — one of the permit conditions attached by the water board, Buel said.

Staff has recommended that directors give developers one year to complete the Tularcitos aquifer study and, if the work isn't completed, revoke the annexation permit.

Carmel River Watch prepares for rains

With the rainy season underway, Carmel River Watch wants to inform river residents about emergency procedures.

CREW members will meet at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 6 at the Baptist church, southeast corner of Schulte and Carmel Valley roads.

Discussion will center on how residents can protect their river banks in case of heavy storms, where to find sand bags and rip rap, and officials to contact in an emergency.

The public is invited to attend.

Valley celebrates trails

AS THE holiday season approaches (when does it actually start?), it is always nice to have a story about human generosity in action.

In this case, the generous ones are eight adjoining Carmel Valley families who have donated hiking and riding easements across their property to expand the available network of trails that reach toward Garland Park.

These gifts and their donors were given official recognition and thanks at an afternoon celebration Nov. 28 at the park headquarters in Garland Ranch Regional Park. About 50 trail enthusiasts, including newly-elected Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kaufman, gathered to celebrate the new acquisitions.

Regional park district chairman Zad Leavy commended the eight families for their generosity and cooperation in the long-planned effort to establish trails in the Valley. He noted that trails have been a part of every Monterey County master plan since 1946. However, few trails outside the actual parks have been available for public use.

Rod Mills, president of the Carmel Valley Trails Association, commented that "Carmel Valley is just too beautiful to let this opportunity go by."

The opportunity that spawned both the easement acquisition effort and the formation of the trails association presented itself last year when a group of dedicated lovers of the outdoors petitioned the county planning commission to relocate an existing trail out of the riverbed — where an engineer's survey representative had mistakenly positioned it in 1975 — onto dry land.

The trails group won its case on appeal to the board of supervisors last Dec. 20, but the effort did not stop there. The remarkable enthusiasm shown by the community to work continuously for additional trails fostered the creation of the Carmel Valley Trails Association the following spring.

People from all areas of the Valley joined the group, which now numbers around 75 members, and whose present objectives focus on enhancing the accessibility of Garland Park and Jacks Peak Park.

Several of those who gave access across their land are themselves ardent hikers and equestrians. However, three of the donors are neither: Adrienne Engle and Jack and Martha Thornton offered their easements simply for the benefit of others.

The additional contributors are Dale Vandervort, Virginia Bell, Bob and Linda Broyles, Judi Leavelle, Rod and Anne Mills, and Rick and Sandy Ellis.

The gifts add up to a stretch of property 3,300 feet in length by 15 feet wide — the usual width requested by the county for such easements. The park district will maintain the trails, fence them as necessary, and assume any liability.

Most of the properties on which the trails are located are not large by Valley standards but, rather, are lots of relatively small acreage where no obscure space was available to locate a trail in an out-of-the-way spot.

However, parks manager Gary Tate worked with the park's surveyors to ensure that the trails will be located in as unobtrusive a portion of the properties as possible, while still providing an easily accessible route.

PROJECTS of this nature have a special place in the hearts of those of us who have lived in areas where a hike used to be a cross-country affair available to all for the mere effort of moving one's feet. Now, most of those pastoral routes are victims of under-planning and over-development.

One of the saddest examples in my experience was the mass housing and commercial explosion along Colorado's Front Range. When I moved to Denver in 1965, one could ride from there to Colorado Springs, about 50 miles away. When I left in 1973, housing developments affixed to the booming high-tech industrial centers slithered out in the former open space between the two cities. Now, the two cities are virtually indistinguishable by open space, and the smog is considered the worst in the country.

To my knowledge, no land use policy such as that proposed in the Carmel Valley Master Plan ever existed in that area of Colorado. The lack of same allowed an irrevocable building disaster that decimated the once-loved plains wilderness trails.

Fortunately, our local county consciousness has been raised by such mindlessness elsewhere. In addition to the voluntary donation of hiking and riding easements so essential to maintaining a way of life many of us moved here to attain — or regain — the county planning department is doing its part to acquire trails along the Carmel River.

When applications to build within the 100-year floodplain or to repair riverbank erosion are granted by the county, they generally are approved with the specific proviso that the property owner grant a hiking and riding easement across his or her land.

That mandate is not universally popular, but I believe the benefits that accrue to such a plan far outweigh the irritation some people express at being told what to do.

If the spirit and foresight that motivated eight families to give a trail to the public extended through the thinking of the populace, governmental requirements would be unnecessary. Human nature being an ever-evolving affair, perhaps one day we shall all have that kind of awareness, but even my usual optimism can't stretch that far. Thus we form associations and elect government representatives to keep us mindful that the land we call our own carries with it an implied deed of trust for future generations to enjoy.

BACK TO the Valley trails...the county has appointed a Carmel Valley trails advisory committee to act as a liaison between county government and local trails interests. Members of that committee are Ray Berta, Stan McClellan, Craig Holmes, Anne Mills, David Morse, Joy Pritchard, and Victoria Andrews.

A recent riding accident in Garland Ranch Regional Park has caused a few of us who often ride alone to reconsider available safety measures. This one won't keep you on your horse, but it may alert others that you might need assistance.

You've seen the small brass identification plates that screw into the cantle of a saddle. Until recently, I had thought their sole purpose was to prevent confusion in tack ownership at, for instance, a horse show. But they're really more useful than that.

When a horse gallops into a neighborhood, eyes rolling and stirrups flying, and there's no rider racing along behind, it's a fairly sure bet that the human half of the team has come a'cropper. But who is it, and who is this horse that has now settled down enough to browse through the roses?

If a brass identification plate bearing the owner's name is on the saddle, the answer to the first question will be instantaneous. Then, the rest of the questions, such as when to begin a search-and-rescue mission through the 2,400-acre park, can be discussed.

If you do find an equine gardener in your neck of the woods, and you have identified the owner, the best bet is to corral the beast safely and then go to the owner's home to leave prominent signs as to the horse's whereabouts. Something like: "Your stupid animal is stepping all over the bonsais at 32 Ford Road, and I shall hold you responsible for fixing them for the next 11 years. Come and get him right away, before I shoot him," will most likely be viewed through tears of joy as the worried rider learns that beloved Brutus is safe — and well-fed.

Inter-city agency envisioned as growth-buster

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE CITIES on the Monterey Peninsula, Pebble Beach and Monterey County should form a "master planning committee" to work on solutions to the mutual problems of traffic, water, sewage and housing.

So said Carmel City Councilman David Maradei, who has renewed the often-discussed, but never acted upon idea of an area planning committee of representatives from Pacific Grove, Monterey, Seaside, Pebble Beach and the county.

Mayor Charlotte Townsend, who supports Maradei's proposal, plans to present the idea to local mayors at a Dec. 7 meeting.

"The problems that have affected Carmel are now problems that are being felt in every jurisdiction on the Monterey Peninsula," Maradei told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

Maradei subscribes to the philosophy of strength through numbers — where the cities could work together to fight over-development.

"Our strength together would be far greater than just having a city like Carmel to fight growth and development alone," Maradei explained. "We need the support of our sister cities on the peninsula."

"When we look at the long-range planning process, what I see is a need for all of us — the cities and the county — to define the problems and how we can mutually solve them."

Maradei believes traffic problems generated by the opening of the Monterey Bay Aquarium and numerous new hotels have awakened the cities of Monterey and Pacific Grove to what happens when growth is not properly planned.

"Monterey and Pacific Grove are now in a crisis planning process. They have to find solutions to a problem that already exists rather than doing valued planning," he said.

"Both Monterey and Pacific Grove are feeling the crunch of density and parking, and eventually Pebble Beach will begin to feel these pressures by the potential development of Spanish Bay," Maradei said.

Carmel cannot stand by and let those cities get out of the mess alone because aquarium traffic definitely will affect Carmel, he said.

Maradei believes nine out of every 10 visitors to the peninsula come to Ocean Avenue in downtown Carmel.

The traffic congestion problems at the mouth of Carmel Valley could have been reduced through cooperation between the county and city during the planning process, Maradei argues.

BUT poor planning has resulted in a traffic nightmare at the mouth of Carmel Valley, Maradei said.

And the problems will get worse if more under-planned development is allowed in the Valley and south of Rio Road, he added.

Although traffic is one of the most discussed issues right now, Maradei wants the proposed committee to explore solutions to some of the other problems common to the peninsula such as water supply, sewage disposal and housing.

"There is no low-cost housing to accommodate all of the people who are going to be working in these new developments (Spanish Bay, hotels on Cannery Row in Monterey, the Monterey Sheraton). We don't have the housing right now. That has to be considered," he said.

Because of the lack of affordable housing, singles and sometimes even families have doubled up to pay the rent.

"For me, the focus of all of these issues comes down to what the council has always said. What we are concerned about is the quality of life of the residents," he added.

Mayor Townsend supports the concept enough to present it to the ad hoc committee meeting of mayors Dec. 7.

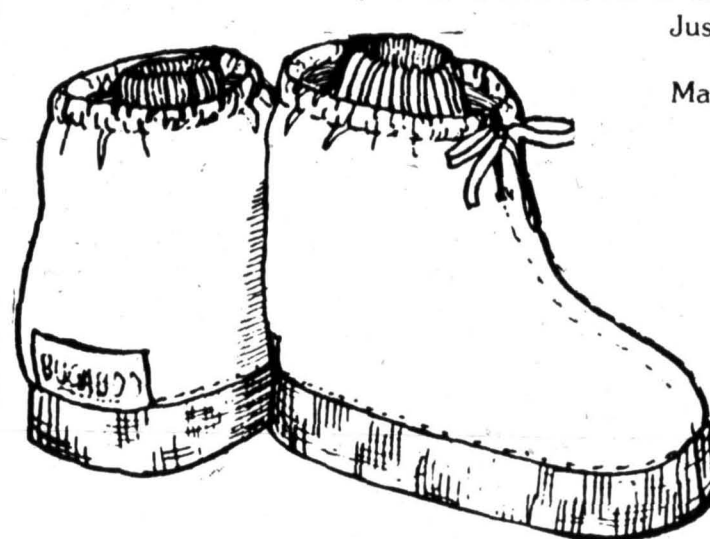

"David's idea of getting together on mutual concerns is very timely," she said. "It's past time we identify them and begin working closely with the other cities."

Dam finance compromise sought by water board

A COMPROMISE on how to finance the proposed $34 million Carmel River Dam may be hammered out by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District next week.

Directors are to discuss at least two financing schemes when they meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 10 in the Monterey City Council chambers.

The board is divided on the issue of just how much current users should have to pay for the new dam. A public vote on the dam is expected next year.

Directors in July approved an emergency ordinance to ban all new water connections until a financing plan could be developed.

The original proposal envisioned a ten-fold increase in new water connection fees to pay for the dam. That proposal was vehemently opposed by builders and others who said the fees would make it prohibitive to build moderate-cost housing.

Directors then appointed a committee to develop an alternative financing package for the dam.

The committee proposes that residential users pay 33 percent of the cost of the dam, commercial users 33.42 percent and new construction, 20.15 percent. Interest and other revenues would generate the balance of the money needed.

Under the committee's proposal, the average residential water bill would increase $52.96 per year. Commercial water bills would increase an average of $588.90 annually.

The average cost of new water connections, which is based on assessed valuation of the development, would increase 2.7 percent, under the new plan.

Water district Manager Bruce Buel told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that the budget committee, which met Dec. 4, is to present another financing proposal to the full board Dec. 10.

"I'm just going to present an ordinance with blanks and let them (directors) fill it in," Buel said in explaining his task.

The new fee structure is to be adopted as an emergency ordinance, which means the proposal has to win the support of five of the seven directors, Buel added.

City seeks controls on street news racks

CARMEL PLANNING Commissioner John Logan does not think city tax dollars should be spent to provide racks for newspaper sales.

Logan has asked his fellow commissioners to adopt a resolution to be forwarded to the city council that urges a law to require that newsracks be placed on private property.

There has been a recent uproar among city officials and several of the more outspoken community members, who see the newsracks as an eyesore.

As a compromise, the city has plans to provide newsracks in several locations and then ban new devices from the public right of way.

The newsracks would be grouped in one design in such locations as near Devendorf Park, the Post Office and Nielsen's Market.

City Atty. Don Freeman — concerned about numerous free press issues — has cautioned the council against a ban on newsracks until the city provides suitable alternatives.

Once the newsracks are installed the city could safely pass an ordinance to ban the devices from the public sidewalks, Freeman believes.

But Logan wants newspapers to be treated like any other business. His proposed resolution was discussed by the commission Wednesday night, after press deadline.

"We are grievously concerned about recent encroachments into those spaces (sidewalks) by out-of-town commercial enterprises — encroachments of a type that would normally be denied to residents of our village," Logan's draft resolution states.

"If a Carmel resident and taxpayer cannot operate a business on village property without the prior permission of the city council, why should outsiders have such privilege?"

Logan's proposed resolution suggests that "coin-operated machines for the sale of newspapers and similar commodities should be placed on private property as has been done in years past.

"No extra expense should be placed on this city's budget for providing special locations for the siting of such coin-operated vending machines.

"If those two suggestions cannot be implemented, then any resident and taxpayer in Carmel should be permitted to operate commercial enterprises in our sidewalk areas without permit from the city council and without the need for executing hold harmless agreements."

Two issues confront panel

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will face a lengthy but rather routine agenda when it meets at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 12, at city hall.

Two requests from the city of Carmel highlight the afternoon.

The city has applied for permission to build a glass enclosure behind the public works building, east side of Junipero Avenue between Fifth and Fourth avenues.

The enclosure will house a 1924 Luverne fire truck that has been restored by volunteers. The fire truck then would be available for public view.

In a separate matter, the issue of newspaper racks is expected to be discussed.

The commission will be asked to approve a plan to build a newsrack on the northeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Mission Street adjacent to Devendorf Park.

Assistant Planner Director Diane White explained that a parking space would be removed to make room for the newsrack.

However, since a nearby tree causes parking problems for people using that space there should not be any problem with the proposal. The tree would remain, she said.

The city has plans to install several newsracks throughout Carmel so the individual machines can be banished from the public right of way.

The council already has approved one newsrack for an alley on the east side of Dolores Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues near the post office.

In other action, the commission is to consider:

- An application from Katy Curry to install a chimney at her restaurant Katy's Place, on the east side of Mission Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

- A request from Ted Leidig to change the color of the awnings from green to white at The Court of the Fountains, west side of Mission Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues. Leidig had received permission for green awnings, but the supply company installed white awnings.

- An application from Hilda of Iceland to install an awning at the store, north side of Ocean Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores streets.

- A request from Al Fior for a directory sign at The Mall, east side of San Carlos Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

Proud Carmel High band to perform

THE BAND program at Carmel High School is growing, and local residents are invited to come in to hear it for themselves.

The pep band and wind ensemble will present a free community holiday program at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 20, in the high school cafeteria.

The pep band and wind ensemble plans to play at several home basketball games as members ready themselves for a performance tour this May in Southern California.

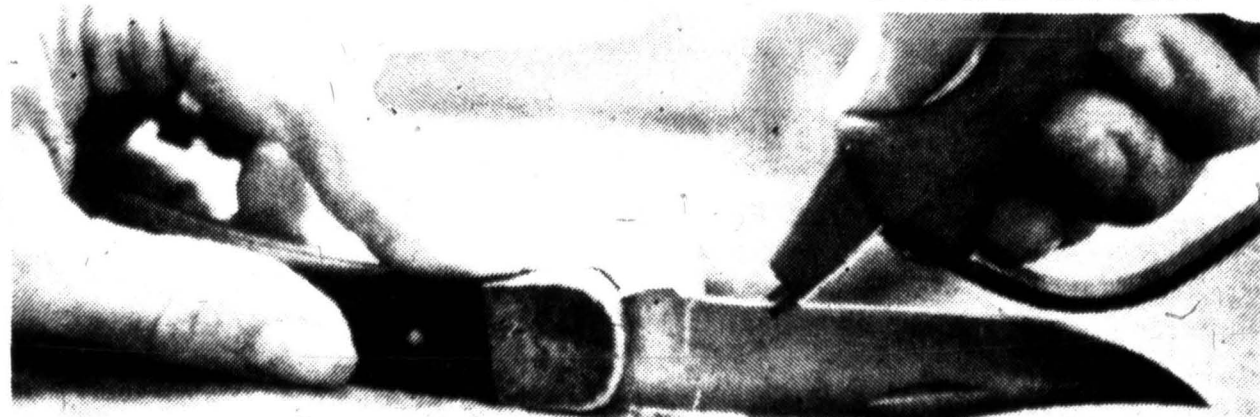

The group rehearses at 6 p.m. every Monday night in the high school band room. Adult musicians are invited to join the band.

The school also has a jazz combo and jazz ensemble group that plays noon-time concerts at lunch. In April these musicians will play in the Reno International Jazz Festival.

The band program at Carmel High School is under the direction of part-time teacher Dick Dorr, who joined the staff this fall.

For more information, call the high school at 624-1821.

marble, certificate for peace, "smelly stickers" and an Olympic pin.

Burial of the time capsule was the main activity when Briarcliff Academy celebrated completion of its new Arts and Computer Science building on the campus near Dolores Street and First Avenue.

The 3,300 sq. ft. building at the north end of campus, has space for a computer lab, art and dance studios and a seminar room.

"Peace" is the symbol most used by the students in their selections for the time capsule.

Kindergartners have placed a box of crayons and the word peace in the time capsule.

First graders included in the time capsule a class photograph and a picture of their computer.
They also included some nice "smelly stickers."

Second graders voted to include a marble because they earn marbles collected in a jar for good behavior and work. Once the jar is filled with marbles, the second graders get a treat like a popcorn party.

Second graders also included a soup label to "symbolize the food that the children would like all of the peoples of the world to have."

The third graders included a class picture, and a small model of their version of the first space school.

A rocket and certificate of peace from fourth graders were included in the time capsule.

Fifth graders have chosen photos of the class and cartoon cat "Garfield," and the word peace written between the flags of the United States and Soviet Union.

"Peace" symbol on stained glass.

A microchip to represent "present and future use of computers" was selected by the seventh graders.

Eighth graders chose an Olympic pin "to symbolize the brotherhood of all nations that students wish for in the future."

A graduation diploma also was included because the eighth graders are members of the first class to graduate from the three-year-old Briarcliff Academy.

The soccer team included its won-loss record in the time capsule.

All students signed their name and wrote something in Spanish on a scroll that was placed in the time capsule.

Holiday Hotline number set for drug, alcohol problems

A 24-HOUR "crisis hot line" will be offered by the Recovery Center of the Monterey Peninsula this holiday season, to provide free telephone counseling to those with drug or alcohol problems.

"Every year drugs and alcohol are consumed in excess during the holidays, and we don't expect this year to be any different," said Lloyd Parker, Recovery Center program director. "Our counselors will be ready with advice and direction for those who are addicted, or for the family members of those with chemical dependencies."

Consumption of drugs and alcohol increases during the holidays because of the amount of stress and intensity of emotions associated with the season, said Sandra Ivory, coordinator for the Recovery Center's Family Program.

"It's a time when you're supposed to have it all just perfect — the right family, the right tree, the stockings, the fireplace and just the right number of logs in the fireplace. If you don't feel like you're getting it right, you drink to relieve the guilt, the anxiety."

In addition, society gives permission for excessive drinking during the holidays, Parker said. "You get less control from family and friends, and you're actually encouraged to drink too much. You hear that people drink to relieve the 'holiday blues,' so you use that as an excuse to drink too much."

Parker said a wide range of alcohol and drug-related problems occur during the holidays. The most serious include suicide, traffic fatalities and accidental overdose. To avoid such fatal consequences, Parker said, it's necessary to pay attention to the warning signals.

Drinking or taking drugs in order to cope is considered a warning signal that alcohol or drugs could be or could become a serious personal problem. "Feelings are very intense during the holidays," Parker said. "Guilt, resentment, fear, financial insecurity, loneliness — they're all magnified this time of the year, and many people drink to cope with those feelings."

More dramatic warning signals include family violence, bizarre behavior, seclusion or isolation, and certain physical impairments.

The census for many drug and alcohol treatment centers goes up in January and February, according to Parker. Though most people wait until after the holidays to seek treatment for chemical dependency, Parker suggested that the best time to treat the problem is when the warning signals are evident, and they are likely to be most evident during the holidays.

Those who suspect they might have a problem with drugs or alcohol are advised to call the Recovery Center Crisis Hot Line at 373-0924. Family and friends concerned about the behavior of loved ones are also advised to call.

World tribunal to be simulated

With the help of resident justices, lawyers, professors and diplomats, a mock session of the International Court of Justice will take place Monday, Dec. 10. It will examine the legal force and effect of human rights in international law and relations.

In the moot court tradition, the Monterey Bay Chapter of the United Nations Association, in cooperation with faculty of the Monterey College of Law, the Monterey Institute of International Studies and the Naval Postgraduate School, will observe Human Rights Day, proclaimed by President Reagan on the 36th anniversary of the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, by dramatizing a session of the International Court of Justice (ICJ), 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Dec. 10 in the Seaside City Council Chambers, 440 Harcourt, Seaside. The public is invited.

The presiding judge in the ICJ Chamber of five judges will be Judge Harkjoon Paik (in real life sitting on the Monterey County Superior Court, but in this simulation coming from China). His associates will include Superior Court Judge John Anton (U.S.), Mrs. Melvin Belli (Bolivian in this case), and Jack Kakis (Lebanese). The fifth judge (representing Eastern Europe) is expected to be elected by the U.N. General Assembly and Security Council by the time the Chamber convenes.

Representing the plaintiffs is Michal Bernstein, professor at Monterey College of Law. (She represents Sweden here, while in real life she is a practicing attorney and rabbi.) Speaking for the Defense, or at least a more strict constructionist view of international law, is Professor Michael Van Walt of the Monterey Institute of International Studies, representing the Netherlands. Robert von Pagenhardt of the Naval Postgraduate School is delegated to represent the United Nations Secretary-General as a Friend of the Court. The registrar (or chief administrative officer) of the court is Professor William Weber (from MIIS and the Republic of Germany).

The Group of Fifteen, which includes states from every continent, request the ICJ to advise all members of the United Nations of this reprehensible situation and to recall their legal obligations to one another and the world community. Additionally, the ICJ is asked to convey its advisory opinion to the other principal organs of the United Nations.

More buses serve Rancho

Monterey-Salinas Transit has begun increased bus service to the Carmel Rancho area every 30 minutes from downtown Monterey and Carmel. The new increased service operates Monday through Saturday. On Sunday, service continues once an hour.

Service to Carmel Valley Village still runs hourly.

MST Planning and Marketing Officer Patrice M. Siefers said the change has been made in response to growth in commercial activity at the mouth of the Valley and requests from MST passengers.

"Basically, this improvement was simple to make by extending the line 4 trips that previously went as far as downtown Carmel. Minimal additional schedule time had to be added," she said.

KRIS SOTTOSANTI (left) was named the most valuable and best defensive player of the Carmel High School frosh-soph football team. Teammate Lucero Valdez was selected most improved.

rooms in a main house or detached garage that have a stove, sink and refrigerator.

The draft ordinance would impose strict restrictions on the legalized units, including rent controls, number of occupants, size, and safety and health codes. The property also would have to be owner-occupied.

Landlords who do not register their second kitchens would face a $1,000 fine.

But the council did unanimously adopt the growth-restricting water ordinance.

Currently, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District allocates 1,030.8 acre feet of water to the city annually. The city has used 97.8 percent of that allocation.

Because all of the reserve water is needed for new residential development, the ordinance will prohibit new commercial activity unless the new use consumes less water than what was previously located on the site.

BUSINESS BEAT BY NANCY HILLS

Carmel Plaza has a new manager

THE CARMEL Plaza introduced a new property manager this month when Kreg Baker took over the position from Maggie Hayes, who decided that she wanted to travel and devote time to other pursuits.

Baker and his wife, Maren, have lived in Pacific Grove since 1981 and have owned a restaurant, the Pheasant's Eye, there for two and a half years. At the same time, Baker held a position with the Santa Clara Office of Education as a principal for five schools in the special schools and services section. Baker said that in the short time he has been with the Plaza, he has been "really impressed."

KREG BAKER, the new property manager for the Carmel Plaza, said he believes that the Plaza should become involved with community services.

"It feels like the Plaza is one of the hubs of the community. The staff that works here has a sincere concern about the Plaza. It is important to them and is a part of their lives. They care, and it seems to me it is more than a caring about the business aspect. They care that the Plaza looks nice and has a good image in the community."

As property manager, Baker will oversee the entire Plaza staff and the day-to-day operation of the Plaza, which includes the replacement of moisture-damaged beams. The damage repair started two months ago, but pedestrian barriers have been taken down and repair work stopped for the holidays. It will resume in January, Baker said. But Baker said he cannot project a date for completion.

"I have been very impressed with the merchants. They are really maintaining a positive attitude about it," Baker said. "Jim Saxton, the construction supervisor, and his men are doing a terrific job. A lot of people would not take the interest he and his men do. They are nice to the public and merchants and do everything possible to create the least disruption and keep the businesses open."

Baker said he is not involved with the Bank of America move and that the situation is being handled by Steven Jacobs, leasing agent and part-owner of the Plaza.

"My biggest challenge right now is getting to know everybody," Baker said.

"As somebody who lives here, I have always looked at the Plaza as a group of individuals whose establishments help to perpetuate the uniqueness of Carmel," Baker said. "They do it by the way they conduct business, their very attitude is one that is friendly and open. They are sincere and happy to have people come into their shops."

"I feel one of the purposes of the Plaza should be to give to the local community. One way it can do that is by supporting community service projects and being active, as Maggie did when she supported Little League. That's a part of Carmel and one of the things about it that I like; People get behind the town and community and support it."

Baker said holiday festivities at the Plaza include caroling, decorations, and a Santa Claus for the children who is already receiving visitors in his special little Santa hut. Of course people who come to the Plaza can also see the special seven-foot-tall Victorian doll house on display.

After commuting for years from Pacific Grove to San Jose, Baker said he was "lucky to obtain this position."

"We moved to this area because this is where we wanted to live. By commuting from San Jose, I felt like a weekend visitor. I wanted to work here and live here."

TOOTS LAGOON GOES SPAGHETTI WESTERN

The Fabulous Toots Lagoon on Dolores Street and Seventh Avenue has exchanged its New Orleans bayou atmosphere and creole cuisine to follow the advice of Horace Greely and "go west." The restaurant changed its menu and look Nov. 29 to spaghetti western.

"New Orleans cuisine is unfamiliar to many people," said Dan Aliotti, who has been the Toots Lagoon manager for the past two months. "We wanted a place where the locals would feel comfortable coming and not have to dress up — a place where the kids can go, too."

"The motif is the 'movie cowboy,'" he said, "and we will have pictures of Tom Mix, Gene Autry and the other movie cowboys. We will have western gear around the interior of the restaurant."

"We are promoting a lot of pasta, that's where the spaghetti part comes in, and we can do an individual pizza," Aliotti said. "We also have a lot of seafood."

The lunch menu sports such unusual items as a meatball sandwich called the Midnight Cowboy, a roast beef and turkey named Black Bart, an Italian sausage called Bite the Bullet, Blazing Saddles Chili, and for those who really want to throw caution to the winds, A Real Man's Quiche.

"We wanted to lighten things up and have some fun," Aliotti said.

"In keeping with the Italian-western idea, we serve Italian and western wines," he added.

The restaurant serves a western breakfast on Saturday, Sunday and Monday mornings.

"That means eggs, ham, home fries or potatoes and toast," Aliotti said. "Our egg items are very nice. We have a wonderful hollandaise and an excellent brunch."

The backroom of Toots Lagoon now has a big screen TV where Monday night football is shown. Aliotti hopes in the future to show daytime soap operas for those die-hard soap fans.

The spaghetti western idea was developed by Danny Aliotti and his co-manager brother, John Aliotti.

"My experience is mainly in the dining room," Aliotti said. "John is the gourmet."

Before working at Toots Lagoon, Aliotti had worked at Raffaello's and Casanova's in Carmel, the Whaling Station in Monterey, and the Lodge in Pebble Beach.

WELCOME, MANE ATTRACTION

New owners, new decor, and a new name have transformed Paulette's hair salon in the Sunset Terrace on Mission Street and Eighth Avenue.

The Mane Attraction, as it is now called, is Cindy Ikeoka's first salon of her own after five years of having worked in other salons on the peninsula.

"I got tired of working for other people," Ms. Ikeoka said. "I wanted to be my own boss."

The salon has undergone a major change since it was Paulette's. The contemporary interior was designed by the salon's business manager and Ms. Ikeoka's partner in the shop, Denny Armstrong. A color scheme was selected by Salinas color consultant Sharon Parsons to complement Ms. Ikeoka.

"The salon is a bit out of the ordinary," said Armstrong. "We didn't want 'just a little hole in the wall.' Everything is totally redone."

"We ultimately hope to have four stations, though right now we are going with just two stations other than Cindy's."

"I hope to eventually make it a full-service salon with facials," Ms. Ikeoka said. The salon presently offers hair care and manicures only.

Her style, Ms. Ikeoka said, leans toward the "contemporary cuts — styles seen in the latest Vogue magazine."

"It is more for professional people who want to maintain their image," she added. "I believe in healthy maintenance and total hair care."

"I have always had an interest in cosmetology. I enjoy it, I enjoy being creative. It is not a dead-end profession. You never stop learning."

ORIENTIQUE MOVES TO CARMEL

After four years in The Barnyard, Orientique has moved to the Court of the Fountains on Mission Street between Seventh and Ocean avenues. The oriental antique shop, owned by Lucille Beasley and May Waldroup, features antiques primarily from Japan and China.

The shop has "fine porcelains, lacquer furniture, fabrics, paintings and many types of accessories. We probably have the finest collection of Imari porcelain in the area."

"We have everything from folk art to fine painted porcelain in the shop,"

Mrs. Beasley lived in the Orient for many years, the last of which were spent in Japan. While there, she developed an interest in oriental art history, which she said, "helped to train her eye."

"Not everything they made 200 years ago was quality work. My interest in art helps me to see the difference."

"In porcelain, the colors should be finely done, the painting well-balanced. In Chinese furniture, look for rosewood and blackwood. There are some older fine woods, but they are very hard for the public to find," she said.

"The finest Japanese wood is keyaki. It is the hardest and the has most beautiful grain."

"The Japanese have very little in the way of furniture except in the way of chests and low tables. Japanese chests normally have more of a country look than the Chinese with heavier hardware and the wood is not generally carved."

Antiques are difficult to get out of mainland China, Mrs. Beasley said, so most of her Chinese antiques come from Hong Kong. The Japanese require that all antiques be photographed before leaving the country and sent to a special bureau to be licensed to leave Japan.

"They do not want any national treasures to go out of the country," Mrs. Beasley explained.

The shop has silk obis, the sash worn around the kimono, from the early 20th Century, a Turkistan hand painted rug that the Japanese use in the Kyoto summer festival, and dolls that the Japanese use on "Girls Day," March 3.

"Depending on what the family could afford, they would have a set of dolls, not to play with, but to set out on the staircase. The set would include an emperor and empress, ladies in waiting, ministers of the left and right on down. The dolls are handed down from generation to generation. Finding them in a set is very rare," Mrs. Beasley said.

NEW BUSINESSES APPROVED

The Carmel Business License and Code Review Board approved four new business licenses and one special event application Nov. 29:

• HARUKO: Haruko Smith's application for a women's apparel shop and fashion accessories on the Northeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street was approved. The location was formerly the Music Box which sold — what else? — music boxes. Ms. Smith had asked for a second permit to sell the music boxes that had been left in the inventory but dropped her request when it was explained to her that her use permit allowed her six months to sell them. Ms. Haruko currently has women's apparel shop of the same name in the Mall at The Crossroads.

• COLOR PERFECT: Sandi Letendre and Vera Chandler received approval, subject to a building inspection of the premises, to open a color analysis and wardrobe consultation business inside Laura's Ladyfingers on Mission Street near Sixth Avenue. City Administrator Doug Schmitz asked what the codes said on subleasing spaces. He pointed out that subleasing of large buildings increases the traffic flow and the water usage. Assistant Planning Director Diane White said there was no provision against them, but it was identified as an issue that needs to be studied. Whether the subletting complied with the restroom requirements. The building inspection would determine whether the Color Perfect sublet was in compliance with the code. Vern Alred inquired whether he was a "winter" or "spring."

• CARMEL'S COUNTRY CORNER: Sandra Skillicorn's application for a restaurant on the Southwest corner of Dolores Street and Seventh Avenue was approved. Jack Skillicorn represented his wife, Sandra, and it was suggested that he and Assistant Planning Director Diane White go over the use permit that had been granted to the Carmel Epicurean, which had previously occupied the space.

Density issue pervades hearings on area plan

By MICHAEL GARDNER

DENSITY IS the issue for Carmel-area residents as the Monterey County Board of Supervisors continues its hearing on the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan.

As part of the area plan hearing, supervisors will discuss densities for the Mahroom condominium subdivision in the High Meadows area and Rancho San Carlos in the hills south of Carmel Valley Road.

Supervisors have scheduled the discussion for 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 11 at the county courthouse in Salinas. A second session, if necessary, tentatively has been scheduled for 9:45 a.m., Monday, Dec. 17.

Supervisors already have closed the public hearing, which means they will not allow any comments from the audience.

The Rancho San Carlos density has been the subject of numerous discussions by advisory committees and the county planning commission, which recommended allowing up to 2,000 units on the approximately 20,000-acre ranch.

The platform for successful supervisorial candidate Karin Strasser Kauffman, who will replace Fifth District Supervisor William Peters in January, included arguments to allow only 500 units on Rancho San Carlos.

The Oppenheimer family wants to build a self-sustaining village of 3,800 units, hotel and golf course in the bowl area hidden in the hills west of Robinson Canyon Road.

Another smaller parcel of property included in the area plan that has generated some controversy is the proposed Mahroom subdivision, near the intersection of Outlook Drive and High Meadow Road on the east side of Highway 1.

Owner Majid Mahroom wants to build 36 condominiums on about 2.4 acres, which would be a density of 14.81 units per acre.

The condominiums also would be clustered in seven buildings. Some of those buildings would be three stories.

The density and three-story height have been continuously protested by the several different homeowners groups during the planning commission hearings.

The same arguments against density and height were presented to supervisors during their November hearings on the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan.

One of the homeowners, Vicky Cook, has continued her opposition even though the public hearing has been closed. She plans to contact supervisors individually and has written each a letter.

MS. COOK argues that the number of units allowed should be cut by half and that no building taller than two stories be permitted.

In a Nov. 29 letter to supervisors, Ms. Cook claimed that the Mahroom density "is double any existing housing unit in High Meadows."

She also claimed prospective homeowners were not provided with complete and accurate information about pending projects.

"Our beautiful area will be bordered by Hatton Canyon (freeway) to the west, 157 additional units to the east and a second major outlet from Carmel Valley Road onto Highway 1 should Outlook Drive (extension) go through," Ms. Cook wrote.

"Must we take the impact of all these drastic proposals?" she said.

Ms. Cook added that the environmental impact report (EIR) prepared for the Mahroom project suggests some sewage capacity and traffic problems may not be mitigated.

After the EIR was written, Carmel Sanitary District Manager Michael Zambory last month released a report that indicated the district currently cannot provide sewage capacity for several major projects, including the Mahroom development.

The sanitary district has applied to the Regional Water Quality Control Board for permission to increase its discharge into Monterey Bay from 2.4 million gallons per day to about 3 million per day. A decision is not expected until mid-March.

The Mahroom development would produce an estimated 8,460 gallons of sewage per day.

The environmental impact report also acknowledges that the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway project — not expected for completion until about 1988 — would only "partially alleviate traffic congestion."

Mahroom's attorney, Brian Finegan, told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that the project density was approved as part of the overall High Meadow subdivision map authorized in the mid-1960s.

He pointed out that supervisors approved 236 units on about 100 acres in the High Meadow area. Mahroom's 36 condominiums would bring the total High Meadow development up to 234 units, or two less than approved.

Finegan added that 48.9 acres of open space already has been dedicated as part of the High Meadow subdivision.

And a real estate report received by each homeowner in High Meadow II specifically stated that 36 units are planned for the Mahroom site, he claimed.

Finegan also said that Mahroom has been paying membership dues in the homeowners organization although the condominiums still are to be developed.

Art Museum plans trip to China

The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art announces a 35-day expedition to China for the spring of 1985 to be led by Col. and Mrs. Gregg L. McKee of Carmel. The McKees led the 1982 ceramic expedition to China by members of the San Francisco Ceramic Circle. They have lived in both Bangkok and Singapore and have traveled widely in Asia.

The price of $3,850 includes a $250 tax-deductible donation to the museum, to assist in the purchase of secure display cases for the new Oriental Gallery.

The group will depart from San Francisco Saturday, March 30, and enter China at Beijing on April 1 after an overnight rest at Narita, Japan.

The itinerary emphasizes places of particular interest in art, ceramics, architecture and archaeology, and many are off the beaten-track. Destinations include Beijing, Datong, Taiyuan, Xian, Luoyang, Dengfeng, Song Shan, Yuxian, Zhengzhou, Nanjing, Yangzhou, Shanghai, Jingdezhen, Nanchang, Guelin and Guangzhou. Departure from China will be by express train from Guangzhou to Hong Kong, where the group will spend three nights before disembarking May 3 for individual return via Japan. The airline tickets will be valid for 60 days from original departure.

Six meetings will take place at the museum during February and March to provide participants with information for preparation.

For further information, call Gregg McKee at 624-0541.

OBITUARIES

Civic leader Mark Raggett dies at 70

A memorial service will take place Thursday Dec. 6 at 11 a.m. in the Erdman Memorial Chapel of the Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach for Mark Joseph Raggett, a Carmel retailer and Peninsula civic leader for more than three decades, who died Dec. 2 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 70.

Born Sept. 30, 1914 in Berkeley, he was raised in the San Jose area. He and his wife, Hope, were married in St. John's Episcopal Chapel in Monterey in 1938 and moved to the Peninsula from San Mateo in 1946, when he became a partner with Frank Putnam in the Putnam and Raggett Dry Goods Store on Ocean Avenue.

He was sole owner of the business, renamed M. Raggett, Inc., when he sold it and retired in 1978.

A resident of Pebble Beach for the past 18 years, he was active in a wide variety of civic and cultural organizations. He was vice president of the Del Monte Forest Foundation and a member of the Del Monte Forest Advisory Committee to the Monterey County Planning Commission.

He served on the 1955 Monterey County Grand Jury and was chairman of the Monterey Peninsula College Board of Trustees for two years. He was a trustee on the Community Hospital board of directors and was past secretary to the board of governors of the Monterey Peninsula Foundation.

He was a former president of the Carmel Lions Club and the Carmel Business Association, twice commodore of the Stillwater Yacht Club, a member of the board of the Monterey Peninsula chapter of the Navy League and vice president of the Del Monte Forest Property Owners board.

He was involved in the Monterey History and Art Association, Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, the auxiliary of the Monterey County SPCA, Friends of the Monterey Institute of International Studies and an honorary member of Friends of Carmel Unified Schools.

He was also a member of the Beach and Tennis Club, a Paul Harris Fellow of the Carmel Rotary Club, and a member of the Old Capital Club.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two sons, Navy Capt. Mark of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., and Jon of Carmel; a sister, Marian Hesselberg of San Mateo; and four grandchildren.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, with inurnment at the San Juan Bautista Cemetery. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial, to Community Hospital or the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Marie Helen Wilson

Memorial services will take place at 2 p.m. Dec. 9 at the Carmel Foundation for Marie Helen Wilson of Carmel, a retired teacher and former fabric shop owner, who died Nov. 30 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 66.

Born April, 1918 in Fredericksburg, Va., she moved from Santa Cruz to Carmel in 1968. She was a sewing teacher in the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District adult education program and owned a fabric shop in Carmel called Carmel Knit Fabrics.

She was a member of the Carmel Foundation.

Survivors include her daughters, Denise and Tina Borsella, both of Carmel; sisters, Nell Garner of Santa Cruz and Ada Thorpe of Virginia; and a brother Lucian Copen, also of Virginia.

Cremation will take place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove, with inurnment in El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove. The Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorials to the Carmel Foundation or the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Al Elsen

A Mass of Christian burial was said Nov. 17 at San Carlos Cathedral for Al Elsen, retired circulation promotion manager of the Monterey Peninsula Herald and a 41-year employee of the paper who died Nov. 14 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 67.

Born Alphonse Edward Elsen in the family home in Monterey on Sept. 1, 1917, he attended San Carlos Grammar School and Monterey High School. He was a Carmel resident for 44 years.

He started at the paper in 1941 and was district manager of the circulation department in Carmel for 15 years, before his appointment as circulation promotion manager in 1974.

Survivors include his wife, Gertrude; a son, Michael of Tacoma, Wash.; a sister, Marie McCrary of Pacific Grove; and two stepdaughters, Margaret Martignoni of Carmel Valley and Eve Sotoodeh of La Honda; three grandchildren, one great-granddaughter, and five step-grandchildren.

The family suggests contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Enos F. Fouratt

Memorial services took place at the Carmel Mission Basilica for Enos F. Fouratt, real estate businessman and a founding member of the Carmel Board of Realtors who died Nov. 15 at Community Hospital. He was 72.

He was the owner of Fouratt Real Estate and remained active in its operation until his death. He was also associated with the Fouratt Corp. Senior Equity Plan.

Born Oct. 4, 1912 in San Francisco, he served in the Coast Guard during World War II. After the war he moved with his wife, the former Bernice Baker, to Carmel in 1946 and established his real estate firm.

Two years ago he was honored for outstanding service by the Carmel Board of Realtors, of which he was a two-time past president. He was a past foreman of the Monterey County Grand Jury and past chairman of the Monterey County Horse Show's western division. He was a 25-year member of the Carmel Rotary Club and he was also active in 4-H Club activities.

He is survived by his wife.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

"Gray power," the political importance of seniors, is expected to play an increasing role in American politics, says Prof. William Lambers of the Andrus Gerontology Center at USC. "The number of older persons with the personal resources and political skills needed to participate in the political process is growing, and elected officials are becoming increasingly sensitive to their voting strength," says Lambers. A significant part of "gray power," according to the professor, is that a greater percentage of citizens aged 65 to 74 get out and vote than any other age group, lending them additional clout.

At age 70, actress Mary Martin continued to be a living example of the advice she often gave viewers on her popular TV series, "Over Easy." One of Mary's favorite expressions: "Don't retire from life." The mother of Larry Hagman, who plays the infamous J.R. Ewing on "Dallas," and beloved for her own role as Peter Pan, Mary earlier this year appeared at the American Film Institute salute to Lillian Gish.

Remember when? August 2, 1956 — The last Union army veteran of the Civil War, Albert Woolson, died at the age of 109.

SERRA BICENTENNIAL

BY MSGR. FRANCESWEBER

Return to capital

ON AUG. 24, 1772 — the first anniversary of the planting of the cross in the Carmel Valley — Fray Junipero Serra, Pedro Fages and several others left Monterey for San Diego. It was to be Serra's first overland trip along California's El Camino Real.

On this trip he came to know the complete coast of California from Monterey south and made mental notes that helped him fashion his chain or ladder of missions. Much of what Serra saw on the trip determined his future course of action.

At San Antonio, Serra found a small Christian community of about a dozen Indians. The presidente was encouraged and realized that as soon as the food situation became better and the undesirable soldiers were removed, San Antonio would become a model outpost.

The party moved south and on Sept. 1, on the slope of a hill within the shadow of San Luis Obispo Peak, Serra raised the cross of California's fifth mission. Fray Jose Cavaller was left behind as resident missionary.

Circumstances dictated leaving only a handful of guards at San Luis Obispo, and Serra noted later that it would have been a foolhardy venture had it been for any reason other than to convert the Indians. Fortunately, as he said, God "did not abandon the agents of so holy an enterprise."

On Sept. 11, the party arrived at San Gabriel, and Serra was able to see the mission for the first time. He was delighted with the place and the progress that had been made. Though he remained only two days, Serra declared that it was "without doubt the most excellent mission site so far discovered. Once it is sufficiently developed, it will be able, doubtless, to sustain not only itself, but all the rest."

By the time of his arrival at San Diego, the presidente had seen nearly 500 miles of new territory. He now had a better perspective and a fuller knowledge of his extensive mission field.

Ever so gradually, the relationship between Governor Pedro Fages and Fray Junipero Serra began to deteriorate. Lines of authority were not well drawn and even more poorly interpreted. Serra found himself at the crossroads of the mission enterprise. The vexations, delays, bickerings, misunderstandings and restrictions of the past two years had come to a peak in San Diego. The major question then was — would he go ahead, stand still, or retreat?

On Oct. 13, the presidente met with the missionaries at San Diego and stated his opinion that one of them should go to Mexico in person to see the viceroy and lay the whole matter of mission administration before him. The friars agreed and decided that Serra was the person to go unless his age and infirmities prevented him from doing so.

Inasmuch as the San Carlos was then in the harbor, the presidente decided to leave on the ship when it left for San Blas. As his companion for the long journey, Serra chose Juan Evangelista, an Indian he had baptized a few years earlier.

On Oct. 20, the return to Mexico began under the patronage of Our Lady of Guadalupe, "the sovereign Queen of Angels and the Mother of Navigators." It was the beginning of a journey that would alter the course of California's history.

As Serra sailed southward along the coast, he reviewed his time in Alta California. Five missions had been founded, even though some of them were still in a precarious state. The presidente felt that unless the laws were enforced and a change in personalities was made, the greatly desired mission progress would never be attained.

Evelyn H. Bostic

Memorial services were scheduled for Evelyn Harper Bostic, a Carmel Highlands resident since 1972 who died Nov. 13 at Community Hospital.

Born in Albuquerque, N.M., she was the owner of a stationery store there until her retirement in 1970.

She was a member of the Carmel Presbyterian Church and a charter member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at the University of New Mexico.

Survivors include her husband, Karl; two daughters, Cynthia Primavera of Anaheim and Ilona Bostic of Albuquerque; a sister, Esther Clark of Fayetteville, Ark.; and two grandchildren.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Philip J. Malloway

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, followed by scattering of ashes at sea, for Philip J. Malloway of Carmel Valley, who was struck by a car while crossing Carmel Valley Road in his wheelchair. He died Nov. 13 at Community Hospital of injuries sustained in the accident. He was 60.

Born Nov. 28, 1923 in Turlock, he attended the University of California at Berkeley and was a Monterey Peninsula resident since 1932. He is survived by two brothers, Robert of Monterey and Alan R. of Castroville.

Virginia B. Hannon

Virginia Blair Hannon — painter, ceramist and former art gallery owner — died Nov. 16 at her home in Carmel. She was 64.

Born Sept. 23, 1920 in Livingston, Mont., she studied painting and design at the Chicago Art Institute and came to this area in 1947. In the early 1950s she opened an art gallery and ceramics studio on Fisherman's Wharf with her sister, the late Barbara Wasserman.

The Blair Gallery became a popular gathering place for local artists and actors and featured her paintings and her sister's ceramics. Among the frequent visitors was author John Steinbeck.

During the 1950s she also managed the Feingarten Gallery in Carmel, the first gallery in Carmel devoted to abstract painting.

She founded the old Wharf Theater on Fisherman's Wharf, served on its board of directors and designed sets for many of its productions. She was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist in Carmel.

She is survived by her husband Hugh.

At her request, no services took place. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Memorial gifts to the Carmel Bach Festival Conductors Fund were suggested.

Ray Twibell

Cremation took place, followed by scattering of ashes at sea, for Ray Everett Twibell, a Big Sur state park maintenance ranger and Carmel resident for 24 years, who died Nov. 14 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital.

Born in Ash Grove, Kan., he worked as a civil engineer in Kansas and Nebraska before he moved to California in 1954.

He was with the South Pasadena and Pico Rivera school systems as chief maintenance supervisor for six years before he moved in 1960 from Whittier to the peninsula.

He was a maintenance ranger in Big Sur for the state Department of Parks and Recreation when he retired in 1976.

He was past member of Scotts Bluff Lodge 201 AF&AM, Gering, Neb., and a member of the Scotts Bluff Elks Lodge.

Survivors include his wife Mildred of Carmel; daughter Lynda Knepper of Santa Barbara; son Bill of Arcata; sister Alvina Little of Abilene, Kan.; and four grandsons.

At his request no services took place. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements. The family suggests memorial contributions to the Visiting Nurse Association, 187 Eldorado St., Monterey, or to a favorite charity.

Kathryn Edwards

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove for Kathryn Yager Edwards, a Carmel resident for the past 18 years, who died Nov. 16 at her home at Hacienda Carmel. She was 83.

Born Feb. 25, 1901 in Alton, Ill., she had been a map maker for the Army Map Corps for three years at the Gousha Map Camp in San Jose.

She was a former president of the Oak Park Art League in Oak Park, Ill. and remained an honorary member while she lived on the peninsula.

Survivors include her son, Robert W. Lewis of Norwalk, Conn.; two brothers, Charles M. Yager of Tacoma, Wash., and Richard Yager of Douglas, Mich.; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

At her request, no services took place. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of cremation. Inurnment was scheduled for a later date at Bronswood Cemetery in Hinsdale, Ill.

Ruth A. Francis

Memorial services took place Nov. 24 at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church for Ruth Allison Francis of Carmel Valley, a peninsula resident for 13 years who died Nov. 21 at her home. She was 73.

Born March 22, 1911 in Honolulu, Hawaii, she was a member of the Carmel Valley Women's Club, a board member of Hidden Valley Music Seminars and a member of St. Dunstan's.

Survivors include her sons, Phillip H. of Ann Arbor, Mich., and William F. III of Pasadena; a brother, John Allison of Dunwoody, Ga.; five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Private cremation took place under direction of the Paul Mortuary.

Research Fund, Stanford University Medical Center, 780 Welch Road, No. 106, Palo Alto 93904.

Wendell M. Coates

Memorial services took place Nov. 23 at the Paul Mortuary for Wendell M. Coates of Pebble Beach, a former chairman of the Department of Aeronautics at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey who died Nov. 19 at Pacific Grove Convalescent Hospital. He was 86.

Born April 8, 1898 in Marblehead, Mass., he graduated magna laude from Williams University in Massachusetts in 1919 with a degree in physics and was a Phi Beta Kappa. He obtained a master's degree and a doctorate of science degree in engineering mechanics from the University of Michigan.

He joined the faculty at NPS in 1931 as an assistant professor of mathematics when the school was located at the Naval Academy in Annapolis. He became an associate professor of mathematics in 1935 and a full professor in 1940.

A Naval Reserve officer, he served during World War II as a lieutenant commander and commander at the Naval Academy and at the Naval Technical Mission in Europe and returned to the NPS faculty in 1946 as a professor of aeronautics. In 1951 he moved with NPS to its present site in Monterey.

He was chairman of the NPS Aeronautics Department for 16 years, until 1962, and between 1962 and his retirement from NPS in April 1968 he taught graduate and undergraduate courses in his specialty, structures, and was an adviser to the department chairman. In 1967, he was given the title of distinguished professor.

He was a member of the American Mathematical Society and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He owned a 38-foot ketch, which he sailed himself.

Survivors include a sister, E. Bruce Perkins of Tacoma, Wash., and two nephews. His wife Barbara died Oct. 10.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea with inurnment scheduled in Marblehead, Mass.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Pacific Grove Convalescent Hospital.

Patricia Gregory

Private cremation took place, followed by scattering of ashes at sea, for Patricia Fudger Gregory of Carmel who died Nov. 20 at her home. She was 74.

Born Nov. 10, 1910 in Toronto, Canada, she came to Carmel in 1964 from Fresno.

She was a member of the Audubon Society, studied art in Paris in her youth and was an artist in Fresno and Southern California. Her work was exhibited at the Raymond Burr Gallery in Beverly Hills.

Survivors include her daughter, Irene Demetri of Jenner; her son, Easan Katir of Lafayette, and a granddaughter.

At her request, no funeral services took place. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of cremation arrangements.

The family suggests contributions in her memory to the Monterey County SPCA.

'Artisans Give Thanks' offers handmade gifts

By ANNE PAPINEAU

EVERY MORNING Dorothy Smith and her husband, Joe, depart their Carmel home to begin a five-mile walk. "It's the English in me," Dorothy explained in the musical accent of a former Londoner.

When she returns, Dorothy takes up her needlework, which consists of one of the many varieties at which she is expert: knitting, crewel embroidery, crochet, needlepoint.

This she pursues for hours at a stretch, day in and day out. It is a habit she acquired when a seamstress to the royal court of England, and it has populated both floors of her wood-shaded home with a family of dolls, collages, embroidered bell pulls, picture frames and heirloom-worthy knits.

For seven years Dorothy Smith has been

'I'm very particular. I probably made two heads for each doll. I threw the other away. One day I was doing the eyes of one with a magnifying glass and I could feel the earth move.'

one of the locals whose work is represented in the annual Artisans Give Thanks to the Animals Christmas Gift Show. This year the show will take place Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 8-9, at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, near Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley. A wine preview is planned from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday, Dec. 7.

"You can't sit and do nothing, or you'd go balmy. People need challenge," explained Dorothy, who works the year 'round to prepare gifts for this show. And while her work is invariably a sell-out, Artisans Give Thanks to the Animals is the only show at which those sumptuous "Gifts from Dorothy's Garden" are represented.

A survey of her closet — doll's room would be a more appropriate name — is like a visit to an Edwardian toy store. Her dolls, no two alike, are dressed in rich velvets, French wools, watered silks, laces and hand-made rosebuds.

"I can't stand junk," Dorothy exclaimed decisively. "I don't buy anything. I make the shoes, everything."

She is well qualified to do so. At 14, she apprenticed to a prestigious London design house that produced gowns for society ladies, theatrical stars and, yes, British royalty.

"It was awful," is her memory of that work. "I had to pick needles off the floor with a magnet. We had a French fitter, a mademoiselle who would scream all the time."

Needlework was one of those occupations that Britishers would enter on a professional level very young. "Life was not easy in those days," she said of pre-World War II England. "To begin training for a career at 14 was not uncommon."

DOROTHY LEARNED to knit at age seven, taught by her mother, who was a nanny. "When I was a small child I could sew better than anybody else," she noted. "I was a natural for it."

World War II interrupted Dorothy's budding seamstress studies when she joined the Women's Auxiliary Air Force. She married and gave birth to twin girls, neither of whom, she said, inherited her needle wizardry.

"I kept my two kids completely clothed," she quipped. "We tried Vogue couturier designs, you name it."

Can her daughters sew at all? "No way, honey — they can't even sew a shoulder strap on."

Her family now grown, Dorothy again devotes hours of attention daily to producing items for Artisans Give Thanks to the Animals. Her earliest contributions were padded cloth picture frames, which she still designs in profusion. A stellar stand-out this year is a couchful of dolls labeled, "From Dorothy's Garden," each possessing a unique name, such as Fleur-de-Lis Mae, Jasmine Delilah, Emma Snowdrop and Vanessa Holly.

BERIBBONED teddy is surrounded by dolls "From Dorothy's Garden," each one of them hand-made by Dorothy Smith of Carmel. Dorothy, a royal court dressmaker,

They do resemble the "Cabbage Patch" variety, but instead of being plastic-faced, Dorothy's are constructed entirely of soft-sculpture material. And each doll, girls and boys alike, wears an outfit designed and executed by the former "royal court dressmaker."

Dorothy said she usually worked on two dolls at a time to produce her grinning family. "I'm very particular. I probably made two heads for each doll. I threw the other away. One day I was doing the eyes of one with a magnifying glass and I could feel the earth move."

Even a Carmel earthquake did not interrupt her efforts.

She said these dolls will be priced in the $60 to $95 range for the weekend show.

DOROTHY SAID her husband is getting a bit fed up with having the closets stocked with dolls and other crafts, and she may bow out of the show after this season. Her husband's pride is a vintage MG roadster he restored to gleaming glory.

"It's always a pain in the neck," Dorothy said of her crafts work. "Sometimes I wonder, what am I doing this for? I make the doll's head and throw it across the room. My daughters always crack up at me."

Yet somehow it's difficult, surveying her craft-bedecked home, to imagine Dorothy Smith abandoning the skills she took up in childhood. From that MG roadster to the portrait of Winston Churchill to the no-name Budgie chirping near the window, the entire scene is, like its mistress, too "steadfastly English" to be altered in any way.

More than 25 craft varieties will be featured at the seventh annual Artisans Give Thanks to the Animals gift show this weekend. Proceeds are donated to The Friends of the Sea Otter, The American Cetacean Society and the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society.

Wine preview is 6 to 10 p.m. Friday, Dec. 7. Preview admission is $4. Weekend show dates are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 9. The show will take place at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, on Valley Greens Drive off Carmel Valley Road near Quail Lodge.

Vocalists tune up for mission concert

THE 30-VOICE Camerata Singers return to Carmel Mission Basilica on Sunday, Dec. 9, with their annual "Christmas Music at the Missions" concert.

Under the direction of Vahe Aslanian, the choir will be assisted by a brass ensemble and chamber orchestra, as well as Don Eshoff, Owen Dunsford, Beverly Burrows, Rebecca Nelson, Katrina Carlson and Alan Gilbert.

The brass ensemble will open the concert with Concerto in F Major, Opus 7, No. 7 by Tomaso Albinoni (1671-1751). The work, originally written for one or two oboes, strings and continuo, was arranged for brass ensemble by Will Sudmeier.

Two motets by Giovanni Gabrieli (1557-1612) are taken from the books of Sacrae Symphoniae, published in 1597 and 1615. The first, O Jesu Mi Dulcissime, was written for two choirs with organ. The Jubilate Deo, on the other hand, is for double brass ensemble with eight-part chorus.

Sunday's repertoire includes Cradle Song, composed for chamber orchestra and harp by the contemporary Russian composer Vladimir Rebikov. It is arranged by Q. Maganini.

In Terra Pax by the 20th-Century English composer Gerald Finzi (1901-1956), is written for two solo voices and chorus. The text for the soprano solo and chorus is taken from the Christmas story as related by St. Luke, chapter 2, verses 8-14. The text for the baritone solo is from Robert Bridge's poem, Noel: Christmas Eve 1913.

Christmas Cantata by the contemporary composer Daniel Pinkham carries the subtitle "Sinfonia Sacra," which hints at Pinkham's return to the musical style and form of the early baroque composers. Unlike Gabrieli, the work is arranged for chorus and divided brass ensemble.

The Camerata Singers have grown from an original group of 16 singers in 1981 to 30 this year. The group derives its name from two sources, the Florentine Camerata and the

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION

BY JANE WILGRESS

Our library resources

RECENTLY, the board of the Cherry Foundation, along with members of certain committees, held a "dreaming session," in an attempt to highlight what they would most like to see come about in the future at the foundation.

One of my own dreams is to see the unusual library that was left by the Cherrys made available for use by the public.

True, the library is only a numerical fraction of its former state. Between Jeanne Cherry's death in 1964 and the reliably overseen reopening in 1976, the attrition rate on the books was terrific. Sometimes responsible distribution was made, but often it seems it was irresponsible — if not outright theft.

Nevertheless, the remainder — some 1,500 books — is a remarkably rich resource, containing as it does much offbeat and out-of-print material. Valuable in itself, it is also of historical interest as it shows the way Carl and Jeanne Cherry thought, and no doubt had their own "dreaming sessions."

They were always "on the frontier" in the world of ideas in art, sciences and civilization generally. Thus we find worn copies of books by Charles Fort, just to loosen up everyone's thinking about everything: then, Harry Partch on music, Tom Harrison on "Savage Civilization," Mead on gnosticism, Waite on the Kabbalah, books by and/or about Swedenborg, Steiner, Alice Bailey, Brunton, Marx, Suzuki, Wallis Budge and much more — in short, an explorative slant on almost every aspect of human experience. I should add, lots of lightweight reading is included, fiction and whodunits.

This collection is safely housed here, but I have to admit that we are so far only able to be guardians of it. Certainly such custodianship is a valid function for a librarian and often an important one. But everyone knows there is more to a librarian's job than being a guardian: circulation is the vital matter.

So, back to my dreaming of a way to have this unique resource made safely and competently available to interested readers. In the press of activity that goes on here, this challenge tends to get pushed into the background. Yet in a sense it underlies all that takes place here such as plays, concerts, meeting, classes. Considerations of space, safety and money now circumscribe my dream. Somehow, though, we must assure the opening of such an exceptional storehouse.

Light my tree

THE PUBLIC is invited to attend a free tree lighting celebration sponsored by the city of Carmel Friday, Dec. 7 at the intersection of Ocean and Junipero avenues. The celebration will begin at 5:15 p.m. with the official city holiday tree being lit at about 6 p.m. Santa Claus will pay a visit loaded with goodies and a copy of 'Twas the Night Before Christmas to read. Free cookies and cider will be served from the Carmel Youth Center. Bing Mobile. Above, members of the city Forestry Department installed the lights in preparation for the ceremony.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

All of Me: One of the world's richest women, who is dying, arranges to have her soul transported into the body of a younger, healthier person. Steve Martin, Lily Tomlin and Victoria Tennant star. Carl Reiner directs. Rated PG. Ends Dec. 6 at the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Amadeus: Peter Shaffer's Broadway hit about Mozart gets full, if lumbering, Hollywood treatment. Milos Forman directs. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema. 373-4777.

Bachelor Party: Tom Hanks stars in this tale of the uncertain, nervous and often comedic 24 hours before marriage. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

City Heat: Clint Eastwood and Burt Reynolds are adversaries in a mystery set in 1933. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough Theatre. 624-4044.

Country: A Midwestern farm family fights Mother Nature and impersonal bureaucrats. Richard Pearce (Heartland) directed this film, which stars Jessica Lange and Sam Shepard. Rated PG. Ends Dec. 6 at the Golden Bough Theatre. 624-4044.

Falling in Love: Meryl Streep and Robert De Niro, star-crossed commuters, meet and fall hard, despite their respective marriages. Directed by Ulu (True Confessions) Grosbard. Rated PG-13. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Ghostbusters: Dan Aykroyd, Bill Murray and Harold Ramis are New York parapsychologists who investigate paranormal occurrences in New York. Sigourney Weaver is a victim of spooky goings-on in this comedy. Rated PG. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

The Gods Must Be Crazy: Coke bottle prompts strife among African bushmen when the chief, Xi, decides to run with it to the edge of the earth and throw it away. There he encounters "civilized" characters, and the laughter increases. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Oh God, You Devil: George Burns takes on a dual role as a wisecracking God and suave Satan. Paul Bogart directs. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Phar Lap: From the makers of "The Man From Snowy River," a horse-mad tale for horse lovers about the great Australian chestnut gelding who scored in Depression-era Down Under. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Revenge of the Nerds: This comedy takes a look at a college phenomenon: Nerd Power. When a group of brainy, lovable but socially inept freshmen are mocked and persecuted by the campus Beautiful People, they join forces and strike back. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A send-up of remembered monster movies, with the added twist of music, "The Time Warp," "Over at the Frankenstein Place," and an audience that seems to know the lines better than the actors. A long-standing cult classic. Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

A Soldier's Story: Based on Charles Fuller's Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, the story follows a black Army officer investigating a murder. Howard E. Rollins Jr. stars. Directed by Norman Jewison. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

Supergirl: The comic-book character comes to life on screen with newcomer Helen Slater as Kora, traveling earth in search of a power source that will save her people. The cast includes Faye Dunaway, Peter O'Toole and Mia Farrow. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

The Terminator: Arnold Schwarzenegger plays the Terminator, a cyborg sent from the future to present-day Los Angeles to assassinate a woman whose life is destined to alter the shape of things to come. But a rebel soldier stalks him. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

2010: It's based on the Arthur C. Clarke science fiction novel about an epic space journey made by a team of Soviet and American scientists. Stars include Roy Scheider, John Lithgow, Helen Mirren, Bob Balaban and Keir Dullea. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70. 373-4777.

GETTING DOWN TO THE BUSINESS OF LUNCH...

Spyglass at La Playa now offers a quick, yet elegant alternative. Instead of looking for that illusive parking spot in Carmel, you can be looking over the exciting menu in the Spyglass Lounge, while a valet parks your car.

The Spyglass Lounge presents a superb New York Steak Sandwich as the highlight of its appetizer, soup, salad & sandwich menu.

If more formal dining is your lunchtime pleasure, step into the lovely Spyglass Dining Room, where you will be treated to a complete luncheon menu.

For larger parties, your gracious hosts will be happy to reserve the Fireside or Garden Rooms for those lengthy lunchtime meetings.

Whatever your lunchtime requirement, we wish to place ourselves at your service.

Carmelo Consort presents concert

The Carmel Art Association will present the Carmelo Consort in a holiday program of classical and international music at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 12, in the main gallery. Refreshments will be served, and the concert will be open to the public without charge. The delicate sound of guitar and mandolin, popular at the turn of the century, went out of favor in the heyday of a louder, more aggressive music that peaked, and in time went smash, with rock and roll. These days a quieter, more personal music seems in order, and the Carmelo Consort was formed in 1982 to explore this charming idiom.

Patty Pettit studied mandolin with Guy Horn and toured for years with the crack Berkeley Mandolin Ensemble as featured soloist. She has performed in various international music festivals and represented the United States in quadrennial music competitions in Germany in 1978 and 1982. She has recorded with such artists as Terrence Farrell and David Grisman.

George Warren studied with Julian Bream and taught with Charlie Byrd and Laurindo Almeida while playing dozens of concerts on both coasts. Turning to literary matters in recent years, he landed on the bestseller lists with the Children of the Lion novels he writes for Bantam Books under the pen name "Peter Danielson." He is a former editor of Bookwest magazine, a former book columnist for the Los Angeles Times and a music critic of international reputation.

The Galleries of the Carmel Art Association are on the west side of Dolores between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

CARMELO CONSORT members Patty Pettit (left) and George Warren will bring a program of international music to the Carmel Art Association on Wednesday, Dec. 12. Admission is free.

Brass Quintet suffers from poor programming

EMPIRE BRASS Quintet, heard here last week, was the first-brass group to win the Naumburg Chamber Music Award.

Their success is welcome, not only for them, but for listeners who associated brass ensembles with drum and bugle corps or slightly out-of-tune oom-pah bands.

In truth, the sound of a brass ensemble is glorious: brilliant, radiant, majestic. The tradition of the brass ensemble reaches far back, although the instruments did not acquire their valves until the 19th Century. The slide trombone is the least changed from its forbears.

If I were a painter, I could visually describe the concert more easily than in words. Imagine before you a gourmet feast. For an opening, a tasty, clear soup; a succulent roast (your choice). Then you notice canned vegetables and, with the sauces, a catsup bottle. The dessert tray consists of a store-bought ice cream and cookies. All is now lost in a sea of flavors, textures, colors, and it spells indigestion.

In short, the program — brilliantly played — was a sample of some of the worst programming to have assailed these ears in a long time.

Opening with Baroque brass, Albinoni and Purcell, and continuing with Handel and Bach, the concert promised much. The playing was crisp and articulate, with well-chosen tempos. The Mozart pieces were pleasant; arrangements of Mendelssohn and Ravel were less satisfying. Closing the first half was an original brass piece by that great non-entity, Victor Ewald (a civil engineer by profession). And after that...

Programming is an art. There is good, bad, and lots of middle ground. Variety is desirable, but there is an important difference between variety and miscellany. This program leaped hither and yon from Bach to Cole Porter to the eminently forgettable Ira Taxis. A Contrapunctus from Sebastian Bach's Art of Fugue was sensitively played, and quite lovely in the brass combination. I could happily have listened to the rest of the Art of Fugue.

Having relatively little original material is not really an excuse for the programming. There are excellent arrangements of good music (some by members of this ensemble), including some very effective Renaissance music. And there is good contemporary brass music for various combinations (after all, just because they are a quintet doesn't mean they can only play quintets). The program wasn't planned; it happened.

Each of the players is a virtuoso. They present a pleasant, peripatetic and chatty stage presence, complete with costume change at intermission.

The one obvious flaw in performance came in the pseudo-jazz arrangements, particularly of hits from Gershwin's Porgy and Bess. Only trumpeter Charles A. Lewis, Jr., and trombonist Scott Hartman had any real sense of jazz styling. The contrast was uncomfortable.

Encores, against which I am already on record, were no credit to anyone. A bullfight song by Rafael Mendez was more Boston than Seville, and I never thought to have to sit through Carnival of Venice again. That was the end for me.

This excellent group should get some advice on programming. This sort of thing is as unnecessary as it is unacceptable.

Trumpeter Rolf Smedvig will return to the peninsula in March as soloist with the Monterey County Symphony.

There is a lot of music happening during the Advent and Christmas seasons. Many churches and schools will be doing special programs. The Christmas portion of Messiah will probably happen too often, but it apparently continues to please people. Support your local musicians!

Quartet Music plays Pacific Grove

568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove. The concert will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 9. Tickets, available at the door, are $4.50 for members and $5 for non-members. For details, call 375-2208.

Young vocalists will compete

A $2,500 prize will be awarded in the 9th annual Young California Artist Competition, to take place March 30, 1985, in Sunset Center, Carmel. In 1985 the competition will be open to vocalists.

The Young California Artist Competition is sponsored by the Carmel Music Society. Different competitions are scheduled annually. In 1986, pianists will compete. In 1987, it will be open to instrumentalists.

Vocalists between the ages of 18 and 32 can enter the 1985 competition. The $2,500 Nancy Ness Bowman Memorial Grand Prize will consist of a $1,500 cash award and $1,000 contract to appear the following year on the Carmel Music Society's subscription series. A $750 second prize, a $500 third prize and five $100 prizes will also be awarded.

Contestants must be residents of California or full-time students in the state. They must be no younger than 18 nor have reached their 33rd birthday by March 30, 1985. Previous Young California Artist Competition Grand Prize winners are not eligible for the competition. Final auditions and an awards concert will take place March 30 at Sunset Center.

Application forms and a set of rules and regulations can be obtained by writing to: Chairman, Competition Committee; Carmel Music Society; P.O. Box 1144; Carmel, Calif. 93921.

Completed applications must be postmarked no later than Feb. 16, 1985.

Christmas Music at the Mission

SOLOISTS Rebecca Nelson, left, and Pauline Thomas will perform in the Christmas Music at the Mission concert on Sunday, Dec. 9, in the Carmel Mission Basilica. The Camerata Singers will be joined by a brass ensemble, harp, strings and organ.

Christmas gala showcases talent

Christmas Gala II, a concert that combines five different musical groups from Monterey Peninsula College, will be presented at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 11, in the MPC Music Hall.

With a combined total of more than 100 instrumental and choral musicians, the concert will include a full range of traditional and contemporary Christmas music. Highlights of the program include An English Christmas by Grundman and A Christmas Celebration, performed by the entire group. Other program highlights are an assortment of Christmas music by Stan Kenton performed by the MPC Jazz Ensemble, a spoof titled The 12 Days After Christmas by the MPC Chorus, Suscip Israel by the MPC Chamber Singers and a special arrangement for two pianos titled Christmas Fantasia, performed by the MPC Piano Ensemble.

Groups are directed by Don Schamber (Jazz Ensemble and Concert Band), Sal Ferrantelli (Chorus and Chamber Singers), and Wade Parks (Piano Ensemble).

Admission to the concert is $2.50 at the door. For further information, contact the MPC Music Department, 646-4200.

Non-perishable food, money collected Dec. 8

The Alliance on Aging Monterey County Food Bank and KMBY radio will co-sponsor Shop and Share Day at Del Monte Center from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8. KMBY will broadcast from the gazebo at Del Monte Center, inviting listeners to come down and contribute non-perishable food or money to assist the unemployed, senior citizens on fixed incomes and low-income families this holiday season.

The Food Bank serves as a clearing house for donated food, which is then distributed both directly and through other agencies serving low-income people.

Bob Glick, project director of the Food Bank, reports that additional donations of food are needed as seasonal unemployment rises and the high cost of living in Monterey County impacts seniors and others on low incomes.

The increased need for food is occurring in California and throughout the nation as the plight of the poor becomes more pronounced. The non-profit Food Research and Action Center, which monitors federal food assistance programs, reported an increase of more than 20 percent in the demand for emergency food provided by private charities. In San Francisco, soup kitchens are experiencing a huge increase in the call for their services.

Donations can be made during Shop and Share Day at Del Monte Center or by calling the Alliance on Aging Food Bank at 372-7843.

Choral Society to perform

The Monterey Peninsula Choral Society's 23rd season will open with its "Music of Christmas" concerts at 8 p.m. Dec. 14, 15 and 16 in the Carmel Mission Basilica.

Tickets are $8 and can be purchased by sending a check or money order to P.O. Box 272, Carmel, Calif. 93921.

The choir's main work will be Giacomo Puccini's Messa di Gloria. Soloists will be John MacAllister, bass and baritone; and Dan Parkerson, tenor. The Monterey Peninsula Chamber Orchestra will accompany the choir.

The 1984 "Music of Christmas" concerts will mark the society's first performances under the direction of David Rupert, who took over the music director's position from Haymo Taeuber. Maestro Taeuber directed the choir for 16 years.

Rupert brings more than 10 years of musical experience to the Choral Society. He is an alumnus of the University of Arizona, Tucson, where he majoried in vocal education, and he has been involved in choral music and musical comedy in Arizona and California since he left college. A Santa Cruz resident, Rupert directs two choirs in that city, The Masters Society and the Community Men and Boys Choir, in addition to his work with the Monterey group.

Tickets for the Choral Society's Christmas concerts are usually sold out by Dec. 1. For ticket availability, please phone 625-5610.

THEATER REVIEW

BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

Remembrance of Cole past

THE MONTEREY Peninsula College Players offer an exercise in reminiscence with Cole, an evening of mostly music, strung together with biographical bits about Cole Porter, and seasoned with a little dance.

This is a big show. Big stage, big cast, big orchestra, comparatively. Contentwise, it is big too — 39 songs are sung in more or less chronological order, paralleling the progress of Porter's songwriting career.

Cole is not a play or anything even resembling one. It is a musical revue. So it's a question of whether you think you will enjoy hearing 39 songs in a row and picking up a few tidbits about Cole Porter. The full house at last Friday night's performance responded with enthusiasm. To me, it seemed like a little too much of a good thing.

The biographical framework established at the outset locks the show into a chronological survey of Porter's music. Although it is a genuine treat to hear revived such memorable numbers as "I Love Paris," "Anything Goes," and "Night and Day," many equally unmemorable songs, some clearly juvenalia, could have been cut from the show without being missed.

The setting for Cole is big and ambitious. Three-tiered platforms adorn an otherwise bare stage, with scrims of changing color, sometimes informed by slide projection, making up the backdrop.

Although the vivid background colors combine well with the chrome-edge platforms to create an atmosphere of smooth elegance, the cumulative effect of the setting is flash without content. After many color changes, the backdrop becomes just another color, just as "Dizzy Baby" becomes just another song among too many other songs.

Director Sid Cato manages a large cast well, and choreographer Lucretia Butler has brought good sense and pleasing discipline to the chorus lines. Costume designer Constance Gamiere dresses the case with suitable elegance and provides a couple of purple patches of theatrical razzle-dazzle, notably the Statue of Liberty costume worn by Dodie Harris singing "The Lost Liberty Blues."

Musical accompaniment is provided by keyboard, trumpet, sax, bass and percussion, under the direction of John Jay Espino. This group deserves credit for backing an ambitious show with a big sound. Occasionally, the orchestra seems to attempt to compensate with loudness for lack of fullness in the sound, and this does not work. But most of the time, the accompaniment is fine.

In a 15-person cast of fairly uniform ability, three performances stand out. Leila Knight is gifted with a fine voice and a comic talent, a winning combination for musical theater. Her rendition of "Make It Another Old Fashioned, Please" combines delightful singing with a convincing character sketch. Larry Ayo's "You Don't Know Paree" is captivatingly wistful, and Conni Ross's "Laziest Girl in Town" is the soul of tuneful insouciance.

Those who lament the passing of the age of elegance will particularly enjoy this sentimental journey into the music of Cole Porter. In spite of the problems in the material — dramatization, for example, would have enlivened those biographical bits — the evening is pleasing enough.

Hannukah celebrated in Monterey

The Monterey Peninsula Chapter of Hadassah will present a Hannukah celebration at the regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 11 at Congregation Beth Israel, First and Park Avenue, Monterey. A luncheon including traditional potato latkes will be served at noon for $4 per person. Reservations for the luncheon are essential and may be made by calling 624-1043 or 624-4727.

The program at 1:30 p.m. is open to all at no charge and will include a menorah-lighting service, with emphasis on the hope for freedom of Soviet Jews, followed by Hebrew and Israeli songs by Ann Schultz.

'A Christmas Carol' opens at Cal Rep

JARION MONROE (left) portrays the misery-inducing Ebenezer Scrooge in the California Repertory Theatre production of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol. The cast includes Susan Hegarty (center) and Barbara Lane. A Christmas Carol begins its holiday run this weekend.

Little Angels Rest, Little Angels in Flight

The Staff Players Repertory Company and the Children's Experimental Theatre combine talents to present the saga of runaway orphans, Little Angels Rest and Little Angels in Flight.

The productions open Thursday, Dec. 6, at Carmel's Indoor Forest Theatre and continue Thursdays through Sundays until Dec. 16.

Little Angels Rest is the name of a Victorian-era orphanage run by the cruel Gramonica Gouge, played by Gwyneth Hovick.

Reservations are advised for this series, presented for eight performances only. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $6 general and $4 for students, seniors and military. The theater is at Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. Tickets: 624-1531.

A Christmas Carol

Complete with music, song and surprises, Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol will preview Thursday and Friday, Dec. 6-7, at The California Repertory Theatre. It will open to a sold-out performance on Saturday. The show then continues at 8 nightly, except Mondays, through Dec. 23. Wednesday and Saturday matinees are scheduled at 2 p.m.

Cal Rep is the area's only full-time professional theater. Sold-out performances include Dec. 8 and 19 evenings and Dec. 12, 15 and 19 matinees. Tickets range from $9 to $13, depending on the day of the week. Cal Rep is in the American Tin Cannery building around the corner from the Monterey Bay Aquarium, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove. Tickets: 372-4373.

Cole

The words and music of Cole Porter come to life in the Monterey Peninsula College Players production of Cole, which continues in the MPC Theatre.

Directed by Sid Cato, the revue continues at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through Dec. 15. There will be a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, Dec. 9.

Tickets are $6 general admission, $4.50 for students, seniors and military, and $3 for children under 12. Tickets: 646-4213.

Hit Parade — A Salute to the '40s

A tribute to the song hits and performers of the 1940s continues at the Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre. Hit Parade — A Salute to the '40s will feature tributes to such performers as Lena Horne, Mickey Rooney, Frances Langford, Rosemary Clooney, and the comedy team Burns and Allen.

The revue plays Fridays through Sundays until Dec. 16. The show begins at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 7 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is $3. The Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre is on Fourth Street and Fourth Avenue, behind the Beiter Dental Clinic at Fort Ord. Reservations: 242-6337.

With Love, Cupid

An original musical by Barney Hulse and Ellen Saunders about Cupid's problems in uniting lovers is staged at The Wharf Theatre on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. With Love, Cupid, will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 7-8, and 8 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 9.

Tickets are $6 and $8. Reservations: 372-2882.

Olio Revue

Highlights of the past year's olios distinguish the annual Olio Revue, presented each holiday season at California's First Theatre, Scott and Pacific streets, Monterey.

The Troupers of the Gold Coast will bow at 8:30 p.m. each Friday and Saturday at the oldest theater in the state. Tickets are $5 for adults, $4 for seniors and teens, and $3 for those 12 and under. For reservations, call 375-4916 after 1 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday.

Voices from the High School

The Robert Louis Stevenson School Players present Peter Dee's series of vignettes about growing up too quickly in America. Voices from the High School plays at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday only, Dec. 6 through 8. The school is on Forest Lake Road in Pebble Beach. Information: 624-1257.

Enchanted forest brought to life at Fairgrounds

'CHRISTMAS in an Enchanted Forest' will be the theme as the 16th annual Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Festival of Trees opens Thursday, Dec. 6, at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

The Festival will feature 30 trees commissioned for decoration early this year. Those decorated trees will remain on display at the Fairgrounds through Saturday, Dec. 8. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

On Monday, Dec. 10, the trees will be distributed to members of the Monterey business and professional organizations that commissioned them.

Festival attractions in addition to the trees will include a country store where gourmet delights from pepper jelly to popover aprons may be purchased. A museum shop selling gifts from around the world and a boutique of handcrafted Christmas items will also be open daily. Complimentary refreshments will be served each day of the festival.

Volunteers worked throughout the year not only to organize this annual fundraiser for the Museum, but also to make the ornaments for each tree. Local artists also participated by donating original miniature works of art that were displayed in the museum in the fall.

Admission to the festival will be $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12 who are accompanied by an adult.

League plans benefit at theater

Not even Ebenezer Scrooge would say "Bah, Humbug!" to a special fundraising benefit that the League of

center stage for the event, a special presentation of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol that will be performed on Sunday, Dec. 9, by the California Repertory Theatre.

Since all proceeds from the 2 p.m. matinee performance will go directly to the League so that it can continue its tradition of voter service and education, those who attend the play will have a chance to offer a very special gift to their community, according to League President Lorita Fisher.

That gift is a knowledgeable electorate, she said. "In return, informed voters can give this country a government that is both responsible and responsive to its citizenry," she added.

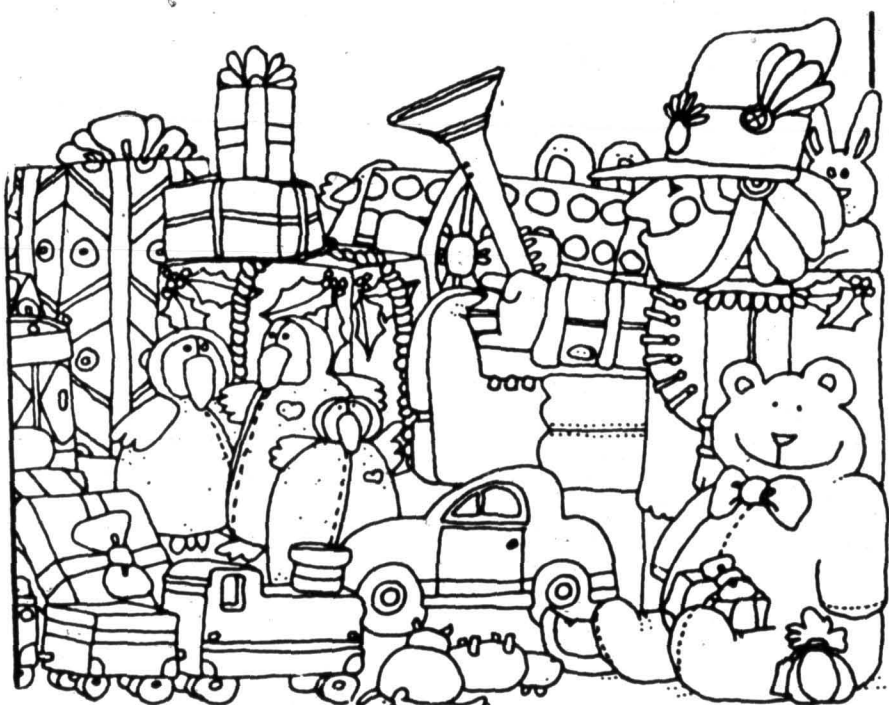

Theatergoers will also have the chance to enjoy a festive holiday occasion with their friends and family for a ticket price that includes intermission entertainment of Christmas carols and complimentary refreshments.

Admission is $12.50 for adults and $8 for children under 12. Tickets are available only through the League of Women Voters.

For further information and to order tickets, please call 375-0122.

ART NOTES BY SAM COLBURN

Abstraction and perspective

ALL PAINTING and drawing is abstract, as you are not going to reproduce the optics of the human eye on a flat surface. The artist can, in sculpture, make a facsimile of a human body, but without life this is still abstract.

Many people ask me why I don't make the subject matter look as it does. They have an entirely mistaken idea about art. Sure we have developed through the centuries ways of representing life, but the paintings or drawings of animals done in caves by early man had a vitality that has nothing to do with rendering or perspective.

What I am concerned with is form and feeling. You know there are no two people who draw, paint, or sculpt, whose work is exactly alike unless they do so on purpose. A person's imagery is his own private possession, but in a society where Big Brother demands conformity the personal eye is corrupted.

We have not had many spontaneous expressions of art on exteriors here in Carmel. It was a marvelous idea for artists to envelop the Al Rents "john" down on Carmelo at 13th with drawings. A number of years ago there was a service station at the corner of Mission and Sixth avenues. It was called "Carl and Chan's."

Jay Hannah had a radio repair shop in the building next door which became the famous Rinky Dink restaurant. Jay went to Carl and asked him if he would mind if artists painted panels on the backside of the building that housed the lube and oil department. Carl said fine, so five artists did incomparable works under a big sign that read: "Tires and Batteries."

Jay Hannah sold his business to a strange man who went to

Carl to request permission to paint out our murals. Carl, the dumbhead, agreed to this, and our splendid efforts vanished under a heavy coat of flat white oil paint. The new owner of the radio shack then nailed two parallel strips of wood on the wall. Each morning he slid panels between the strips. On each one was an Egyptian dancer, and together they formed a frieze that was Kitsch Supreme.

CURRENTLY showing at the Beech's Gallery in Carmel is Linford Donovan, an artist long resident in Carmel and a member of the Carmel Art Association. She is exhibiting a series of screens concerned mostly with traditional costumes and characters of Japan and with the beautiful flowers of that country.

There is exquisite workmanship here involving the use of gold and silver leaf. Her use of space is very effective in "Birds of Happiness." The faces of her people are painted differently than the rest of the pictures in those works involving the human figure, and this is very puzzling.

Carl Bowman is a man who started out to be an artist, got sidetracked into plumbing for many years, and now is back to painting and drawing. He is having his first one-man show since his reconversion at the California Repertory Theater in Pacific Grove.

These paintings, which will be on view through Dec. 6, are all of faces. There is no deliberate attempt at portraiture. It is true that each work evolved from an actual person, but the images on each canvas come from a very personal imagery. Each face has volume and mass, and is well related to the rest of the surface. I do not see them as being sad or glad, but there is form and feeling.

Carl had a two-man show at the East-West Gallery in San Francisco in 1927, during which year he also received a California State Scholarship. He had paintings in the San Francisco Art Association annual exhibit in 1930, '31 and '32. At present he is a member of the Central Coast Art Association and the newly organized Monterey Peninsula Foundation of Art.

Perhaps the "fun" show of the year will open Dec. 4 at the Waterfront Gallery on Cannery Row and will run through Jan. 5. After three years of welding the brush, Virginia Morse presents her choice of interpretations of "People You Know." There are 70 canvases and they are personalized studies of local people.

That local financier, real estate developer and patron of the arts, Frank Work, is represented in several stances. Virginia's ability is to grasp some essential "look" about a person. This she is able to do from photographs. Most of these oil paintings are strong on line and the color is on the object.

She will show four new works in which the color is stronger and of larger, more varied mass so that the picture surface has "form." She has done Lola Steinbaum and Virginia Fry in studies that show this evolution.

Well, I am in this show, so is her husband John Boit Morse, and Karen Lyon, Virginia Adams, Bill Stuart, Jessma Smith, John Stark, Frank Ashley, and many others. Go and see how your friends look to Virginia.

Sheinwold on Backgammon

by Alfred Sheinwold

DOUBLING PROBLEM

You are White, and it is your turn to roll in the diagrammed position. Do you double? If you do, should Black accept the double?

Most experts agree that you should double in a pure running position when your "pip count" is at least 10% (of your own count) less than your opponent's pip count. He should accept the double if your lead over him is not more than 15% of your count.

In the diagrammed position, you will have to bear both men in from your bar point. Then if you roll a one, you can take one man off your 1-point; if you roll a two, you can get one man off your 2-point, and so on. If you count up what you must roll to bear off all of your men, assuming you never waste a single pip of any roll, you will need a count of 57 pips on the dice.

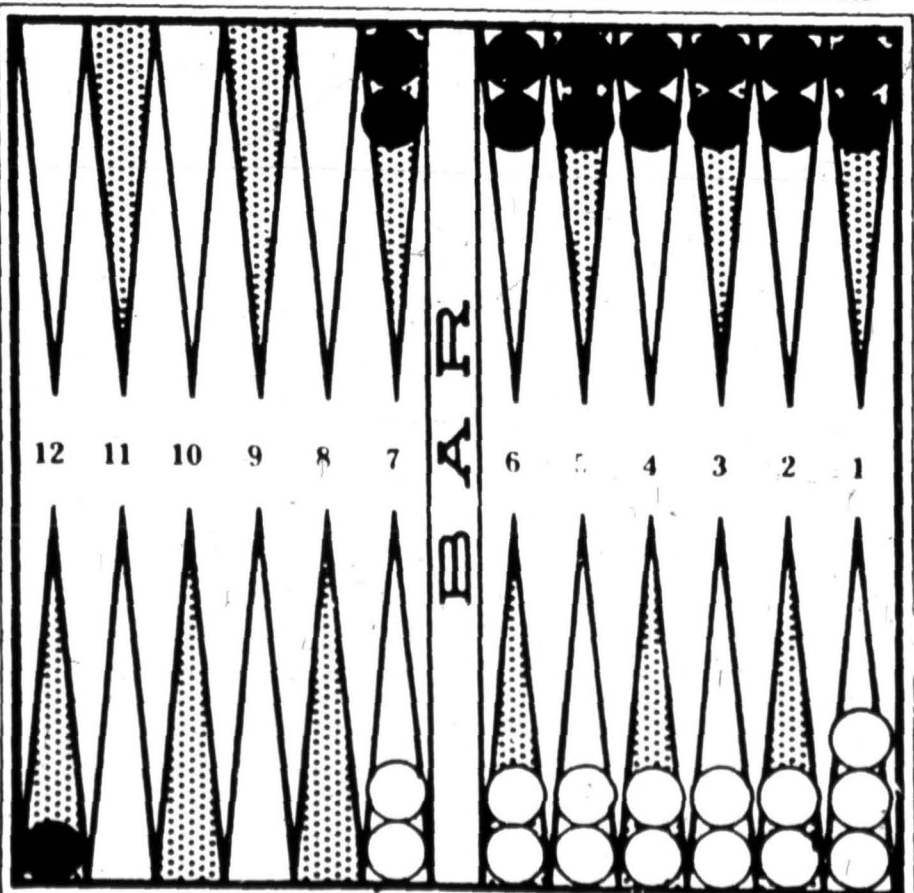

Using the same method, Black needs 69 pips. Your lead is 12 pips or about 21%. You would have a reasonable double if your lead were 6 pips; your double with 12 pips is too formidable for Black to accept.

If counting the pips is too much like work, note that the positions are identical except for the White man on the 1-point (which bears off with a roll of 1) and the Black man on Black's mid-point (which comes in with a roll of 7 and then off with a roll of 6).

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1 plus a stamped self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, CA. 90053. ©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Misrach retrospective to open

AN EXHIBITION of color and black and white photographs made by Richard Misrach during the past 10 years opens in The Friends of Photography Gallery Friday, Dec. 7, and continues through Jan. 13. An opening preview and reception for the artist will take place in the newly refurbished gallery at Carmel's Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday.

Since 1974, when Richard Misrach published his first book, Telegraph, 3 A.M., he has produced several distinct bodies of work and has developed a vision that is unique in its approach to both subject matter and the photographic medium. The photographs in this exhibition, which are drawn from the results of a remarkably prolific decade of work, emerged directly from his earliest photographic project, a portrait of the street people of Berkeley's Telegraph Avenue. This initial series was created during the 1960s, while Misrach was a student at the University of California. For both practical and esthetic reasons he photographed at night using a flash. The understanding gained from this first project led to the work that is on view at The Friends Gallery this month.

Misrach applied his knowledge of the effect of electronic flash in the creation of a series of nighttime landscape photographs made of desert cactus near Los Angeles in 1975 and 1976, and at Stonehenge in southern England in 1976. These black and white images were printed full frame and were heavily toned, producing warm and often "split" toned colors in the print. The combination of very long exposures and the selective use of a flash imbue the inanimate landscapes with an unusual dynamism and drama. The uni-directional light of the flash strangely illuminates objects in the foreground and allows background shapes to fall abruptly into obscurity, while the long exposures brighten the night sky and record the paths of light made by stars and moving clouds. The desert cactus photographs were reproduced in a second book, Richard Misrach, published in 1979.

Continuing to explore artificial illumination at night during the late 1970s, Misrach turned to color photography and a much larger presentational format. His approach to the landscape changed from expressing the power of a particular place to showing vegetation in a more abstract manner. The photographs in the Vegetation Series were made in Hawaii, Los Angeles and Louisiana, but the place was less important than the formal and visual qualities. Made with a medium-format camera and often enlarged to 30-by-40-inches, the unusual coloration in these prints is the result of the distortion of the film's color balance through extended exposures and a mixture of light sources.

In 1979 Misrach received funding to photograph the monuments of ancient Greece. He had wanted to make images of these ruins at the time he was working on his desert cactus and Stonehenge projects, but had never found the opportunity. While these photographs again show an interest in the aura of a particular place, Misrach continued to work in his now-preferred medium of color photography.

In 1981 a major change occurred in Misrach's photographic work when, for the first time, he began to photograph during the daytime and moved to a large-format negative. The interest in daytime photography had emerged two years earlier, while working in Louisiana, but it was not until he began a new series in California's San Jacinto Desert, east of Los Angeles, that natural light became an overriding concern. This ongoing body of work will eventually be arranged into ten "cantos," each revealing a different aspect of the desert and its inhabitants.

For the first time since Telegraph, 3 A.M., Misrach has, in the past two years, focused a portion of his attention directly on contemporary life and on man's effect on his natural environment. His recent imagery retains its concern with the drama and beauty of the landscape, yet while his previous series derived visual meaning from the nighttime use of the medium, the current photographs are more directly seen and receive their impact from a more straightforward photographic response.

Richard Misrach was born in Los Angeles in 1949. He received a B.A. degree in psychology from the University of California, Berkeley, in 1971; he is primarily a self-taught photographer. He received National Endowment for the Arts Fellowships in 1973, 1977 and 1984, and a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1978. He was the 1976 recipient of The Friends of Photography's Ferguson Grant. This exhibition is the first major retrospective of his work. For more information call 624-6330.

ROUNDUP

Stitchery exhibit continues

The Lucas Blok exhibition originally scheduled this month in the Marjorie Evans Gallery at Sunset Center will not be shown.

The collection of Winnie McFarlin Lay stitcheries will remain up through Dec. 28. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and the gallery is closed weekends. The Marjorie Evans Gallery is on Eighth and San Carlos in Carmel.

'Focus Pocus' movies screened in P.G.

The Pacific Grove Art Center will highlight two John Luther works in its series of Focus Pocus Friday Nite Art Films on Friday, Dec. 9, in Gallery 19. Admission is $3 for non-members and $2.50 for members.

Xfilm, 1966-68, is described by the filmmaker as "my very personal exploration of film as an abstract, kinetic medium." Portrait of the Poet as James Broughton (1974-80), is called

"among the most precisely made, technically perfect and dazzling of current films."

The program begins at 7:30 p.m. The center is at 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove.

Drusilla Keller reception planned

A solo exhibit of oil, watercolor and acrylic works by Drusilla Keller of Monterey will be highlighted by an artist's reception from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 7.

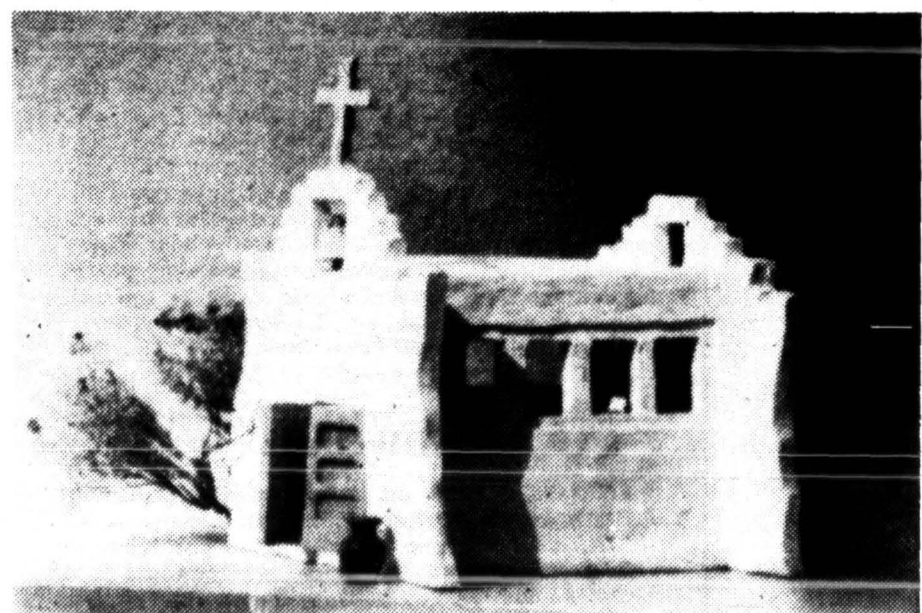

The reception and exhibit are in the Seaside City Hall Gallery, Harcourt Avenue, Seaside. Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. The gallery is closed weekends and holidays.

Carl Bowman feted at Cal Rep

The Monterey Peninsula Art Foundation will sponsor an artist's reception for Carl Bowman at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 6. The reception will take place before the 8 p.m. performance of A Christmas Carol at California Repertory Theatre, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove.

Bowman's paintings are currently displayed in the lobby of the theater.

Ceramic churches, pueblos shown

CERAMIC churches and pueblos made by Sarah Beserra will be displayed at Handworks in Carmel.

Sarah Beserra will exhibit her hand-built ceramic churches and pueblos at Handworks in Carmel during the holiday season. Each mission or adobe is constructed from clay slabs.

They are both low- and high-fired, covered with underglazes, bisque stains and low- and high-fire glazes. Most are built to house a candle for nighttime use indoors or on a patio.

The artist was inspired while photographing in New Mexico and California. The soft, sensuous lines of the adobes contrasted with the sharp shadows they cast and inspired Ms. Beserra to try to capture the structures in clay.

Sarah Beserra exhibits her work in Laguna Beach, San Francisco and Sacramento. Handworks is on Dolores at Seventh in Carmel. For more information, call 624-8198.

Because the bristles are bent to reach the sulcus. The sulcus is the space between the teeth and the gum where the bacteria grow, cause caries and bad breath. The outer bristles are curved and soft to protect and clean the gums. The center bristle is short and stiff to clean the top of the teeth.

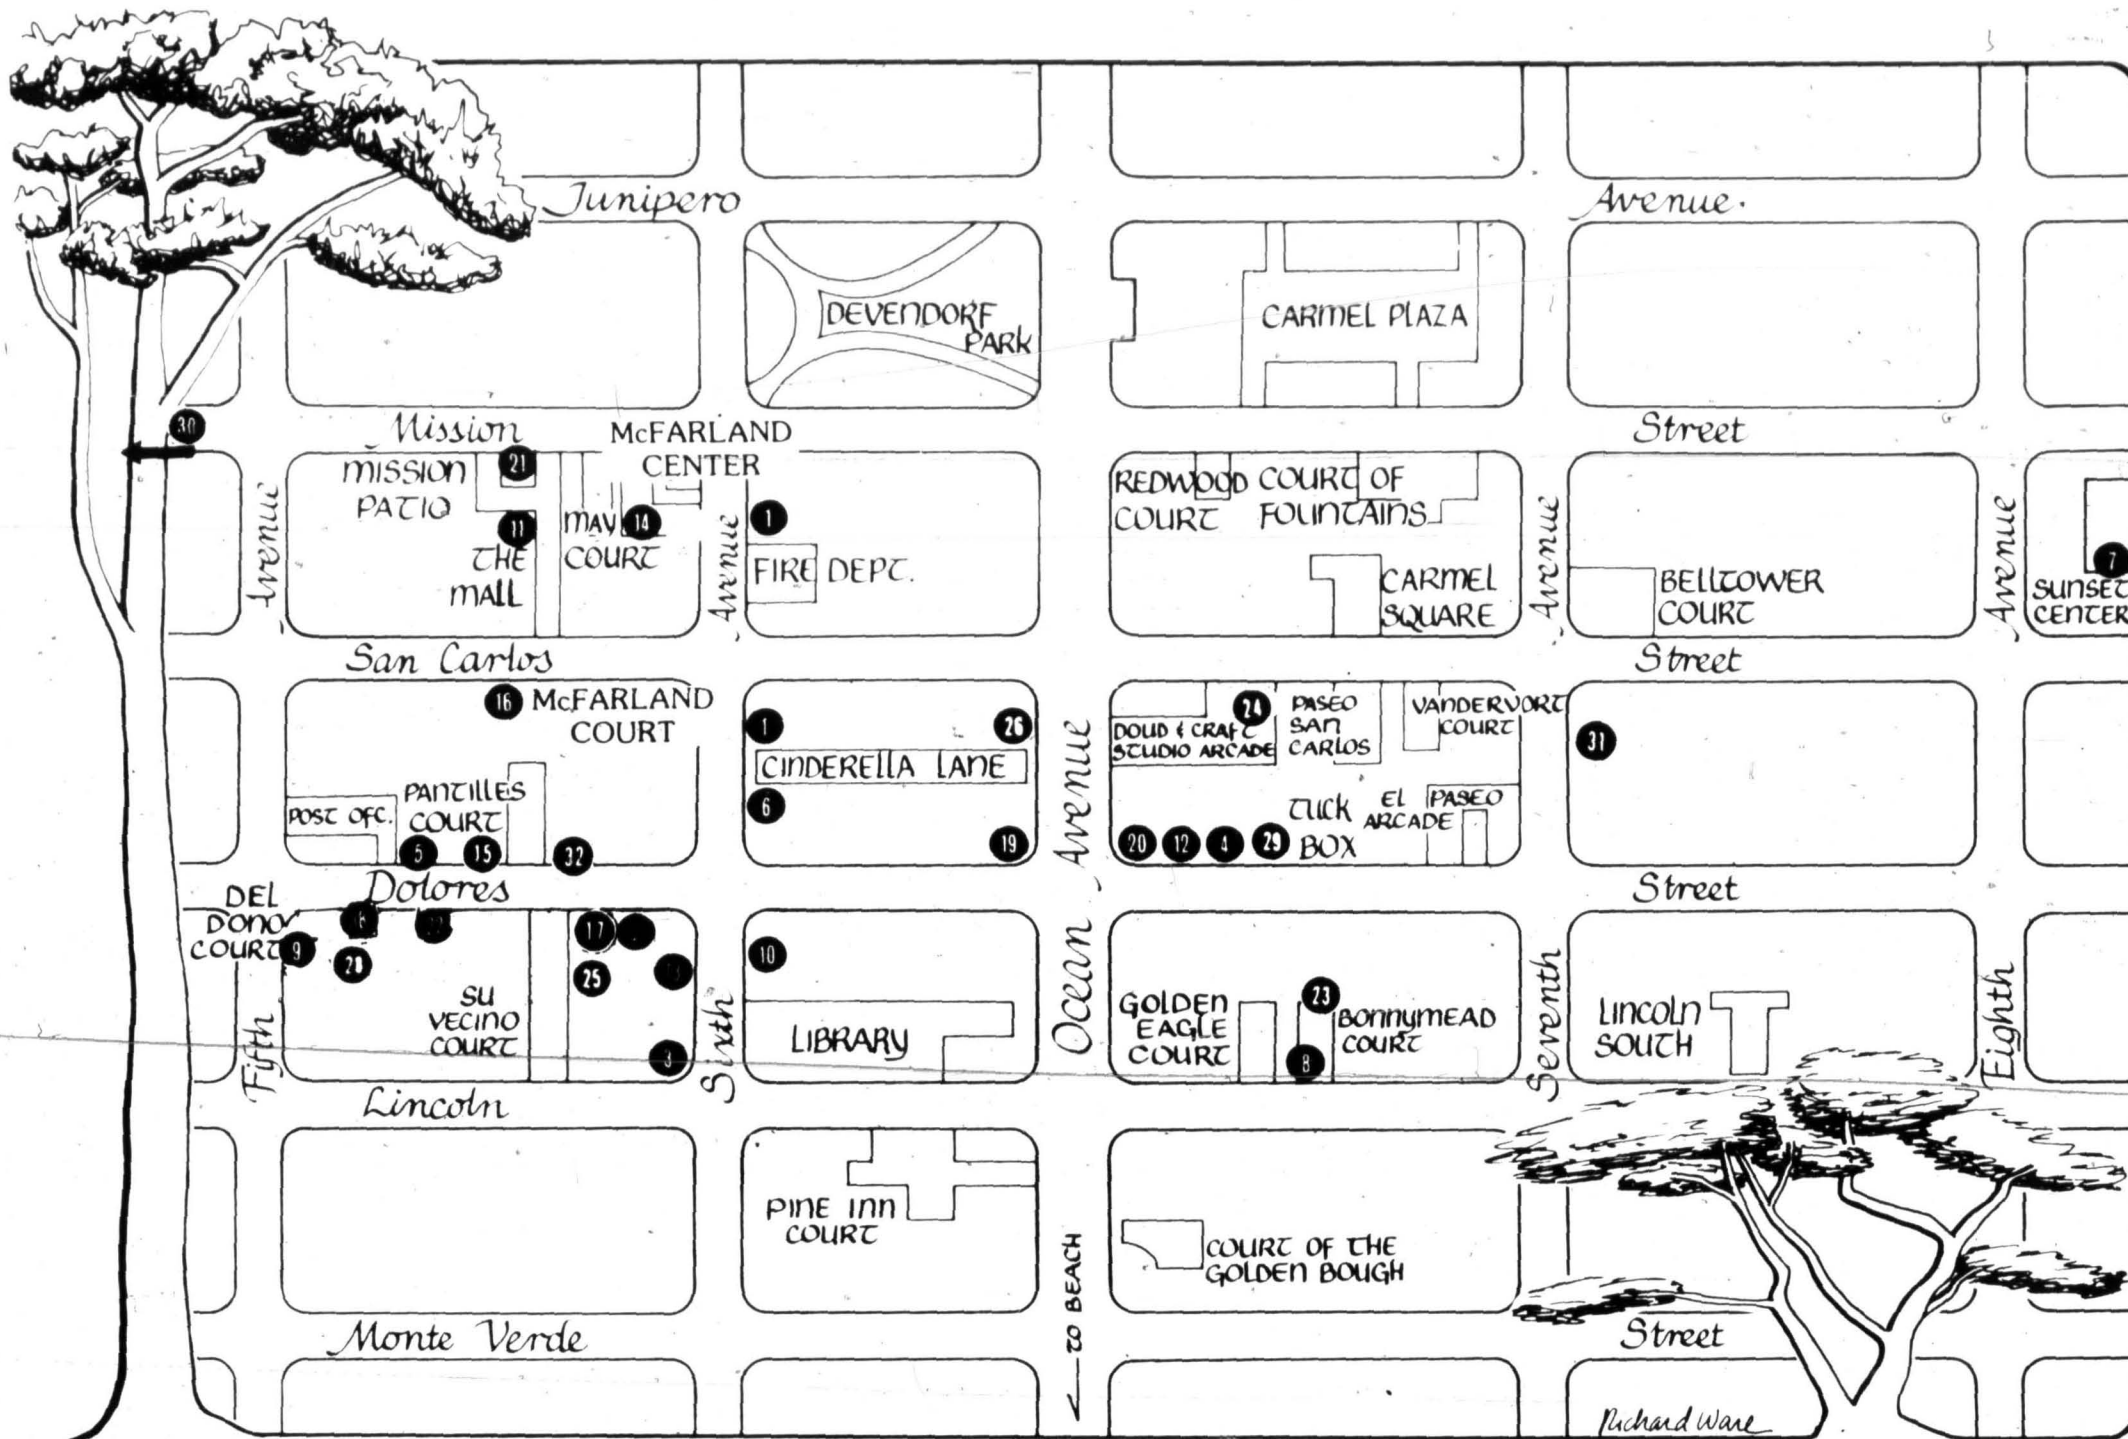

SPIRULINA: THE FOOD OF THE FUTURE IS HERE NOW.
Spirulina Plankton is the most basic substance in the whole food chain. Spirulina's high-quality protein contains 18 of 22 amino acids required for health — and all eight essential amino acids in the correct proportion. Protein such as this is rarely found in non-animal sources, so Spirulina is popular with vegetarians. And Spirulina's protein, which provides sustaining energy to the human body, is up to 95 percent, digestible as compared with beef's 20 percent. Several kinds of unusual proteins called biliproteins which occur naturally in our own bodies are found in Spirulina. Spirulina is low in calories, fats and sodium and amazingly high in efficient proteins (containing 60 to 71 percent) and all the cell salts and enzymes for body metabolism.

Morley Baer exhibit debuts at Photography West

MORLEY BAER, renowned West Coast photographer, will be the guest of honor at an opening night reception given by Photography West Gallery, Carmel, from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 7. The gallery is located near the southeast corner of Dolores at Ocean, and the public is invited to attend.

Baer will autograph copies of his new book, The Wilder Shore published by Sierra Club Books in the award-winning Exhibit Format Series, at the reception. This event marks the opening of an exhibition of Baer's photographs that will be on display at the gallery until Jan. 17. The show includes recent color images done for the book as well as black-and-white classics selected from Baer's 35-year career as a modern master of landscape and architectural photography.

To Morley, this multifaceted celebration of his work represents the fruition of a childhood vision, for his fascination with California began as a boy in Toledo, Ohio. Born there in 1916, Morley grew up enthralled by his grandfather's tales of the wonderful West. But it was only after earning a master's degree in theater arts at the University of Michigan and serving as a photographic officer in the Navy that he finally was able to pursue his dream. With his wife Frances, Baer moved to California in 1946. They now reside in Carmel Valley. Friendships with famous local photographers Ansel Adams and Edward Weston, assignments for architectural photography, and a continuing love affair with the California countryside soon launched Baer on the career for which he is so well-known today.

The Wilder Shore features 95 images by Morley Baer, the largest collection of his landscape photography in print. Thirty-five of the images are reproduced in the four process colors from 8-by-10 transparencies made especially for the book, and 40 are printed in duotone blacks from original 8-by-10 negatives made over a period of three decades. A limited edition of the book, of-

Gold Coast foothills and majestic mountains, and into the dramatic deserts of the California borderland.

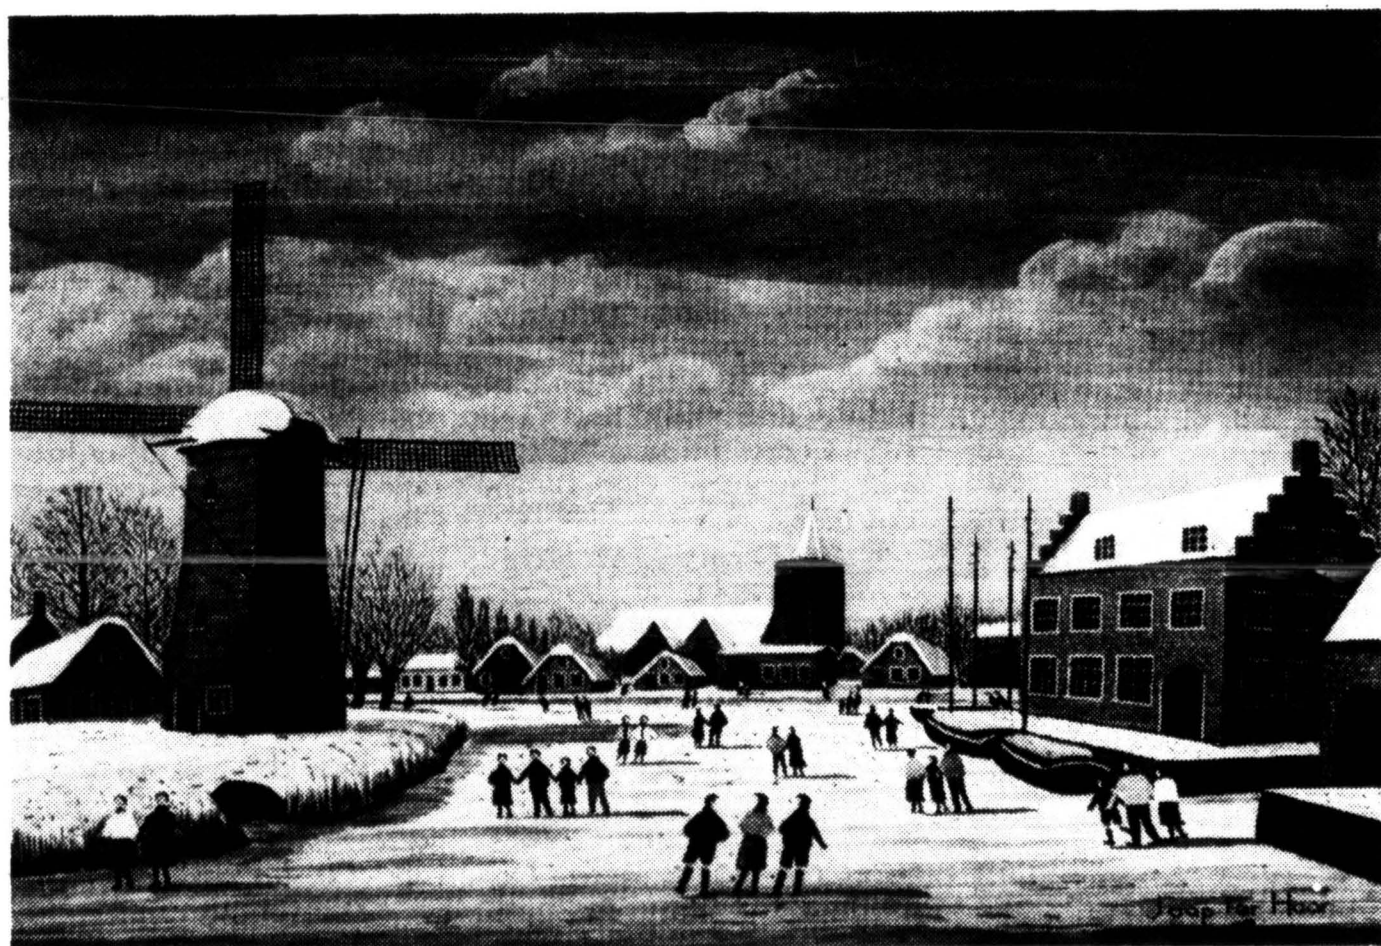

Baer's images convey the power of natural forces and forms, the charm of rural structures left by pioneers, and the emotional satisfaction of intimacy with this great land. Wallace's text combines a sharing of his own vivid impressions of each region with an appreciation of the influence of this spectacular environment on many well-loved writers, including Richard Henry Dana, Jack London, Robert Louis Stevenson, Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Ambrose Bierce, John Muir, Mary Austin, Robinson Jeffers, Henry Miller, Frank Norris, Raymond Chandler, John Steinbeck, Joan Didion and Gary Snyder.

Keeping that freshness of outlook of the "kid from Ohio," and having a sense of the dramatic characteristic of the student of theater arts, Morley Baer freely admits that photographing California is for him "almost an emotional thing." Along the central coast, especially in the area from Bug Sur to San Simeon, Morley responds to "a spiritual sense" surpassing all other areas of the country.

A recipient of the American Institute of Architects' Gold Medal for photography, Baer's images have been a regular feature of House and Garden and Architectural Record magazines. He spent 1980 as a Fellow of the American Academy in Rome and has traveled extensively.

Photography West Gallery is open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Holiday show opens at Zantman

THE ZANTMAN Art Galleries in Carmel will open a Christmas Show with a reception on Saturday, Dec. 8. A variety of works artists represented at the galleries will be featured at this annual event, including Jaap Ter Haar, who painted Clear, Cold Skate on the Canal, pictured here. Reception hours are 4 to 7 p.m. at the gallery on Sixth Avenue and Mission in Carmel. For more information, call 624-8314.

Nathan Oliveira presents lecture, slide show

California artist Nathan Oliveira will present a lecture and slide show of his work 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, in the Samuel F.B. Morse Auditorium at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, 425 Van Buren, Monterey. The public is welcome. Admission is $5, $3 for students. It is sponsored by Monterey Peninsula Art Foundation, a non-profit organization.

A major survey of Oliveira's work from 1957 to 1983 took place at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art during October and November. Harry Hopkins, director of the museum, said in the show catalog: "We celebrate the achievements of a man of prodigious personal and professional talent. Oliveira's painting, print making and teaching activities have been a vital force in the art world for over 25 years."

The retrospective is currently at the Laguna Beach Museum through Jan. 20 and will then travel to Madison Art Center, Wisconsin, and finally be shown at the University of Nebraska.

Oliveira is affiliated with the John Berggruen Gallery in San Francisco, Charles Cowle Gallery, New York City, and Richard Gray Gallery in Chicago.

This year he received the Academy Institute award in Art, American Academy and Institute of Art and Letters.

Oliveira is a professor of art at Stanford University.

Robinson's landscapes exhibited in Carmel

"MY ART is a selection of choice," explained landscape artist E. John Robinson. "I search for two things. First I must find a special moment.

"I believe in capturing the atmosphere, a particular mood or a second in time when the elements combine to form a lasting impression."

Robinson is among the few artists whose work has been selected four times for the cover of Reader's Digest. Those four paintings alone have been seen by more than 120 million people around the globe.

A new selection of landscapes by E. John Robinson can be viewed at the Lindsey Gallery, on Dolores at Fifth, Carmel.

Robinson's painting style, as he describes it, lies somewhere between "impressionism and painterly realism. Nature provides an infinite variety to begin with, and then artists add their own interpretations. Each work is a fresh approach, a further diversification.

"I haven't quit painting seascapes, but I think seeking a new challenge is like starting over again, and I enjoy that." The challenge is different in a seascape, he noted. "In a marine scene I attempt to capture the feeling of water and elements in constant motion. The landscapes may just catch a glint of sunlight on a shadowed hill, or the way leaves turn in the breeze."

His attitude is positive, and he is quick to admit, "I enjoy what I am doing and I am probably one of the happiest people on the West Coast. What I am doing requires thinking, timing and planning, and when everything finally satisfies me, then everything else seems to fall into place. If a painting also makes someone else happy, then I am doubly rewarded. Every artist has a place; every attempt, every dream enlarges itself."

His landscapes are now shown at Lindsey Gallery in Del Dono Court. For more information, call 625-2233.

Wah Chang screens movies

Residents of the Monterey Peninsula will be offered a special treat for the holiday season with the showing of four short films made with stop-motion puppets. The footage will be run off by Wah Chang of Carmel Valley, a sculptor at the Carmel Art Association.

The program, which is for children and adults, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8. One film is about dinosaurs, another depicts teaching the alphabet and the other two are Christmas songs.

The films involve an animation process that will be shown on the screen. The motion is achieved through the use of 24 frames per second. The sound is recorded first, and the animation is made to concur with the sound.

Wah Chang will bring some of the puppets so the audience can see how they are made and operated. This program is offered to the public free of charge by the Carmel Art Association, which is on the west side of Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. Refreshments will be served.

MARK GODFREY'S Signals, Paintings about Painting will be shown at the Pacific

THE PUBLIC is invited to attend a preview of the December exhibits shown at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove. The reception is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 7.

In the Gill Gallery, Neon Neon, a series of works by Joanne Crawford and Karen Heisler, will be shown. Both are of the third generation of artists who "have responded to the boldness and sensuality of neon." They own and operate Neon Neon, a workshop and gallery in San Francisco.

Etchings, printings and paintings are represented in the New Hall Gallery. The artists are Phillip Hurtig, an award-recipient with a bachelor's degree in painting and printmaking from San Jose State University. He has exhibited at the Gallery LaLuz and the Taos Fine Arts Center in New Mexico and Terrance Gallery in Palenville, N.Y.

Karen Jelenfy of Monterey studied drawing at the Corcoran School of Art as well as Monterey Peninsula College. She has exhibited widely on the peninsula.

Jeffery Jelenfy studied printmaking at the Portland School of Art and teaches etching at the art center. His works are frequently exhibited on the peninsula.

In the Photography Gallery, a Night Photos series by Eric Johnson, Ray Baumann and Bill M. Jeffcott will be featured. Johnson, with an M.F.A. from the University of New Mexico, has exhibited throughout the United States and Europe. He currently teaches photography at Cal Poly.

Baumann, a student photographer, will exhibit experimental works using long exposures and employing the Cibachrome process. Jeffcott is a New York actor and director turned lensman. "I want the photographic image to transcend itself and communicate emotionally to the viewer," he stated.

Gallery 19 will be punctuated with Signals, Paintings about Painting by Mark Godfrey. These works deal with the basic formal elements of shape, color, space, texture, scale and second-level elements of composition, unity and proportion. Diagonal zig-zag lines based on the lattice grid system are placed over a field of various colors.

The exhibitions will remain up through Jan. 6. For more information, call 375-2208.

WARM, COMFORTABLE CONTEMPORARY

This very special redwood and glass 3 bedroom, 2 bath home is one of the most desirable properties we have to offer. Constructed of quality materials throughout, including redwood interior paneling, tile, wood floors, it has 3 fireplaces, a sauna and hot tub located in the deck. Views overlooking the Garzas and lower Valley. A wind protected, private patio on the East side is bordered by a lovely, low maintenance sprinkled garden. We do not exaggerate when we say this home is in mint condition and ready for immediate occupancy. Very favorably priced at $335,000.

FALL IS IN THE AIR

Especially falling prices. Here's a $30,000 price reduction on this contemporary 3 bedroom immaculate home. Great location on the sunny side of Carmel Valley. Pool and patio for outdoor enjoyment. Tiled kitchen, rec. room, workshop-studio. Owner willing to listen to creative financing proposal. $215,000.

VIEWS & SUNSHINE

If you like spectacular views and warm sunshine, you should see this custom built Redwood home. Over 2000 sq. ft. with 3 bedroom, 2 bath, river rock fireplace and modern kitchen. Large deck with hot tub and an oversized 2-car garage. All this on a 2½ acre view site. An excellent value at $225,000. Call today for an appt. to see.

LOCATION & VALUE

Two of the most important factors in buying a home. The location of this custom built 3 BR, 2 Bath home on a sunny acre lot in Country Club Drive. Over 2000 sq. ft. of living space, plus a 2 car garage. Large rock fireplace, sunny patio, room for a pool. A large assumable loan plus a very motivated seller make this home a great value at only $214,500. Call today to see.

OCEAN FRONT HOME

NORTH SUR COAST

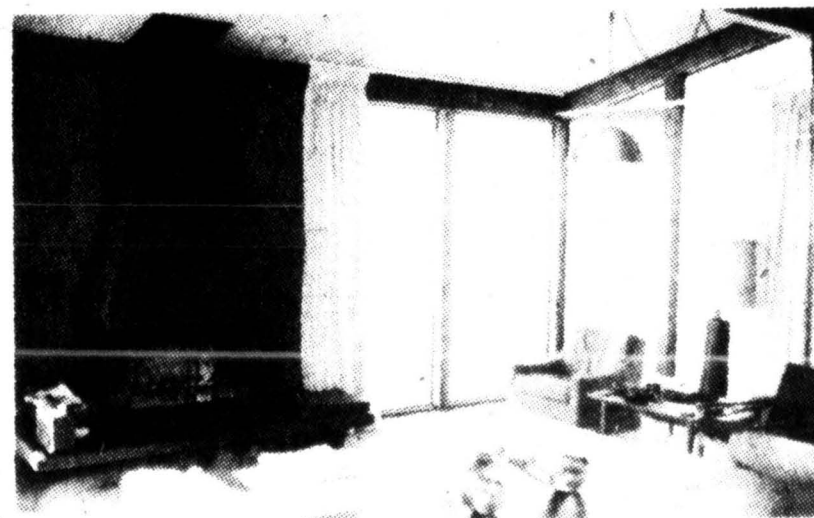

A short drive down the Scenic Highway brings you to the driveway of this compact home on its beautiful 2-acre site, completely protected from the highway by a huge knoll. Total privacy, only minutes from Carmel is only one advantage of this offering.

The picture above is taken from the protective knoll and demonstrates the relationship of the residence to its site. The constant glory of sea, sun and surf is part of every day life in this immaculate home.

The living room and both bedrooms open onto the deck, where owners enjoy/constant views of marine life and shipping while relaxing or dining. Just beyond are steps leading to rocks and tidepools. Outdoor lighting emphasizes surf action after sunset.

The living/dining room enjoys views from tall windows flanking the metal-hooded raised hearth fireplace. The conveniently located kitchen looks to the ocean over the half-wall separation. Two bedrooms, two baths, utility area, double garage and protected entry all add to the pleasure of this ocean front home on its spectacular site. $750,000.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS • 1984

Set the mood when you set the table with your festive Christmas partyware. Choose from a variety of styles that make holiday parties fun and easy.

A box of Hallmark cards contains a message of Christmas warmth for you to send thoughtfully to your loved ones and friends.

Whether you sip, stir or salute, you'll find this mug makes Christmas all the more merry. It's the perfect gift, even to yourself!

Choose colorful candles in holiday hues and scents. Pair them with candle accessories and light up your home with a seasonal glow!

OVER 350 STORES THROUGHOUT TWELVE WESTERN STATES
Downtown Carmel • Ocean Ave. & Mission St.
Mon.-Fri. 9-7, Sat. 9-6, Sun. 10-6

Sprouse Reitz shopping surprises

If you were under the impression that the Sprouse-Reitz store on Ocean Avenue in Carmel was just another ordinary dime store, then you better guess again. All variety stores should be so well stocked with such an extensive selection of quality merchandise.

Some very fine gift items include black marble pastry sets (perfect for making croissants!), Papal ashtays, mugs and decorative pieces in the black iris pattern; copper kettles, Whitman samplers, Timex wrist watches, 14K gold chains and earrings, cut glass and crystal perfume atomizers and beautiful mugs for coffee, chocolate or hot buttered rum.

Manager Sam Shoup is particularly proud of the high quality merchandise you can find in his Sprouse-Reitz store. It has one of the best selections of jigsaw puzzles in town, and a complete Hallmark collection including cards for all occasions, calendars for everyone on your gift list, and a whole selection of candles.

Sprouse-Reitz has a wide assortment of boxed Christmas cards and some lovely limited edition Christmas plates. Naturally, you'll find a great selection of children's toys and stocking stuffers, stuffed animals, and plush slippers for good little boys and girls.

You can save yourself a lot of time and trouble by stocking up on Christmas decorations, gift wrap and bows, and Christmas tins for all of those home-baked gifts. There's also a wonderful selection of Christmas gift boxes in lots of shapes and sizes.

Anyone who has had to wrap a beautiful Christmas gift in an old shoe box at the last minute will appreciate knowing where to find a good selection of gift boxes without standing in line.

Make a point of visiting Sprouse-Reitz this holiday season. In addition to the necessities you look for in a variety store, you'll be pleasantly surprised at the marvelous things you'll find here in town. It's open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 10 a.m. till 6 p.m. on Sunday.

NEED NEW running shoes? Sprouse Reitz's complete new Hallmark line features these cute stockings among its many Christmas giftware special buys.

IT'S THE SHEEP. Only Icelandic wool has the qualities necessary to create Hilda of

Icelandic woolens at Hilda Ltd.

Local customers and visitors to Carmel can now find those beautiful Icelandic woolens from Hilda Ltd. that were once only available in select department stores. New on Ocean Avenue (between San Carlos and Dolores streets), this Hilda Ltd. store is truly one of a kind — the only store devoted exclusively to Hilda Ltd. woolens outside of Iceland, where owners Tom and Hanna Holton make their home.

"In fact, everything about these incredible jackets, sweaters, capes, coats and accessories is unique," says store manager, Diane Swayne.

The secret, you see, is in the sheep. Or more specifically, in their fleece. Introduced into Iceland 1,000 years ago by Vikings, the sheep have evolved a long outer coat for protection against wind and rain, a thick inner fleece for warmth, and a wool rich in moisture and soil resistant lanolin.

The centuries of breeding have produced hundreds of subtle earth and dark sky tones in the wool's color — all natural shades created by mother nature herself. The result is 100 percent natural warmth and beauty, without the weight.

The story behind this highly successful business is just as intriguing, and takes us back to the sheep. Those strange, shaggy looking creatures gave Tom Holton (local boy, Pacific Grove, class of 1950) and his Icelandic-born wife Hanna, the idea to produce beautiful woolens to share with the world. That was nearly 20 years ago, and what began as a "living room operation" has grown to become one of the world's largest cottage industries.

The people at Hilda Ltd. in Reykjavik (where their main factory is located) as well as hundreds of artisans all over Icelandic villages, have combined their best natural resource with their unequalled craftsmanship and talents to produce a line of woolens sought after by discriminating buyers in 25 countries around the world.

Those items include handmade pieces that you can also find in the Carmel store, such as sweaters, mittens, scarves, slippers, hats and caps. All of the handmade pieces are signed by the artisan who created them.

Everything you find at Hilda Ltd. will make you anxious for the least excuse to bundle up in the lightweight, beautiful warmth of these Icelandic woolens. And if it's a fire you want to snuggle by, don't miss the beautiful sheepskin rugs — in natural shades of those "funny looking sheep." You can hardly ask for anything better.

Manager Diane Swayne invites you to visit Hilda Ltd. from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and Saturday and on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Seating Greetings.

The Original Balans.

Balans Variable™ makes an ideal Christmas gift. This is the chair that introduced a new concept in seating to the world. It is patented and manufactured only by Westnofa.

Our designer's original has a padded seat and two padded knee cushions, but no back. Resting on curved rails of laminated beechwood, it rocks and flexes, allowing motion and variation of body position.

The seat on the Balans slants forward. When sitting on the chair, your knees rest on the cushions. Your body balances itself naturally, tension in the lower back is relieved and the need for a back support is eliminated.

People admire the graceful lines and quality workmanship of the Balans Variable™. To appreciate its true beauty, however, one must sit on the chair and use it. Balans treats your body so well, it inspires the creativity of your mind.

FUTONS & SUCH

639-B LIGHTHOUSE AVENUE NEW MONTEREY • 373-2443

HOURS: Monday-Saturday 11-6 • Sunday 1-5

KIM BOWEN, manager of Bloomers, models a Lore silk chemise that comes in black, red, ivory and peach. Bloomers, located in The Barnyard, has a scrumptious line of designer silk wear that any woman would love as a gift this Christmas.

Give a futon for Christmas

Futons and Such, the alternative sleep center, has settled into its new expanded location at 639-B Lighthouse Ave., Monterey. It can now offer an even wider selection of beautiful sleeping alternatives for people who are, literally, tired of conventional box springs and mattresses.

So what are futons? Store manager Shirmaine Jones explains:

"The way the Japanese traditionally made their beds was a layering of two-inch mattress of all cotton batting, hand-tufted inside cotton muslin — an all natural therapeutic sleeping surface. Because of the pliability, they can be covered (in gorgeous decorator fabrics!) and used for seating."

"The shikibuton is another version of the futon, made of polyurethane foam which can be folded up and put away — or used by itself or within a solid wooden frame, as a couch or chair," she added. "Needless to say, these can be a lifesaver in the guest room, or for easy hideaway storage when you have overnight guests, visiting relatives, or unexpected holiday company."

In both the traditional cotton batting and the foam, they are a therapeutically firm surface and far less expensive than conventional firm mattresses. You also can order comforters in your choice of decorator fabrics to match or complement the futon covers.

Futons and Such also has tatami mats, (in three-by-six-foot sections) which are the traditional Japanese flooring made of firmly packed rice straw and woven rush weed. They're a pleasure to walk on and a great surface beneath a futon because they provide excellent circulation. Caring for a futon is easy — cotton batting is aired and sunned to dry and fluff the cotton. They are never washed, and never dry cleaned.

Futons and Such also features some wonderful accessory items like traditional Japanese room dividers or shoji screens which are beautiful room dividers or interesting headboards; and furoshikis, which are all-cotton Japanese wall hangings. They can be ordered in matching or complementary fabrics.

Paper lanterns are an inexpensive way to add a touch of elegance to the lighting in your home, and beautifully handcrafted ceramic lamps come in several sizes and styles from which to choose. Exquisite stained glass hangings come in several delicate Oriental motifs, including an exquisite stained glass shoji screen.

Other interesting gift items include a selection of Balans chairs, the original posture-supporting innovation from Norway, the Backhugger, which provides support for the lower back while driving or sitting, and a special pillow, called "The Pillow" which provides proper spinal support during sleep.

Some delightful and unusual stocking stuffers include herbal and perfumed massage oils, incense holders and Japanese motif matches, windchimes, Oriental note cards and chopsticks, and some wonderfully relaxing tapes — music to soothe you to sleep or unwind your tangled nerves.

Owner Joni Caldwell looks forward to seeing you at Futons and Such in the new location at 639-B Lighthouse Ave., Monterey. It's open from 11 p.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays. How terribly civilized! So do sleep in.

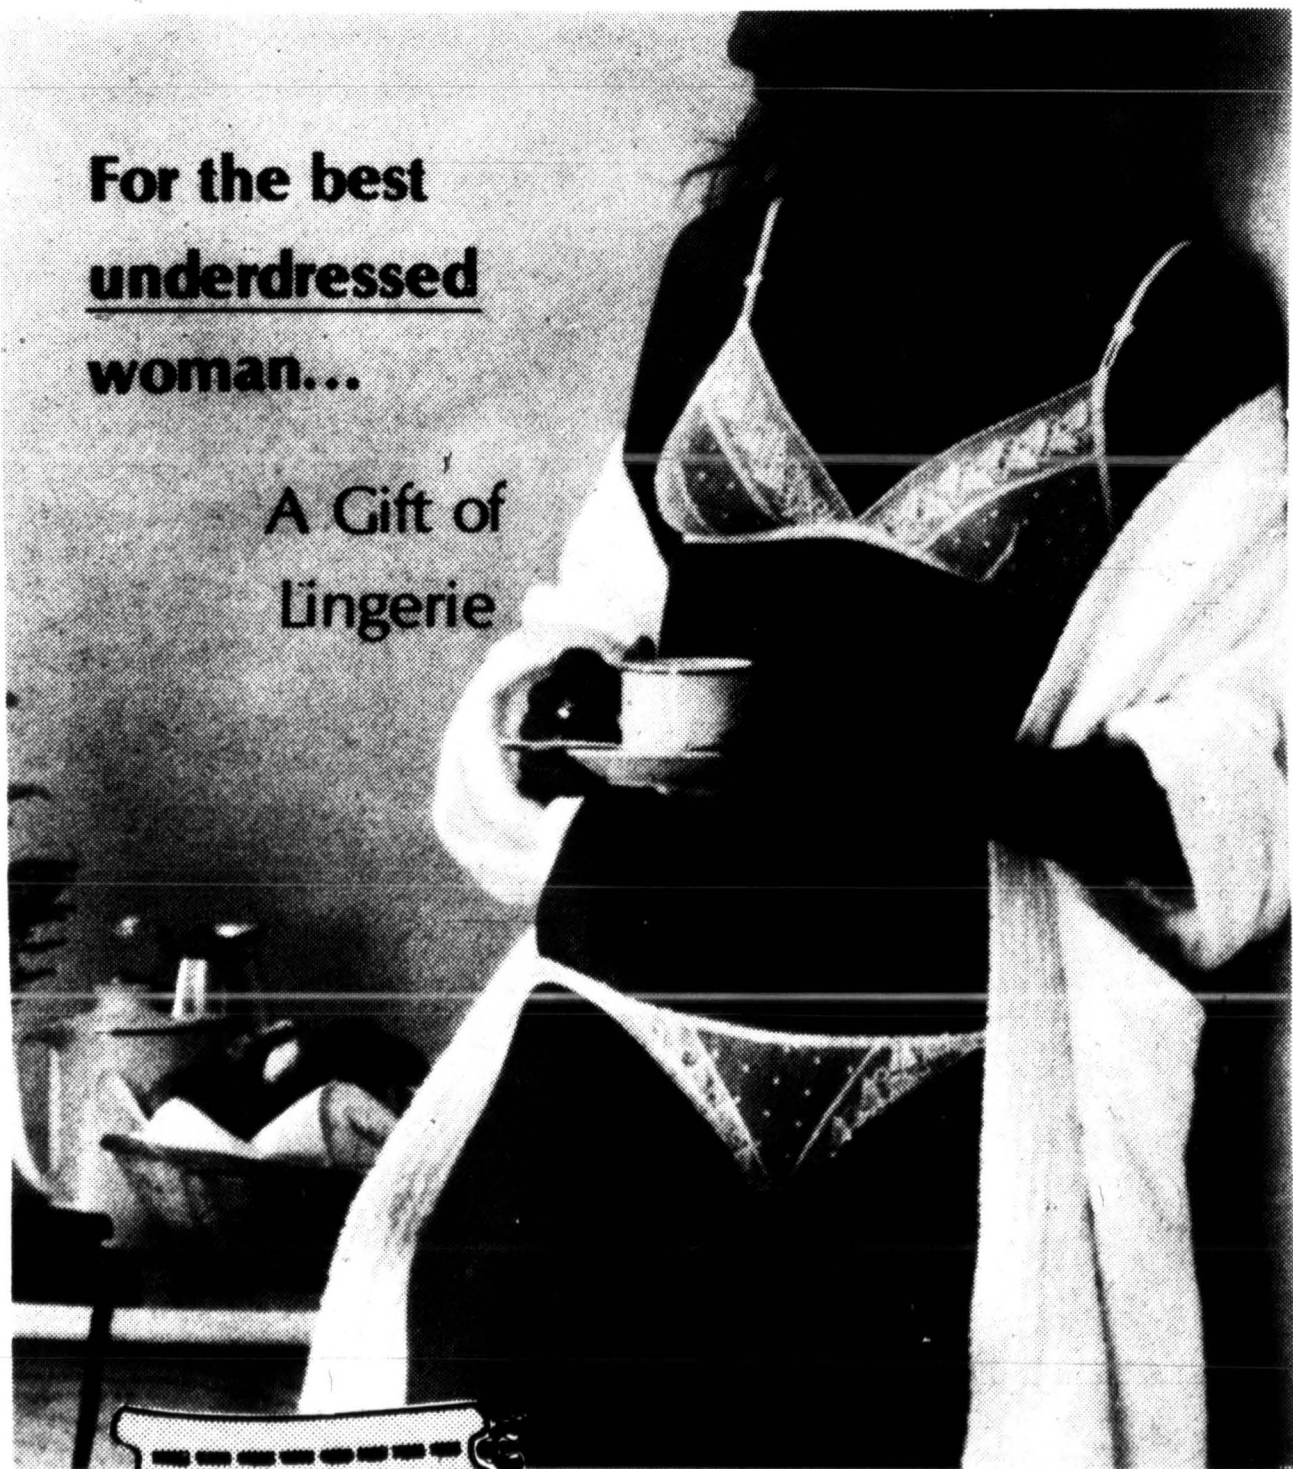

SPECIALTY sleeping is offered at Futons and Such in Monterey as you watch your daytime couch convert into a bed at night. Futons are three pieces of foam held together by a cotton cover. There are many different fabrics from which to choose. The wooden frames are optional in either pine or oak. A tremendous space saver, the futon is an adaptation of the ancient styled cotton one used by the Japanese.

Village Golf Shop is golfer's paradise

Perhaps in all the world there is nobody easier to shop for than a golfer. And you can find just about anything in the world for a golfer at The Village Golf Shop, located at Del Dono Court (corner of Fifth Avenue and Dolores Street near the Post Office) in Carmel.

Owners Larry and Belle James have stocked The Village Golf Shop with just about every necessity, accessory or gift item you could imagine. If they don't have it, it's probably not made! And as you may have already guessed, it's a fabulous place to find unusual golf gifts as well.

The shop carries a wonderful line of fashions for men and women. Ladies' golf fashions, which can be worn on or off the golf course, are from Leon Levin, David Smith and Top Seed, the shop specializes in ladies golf outfits. Women's golf shoes are by Lazy Bones, and also featured are ladies' golf bags and Christmas golf shirts for a holiday round of golf.

In men's wear, The Village Golf Shop has lots of knickers in every conceivable color, pattern and texture. Try on the Deans of Scotland vests and sweaters, LeRoy knitwear, Parker of Vienna sweaters and outerwear for golf in any season. Men's shoes are by Foot Joy and Dexter. Incidentally, the men's sizes run very conveniently to double XL.

Go see what a golfer's golf shop is all about. Larry and Belle have made it very easy for you to find a place to park on Tuesday and Wednesday night, when they'll be open until 9 p.m. through the holidays. Otherwise, you'll find one or both of them there between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., or on Sunday from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

YOU WILL find a complete line of golfing supplies at the Village Golf Shop in Carmel. While you admire their sweaters, be certain you check out their beautiful gifts made especially for that avid golfer on your shopping list.

Upbeat fashions for men at Back Pocket

You can get into the swing of the holiday season or find a fabulous gift with the new upbeat fashions for men at The Back Pocket on Mission Street and Ocean Avenue in Carmel.

There's a whole new fashion flavor in store for you, and some great ways to dress for festive holiday parties and dinners. You'll find tweeds, double breasted gabardine blazers, Raffinate sport coats and dress slacks by Giano Pardini, as well as classic dress shirts by Hathaway and Sero, and sports shirts by Basic Elements, Lauren Scott and Bon Homme. Sweaters to suit every occasion in various colors and styles will appeal to any age or fashion preference. Coats and jackets are by Authentic, Members Only and Rocky Coast.

"This winter season," said store manager Tom Noble, "we're featuring Union Bay polar fleece jackets which are warm, soft and cuddly."

Okay, ladies, start lining up. The Back Pocket also carries some wonderful accessory items to make stocking stuffers, such as silk handkerchiefs, argyle socks, wool knit Talbott ties and assorted colognes and after shaves.

The Back Pocket is also moving into some new lines like the Green Line collection, which features pleated, casual slacks in lightweight blends and sport tops in solids and stripes. It's a fairly conservative fashion look that appeals to all age groups.

You'll also find some great casual fashions such as Guess jeans and Provision pants — for looking good while you dash around town.

As part of the Bruhn family of fine stores, The Back Pocket also offers the unique "Green Frog return policy," which basically says: "If it's not right for you, bring it back!"

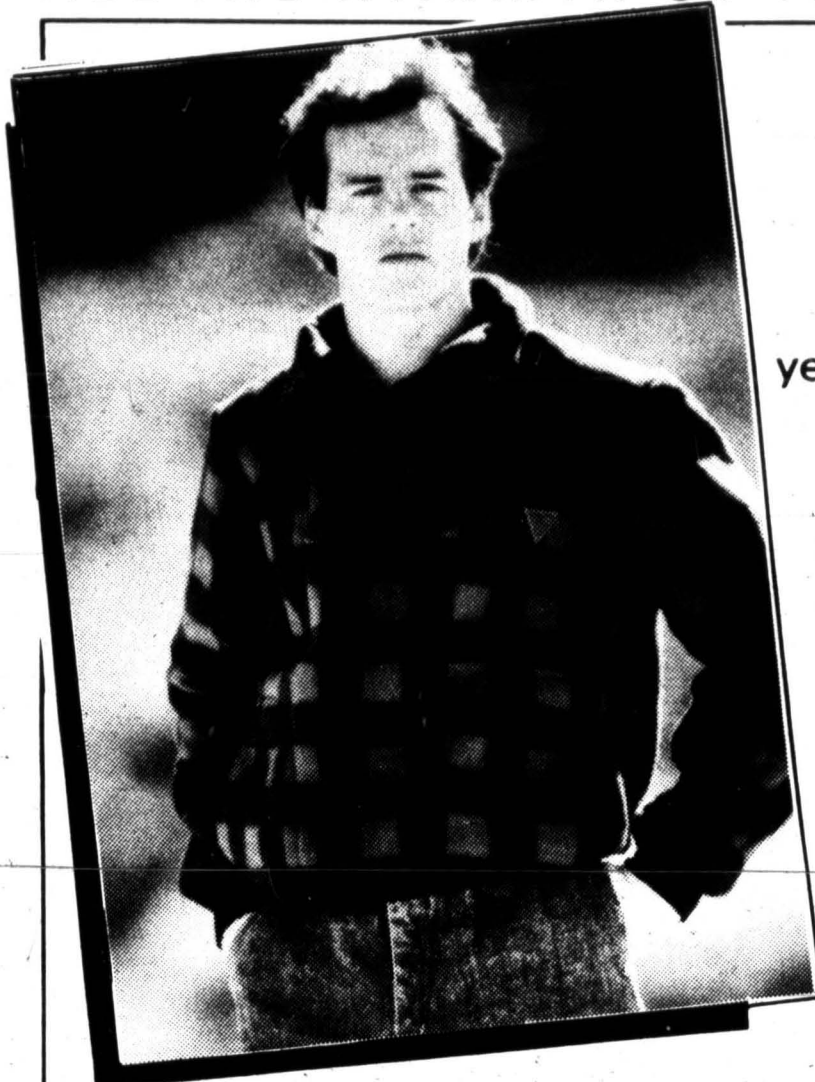

Check out what's new at The Back Pocket; manager Tom Noble and his staff will give you fabulous, personal service with a smile from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Sunday.

TOM NOBLE, manager of The Back Pocket on Ocean Avenue and Mission Street, extends warm holiday greetings to his many friends and customers. Take a look at the fabulous new styles designed especially for that special fellow in your life now on display at The Back Pocket.

ALL THE WARMTH OF THE HOLIDAYS

The warmth of holiday giving will be remembered throughout the year with a special gift from Back Pocket.

If by chance this doesn't fit or the color makes you look green like a little frog... please bring it back.

Carmel Dress Shop has quality fashions

Luckily, there seems to be no end to the wonderful goodies that Gordon and Lucille Winge come up with every season at The Carmel Dress Shop on Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street in Carmel.

This holiday season, you can wrap yourself, or someone you love, in a beautiful fur jacket. The styles include saga mink, corded mink, mink tails and Saga Fox. All come in rich, yummy colors — ranch, autumn haze, black, white, and some that reverse to leather. Furs are a very sensible investment and a gorgeous way to stay warm by day or night. And they go anywhere!

Customers know they can always find lots and lots of scrumptious Lilli Ann dresses in breathtaking colors, many of which are designed for easy care. This season, The Carmel Dress Shop is showing several two-piece Lilli Ann dresses and ensembles which match the Lilli Ann Ultrasuede suits.

And speaking of Ultrasuede, you'll have a hard time finding a better selection of suits, coats, dresses, coat-dresses, jumpers and separates anywhere. There are also several styles available in the new, softer draping Facile, which is made by the same people who blessed us with Ultrasuede.

Snuggle up in a warm, cuddly and colorful two-piece velour sports ensemble in front of the fire, or on a chilly day in town.

Some great stocking stuffers include clip and pierced earrings by Napier and Christian Dior, gorgeous scarves in colorful fashion shades, and a great selection of Ultrasuede handbags and clutches.

Gordon and Lucille have earned a reputation at The Carmel Dress Shop for consistently high quality fashions, warm, personal service, and a knack for knowing what their customers want. You can find what you want at The Carmel Dress Shop from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from noon until 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Sun Studios features unusual jewelry

There couldn't be a business anywhere with a more appropriate name than Sun Studios contemporary jewelry at Carmel Plaza. Because it's on fountain level and tucked behind the escalator, you'll have to look a little harder to find Sun Studios. But it's likely to make your day once you get there.

"We feature designs from the classic to the contemporary and beyond," said Carol Andrews. "That includes pendants, rings, bracelets, earrings, as well as beautiful gold chains from Italy for both men and women."

Lee and Carol Andrews purchased the business in February of 1984 and, with their assistant Tamara Marko, have brought with them a solid knowledge of the jewelry business including esthetics, design, maintenance, repair as well as the principles of gemology.

But one of the nice things about these three is that they're as much fun as they are smart about their business. They will literally put a smile on your face whether you make a purchase or not. In fact, they heartily encourage browsing at Sun Studios, by locals and visitors alike.

"We're really anxious to educate our customers as well as our future customers in all the aspects of shopping for, purchasing and owning fine jewelry," Carol added. "And we're just as interested in providing a solid service within our community, in addition to serving the needs of our visitors to the peninsula."

There really are lots of things you can depend on at Sun Studios. Versatility is one. The staff will work on a custom design with you, or show you some of the designs they already carry by artisans from all over North America. Sun Studios carries exclusive designs from a number of talented designers, and a good number of the pieces you'll see here are created locally.

Expert cleaning and repair of jewelry, whether new or a family heirloom, is always available, as well as honest, reliable sales and service. Here, you won't pay extra for a Carmel address. Stop in from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. You'll be glad you did.

THE SECRET Garden provides a delightful stroll through the flowers and trees at Sixth Avenue and Dolores Street. Special Christmas decor is available for your holiday needs as well as a large selection of patio accessories, such as this lovely swan.

Everything is special at La Porte's

There isn't anything from La Porte's in Pacific Grove that wouldn't make a fabulous Christmas gift — whether it's a piece of fine jewelry, antique furniture, or one of many special gift items.

"One of the reasons people shop here is to find something different," said Sheri Hemphill, who represents the third generation at La Porte's. This is the perfect place to find a gift for that difficult-to-shop-for person on your special Christmas list. But it's pretty hard to imagine anyone who wouldn't be pleased by a gift from La Porte's.

The Jewel Room literally glitters with Christmas colors — red rubies, green emeralds, white diamonds and beautiful pearls. But red is also the color of beryl (a very rare stone from Utah), spinel and garnet, and the colors of Christmas include red, white and green jade; red and green tourmaline and green garnet.

You can be sure that any of the gemstones you'll find at La Porte's have been painstakingly scrutinized for authenticity, quality and value. And you can find some very reasonably priced gift items in jewelry this season, as well. But don't think of La Porte's as just a jewelry store.

"People are often thinking of beautifying their homes for the holidays," Sheri said. "And we've brought in some beautiful Strass crystal chandeliers in all sizes to suit traditional or contemporary tastes. Imported from Austria, Strass crystal is hand-cut and faceted and shows an unmistakable high-lead iridescence.

La Porte's will unveil a very special collection of crystal and sterling that will include everything from candlesticks to bowls, to some very unusual items like Tiffany and Co. flatware from the turn of the century.

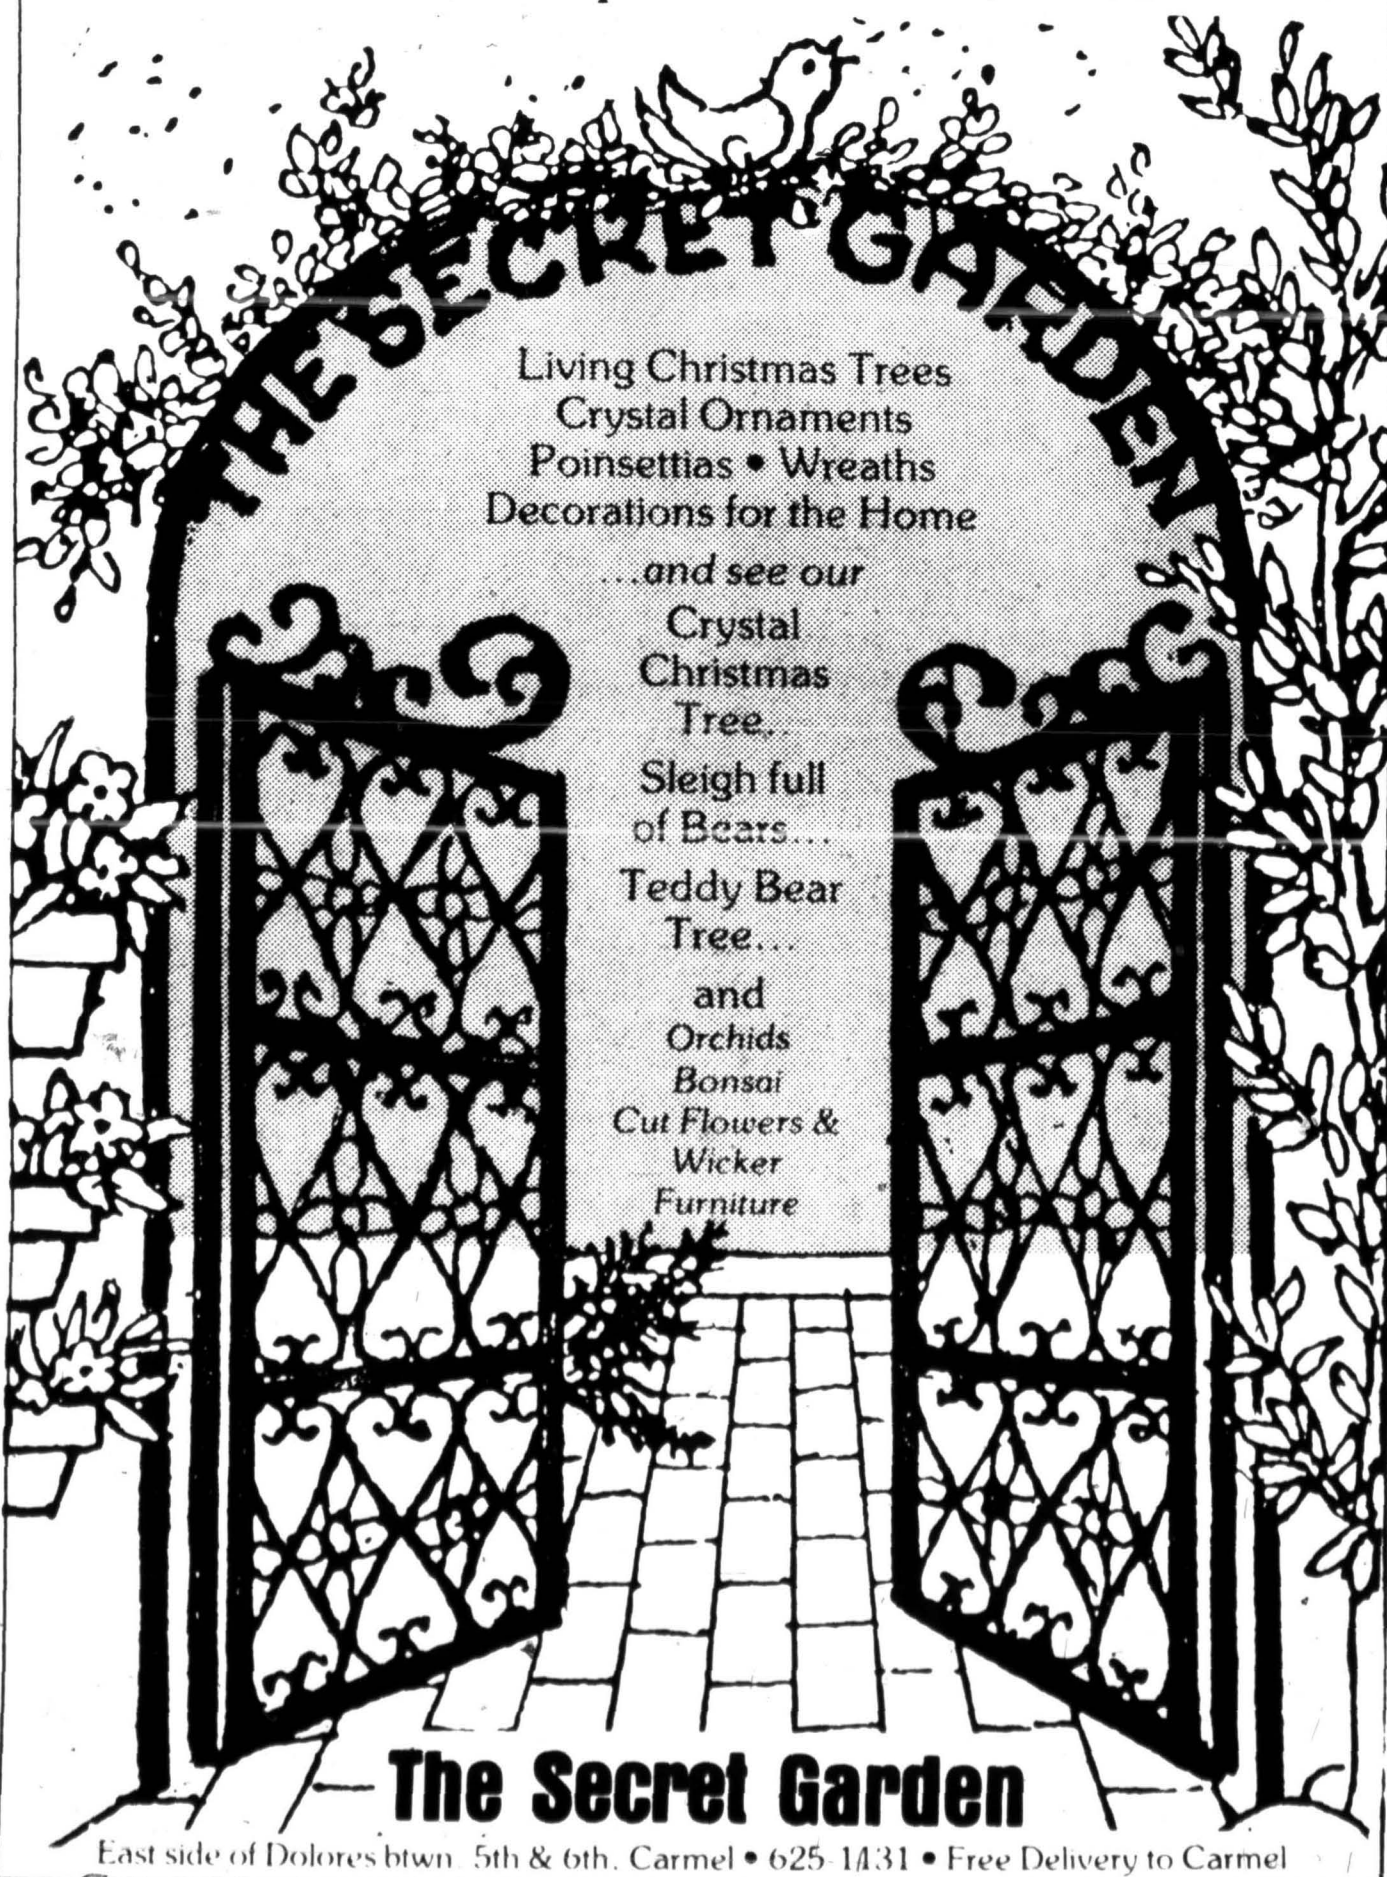

Other distinctive gift items include hand-painted, porcelain demitasse cups and saucers, jade carvings and snuff bottles, and collectibles such as hand-painted bronze animals and birds.

If you're looking for a gift item that can be used in the home or in the office, take a look at the beautiful hand-crafted jewel trees, mounted on rough stones and available in a wide range of sizes and prices. They're the sort of gift that provides the pleasure, beauty and luxury of fine gemstones in an everyday setting.

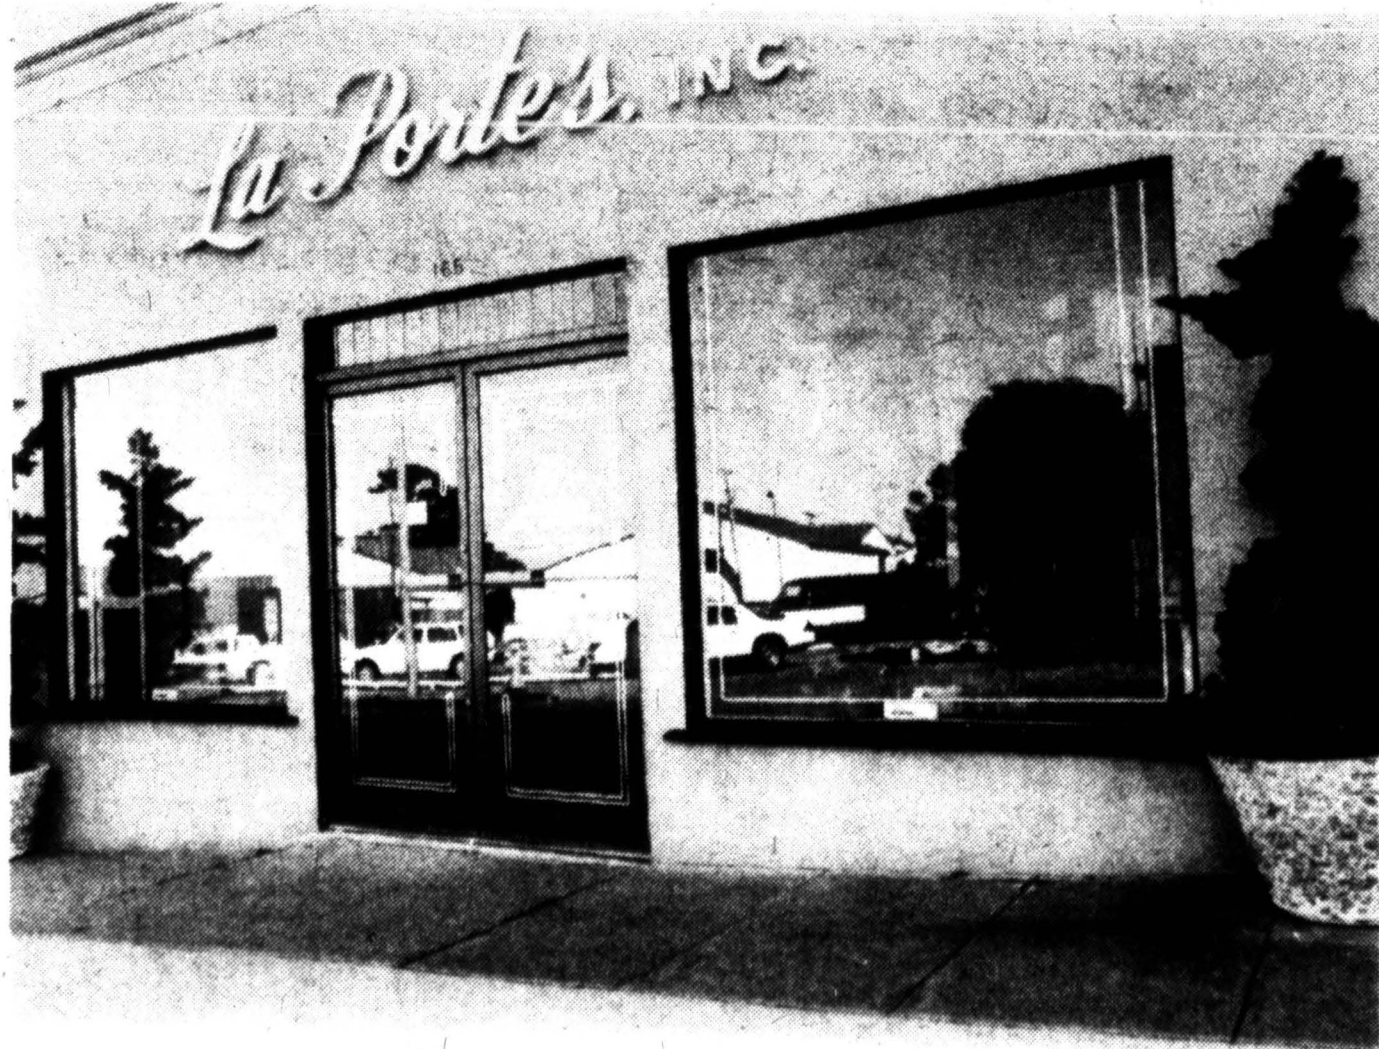

Treat yourself to a holiday visit to La Porte's from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

GREET this holiday season with a stop at La Porte's, 165 Fountain Ave. in Pacific Grove. It carries exceptionally fine jewelry, antiques,

Secret Garden a living environment

"Welcome," reads the little wooden sign. "For the adventurous there is a unique shop hidden down this path. The walk leads to The Secret Garden, and continues through to San Carlos Avenue."

The Secret Garden is plants and gifts, but really much more than that. It is the kind of place you can remember looking for as a child — a secret hideaway, a place to take only your most trusted, dearest friends. The kind of place that was almost a fantasy, except that it was real.

The Secret Garden is located on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues down the hidden pathway next to Em Le's restaurant. It's full of living plants and wonderful goodies for your garden or patio, inside or out. It's a wellspring of beautiful living gifts, in a beautiful environment set to music that sounds like water trickling through a mountain stream.

Secret Garden specializes in bonsai and topiary, and has all kinds of ferns hanging from beautiful wooden baskets. Lots of plants, trees and shrubs are co-mingled with flowering plants — orchids, violets, flowering kale, and cyclamens which flower in the colder months.

Co-owners Shirley Winter and Phillips Wyly have put together a splendid outdoor shop (which is really a geodesic dome) that is so lovely and relaxing you wish it were a place to have lunch or a cup of tea while you browse for a new houseplant, bird bath or fountain for your garden.

Do stop by to see the beautiful Christmas trees Shirley has decorated. There are three theme trees, plus an antique sleigh full of bears. And speaking of Christmas, please consider a beautiful living Christmas tree — Colorado green spruce, Norfolk Island Pine, Monterey Pine, among others.

They'll also give away a free miniature Monterey Pine to the first 100 customers who come in after The Pine Cone christmas guide is published. A great little gift item to find here is a special copy of the children's book The Secret Garden by Frances Hodgson Burnett. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday. It's a place where the sound of wind chimes lingers in your ears long after you've left. What a beautiful place to be!

STOP BY Hanson Galleries on Ocean Avenue and meet Fred Holmes, Linda Silberberg, Lynne Janzen, Joanna Chapman, Robin Johnson, Roy Barton and Edward

Hanson Galleries offer value

A gift of art is a gift to last a lifetime or longer, and represents an appreciable investment in value as well as beauty.

If you've somehow missed a visit to the Hanson Galleries in their Carmel location, then you've missed more than just an art gallery. You've missed a miniature museum of 20th Century masters right here in town.

The Hanson Galleries — which are also located in San Francisco, Los Angeles and New Orleans — have been at their Carmel location on Ocean Avenue near San Carlos Street for more than two years.

"The locals are still discovering us," said gallery director Linda Silberberg. "In a town of more than 80 art galleries, we stand out as the only gallery offering the work of artists of international stature. Our direction is to promote the established as well as the emerging artist on the international art market."

"Our staff is very well trained to handle any questions on investments or portfolio management and we're anxious to show the local community that they don't have to travel to San Francisco or Los Angeles to find the caliber of art they're seeking," Ms. Silberberg said.

The roll call of artists shown at Hanson Galleries reads like an international Who's Who in art. Contemporary artist Rufino Tamayo, who works and lives in Mexico City, has earned worldwide acclaim for his primitive and pre-Colombian etchings.

A series of surrealistic lithographs created by Joan Miro has appreciated considerably since his death a year ago. Christmas in Mallorca, Spain.

There's quite a collection of signed, limited edition graphics and sculpture by Salvador Dali, the master surrealist.

"And we are the peninsula's exclusive Leroy Neiman gallery," Ms. Silberberg said. "We have dozens of signed, limited editions serigraphs. We especially feature his golfing pieces, including '18th at Pebble Beach' which he was commissioned to do for the 1984 Crosby. We'll be featuring 'Golf Winners' in honor of the upcoming 1985 Crosby tournament."

The Hanson Galleries in Carmel feature only one local artist, G.H. Rothe, a native German artist who moved to Carmel five years ago. She's listed in Who's Who in American Art since 1978, and works predominantly in mezzotint etchings.

"It's one of the oldest and most painstaking methods of printmaking, and there are very few artists in the world today who work in that medium," Ms. Silberberg noted.

Ms. Rothe is an incredibly talented and versatile artist and her subjects include dancers, horses, flowers and landscapes. She is also responsible for the beautiful wall mural of San Benancio Canyon at The Hog's Breath Inn in Carmel.

Visit the Hanson Galleries in Carmel from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. seven days a week. Linda Silberberg and her staff of nine art consultants will be more than happy to show you around the gallery, or help you make a beautiful investment in art.

Christmas all year at Holly Berry

STEP LIGHTLY. Hidden behind several beautiful Christmas trees full of local handmade ornaments is a fireplace delight for customers of the Holly Berry located in The Barnyard. While you explore this cozy shop, you'll find many things to adorn your home during the Christmas season.

Joan Morris is perfectly content to celebrate the Christmas season all year — which is precisely how she wound up owning The Holly Berry, now in its eighth year at The Barnyard in Carmel.

"I've always been a nut about Christmas," Joan said. "And the whole idea behind this store is a showcase for original designs in Christmas ornaments. Everything here is handcrafted by artists who all started out as customers of mine. Many of them are local people."

The thousands of beautiful ornaments that Joan displays at The Holly Berry have, literally, come from all over the United States and Canada. They include hand-blown glass bells from Oregon, fimo clay miniatures by a young Monterey Peninsula College student, intricately hand-painted bread dough ornaments from a young mother in Missouri, and cut-out wooden ornaments (with your name, date or message specially done) by a couple from Salinas.

A Carmel woman makes possibly the world's most gorgeous Victorian dolls, and Joan even has an "Aquarium Tree" completely decorated with handmade sea creatures in fabrics, felt, fur and taffeta. The list can go on forever.

The Holly Berry also carries a huge assortment of miniatures and a continual supply of fimo clay kits for making some of your own ornaments. They make great gift items for older children.

"Aside from Christmas gifts, these ornaments make perfect wedding presents, birthday presents or momentos," Joan said. "I have to completely restock everything in the store right after Christmas, because so many of my customers come here once a year during the Crosby."

Joan's love for Christmas evidently runs in the family, because these days you're just as likely to find her son David hard at work in the store. "I started out selling Christmas ornaments at church bazaars 20 years ago," Joan laughed. "And I'm really proud of this store — I've got regular customers from all over the country."

Get into the holiday spirit seven days a week, all year long at The Holly Berry, next to Sylvia's Danish Pastry shop at The Barnyard.

THE STAFF at the Mediterranean Market on Ocean Avenue and Mission Street will be glad to help you select a fine wine, delicious deli food or an imported appetizer for that get-together or special party you have planned during the holidays.

Feast at Mediterranean Market

Locals on the Monterey Peninsula don't know just how lucky they are to have the Mediterranean Market in Carmel right in their own backyard. Some people have to call in their orders from as far away as Alaska and Hawaii.

But they know they'll get the same uncompromised quality and the same warm, friendly and personal service as thousands of local customers have since the Coniglio family took over the business in 1958.

The Mediterranean Market carries gourmet delicacies from all over the world and has an excellent selection of fine domestic and imported wines, a great liquor department, an unbelievable delicatessen and catering section and all sorts of goodies you may have never imagined.

For anyone who doesn't already know, the Mediterranean Market is located on the corner of Mission Street and Ocean Avenue, right next to Devendorf Park. The park is also a great place to take your deli sandwich and salad, especially if you can't wait until you get home or to the office.

But what you see in the deli section — which will make your mouth water — is only a taste of what the staff can do. The answer to "How can I possibly find time to prepare for guests?" is answered in one easy phone call. Phil Coniglio Jr., and his sister Cara Mia Coniglio-Lagemann handle all of the catering for the store which can be a party tray of meats, cheeses, breads and condiments for 20 — or a cocktail party, reception or gala buffet dinner for 300. And Mediterranean Market will deliver everything right to your door. It will even provide you with a complete party bar set-up, including the bartender, in almost no time at all.

And everything is made right there on the premises, including the potato salad, marinades, sauces, dressings and buffet items. You can count on everything to be fresh, real and 100 percent natural ingredients. Three generations of Coniglios will stand behind that promise.

For your Christmas gift giving, the market has everything you'll need, including the basket, bows and cellophane, to make up a beautiful holiday gift basket in any price range you choose and ship them anywhere in the country.

"We're featuring some really delicious Italian goodies for the holiday season," said Cara Mia, "like panforte, a confection made of dried fruits and nuts and rolled in powdered sugar — or panettone, which is an Italian Christmas bread, more like a fluffy cake with bits of dried fruit. You serve it during the holidays as you would cookies."

"One of the most popular gift items we carry are the Monterey Jack Cheese which come in three-pound wheels or half wheels. Every year we ship them all over the country in special mailing boxes, and they make wonderful gifts for out of town friends and relatives."

So what are you waiting for? Call Mediterranean Market at 624-2022 and place your order now. Or stop by between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. seven days a week (including Christmas Eve) except for Christmas and New Year's Day. They'll take care of everything!

Gepetto's is a toy wonderland

Most adults will tell you that toy stores are for children, but Dennis Smiley and Dale Williams at The Crossroads in Carmel know better.

During their two years in business at The Crossroads, they've brought in a delightful selection of classic, imported and handcrafted gifts, toys and collectibles from all over the world. And they've also brought in a steady stream of locals and visitors who refuse to believe that toys are just for children.

There's probably no better collection of teddy bears anywhere on the peninsula. Bears come in every size, variety and costume imaginable, and all with their own personality. Gepetto's even has its very own Gepetto's Teddy Bear with a music box that plays (what else?) "When You Wish Upon a Star."

A special holiday treat is the selection of Zodiac Bears by Peter Bull, known authority on teddy bears who created these adorable creatures just before his recent death in England.

Gepetto's is also known for its porcelain dolls, which are all handmade, signed and numbered. They are created here on the West Coast in the Old World tradition and they are all intricately detailed and costumed from a bygone era.

Gepetto's is an authorized dealer of Nao by Lladro, beautiful handmade porcelains from Spain, as well as the peninsula's exclusive dealer for Chilmark pewter sculptures. Gepetto's also is building a reputation with Doum crystal from France — very clear, beautifully designed miniatures.

Some of the other gifts and collectibles include Italian inlay music boxes, a selection of beautiful glass paperweights from Scotland, and some very unusual miniature carousel horses.

You can always depend on top quality merchandise, friendly, personal service, and a marked improvement in your attitude after a visit here. Shop Christmas hours, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

DISCOVER THE wonderful handcrafted teddy bears, stuffed animals from all over the world and beautiful porcelain dolls as you browse in Gepetto's at The Crossroads. It offers a classic selection of local and imported creations for the holiday shopper.

MAKE WONDERFUL Santas just like the one Kate Flavin holds. Kits for Santa Claus and the Velveteen Rabbit are available in the Cotton Bale at The Barnyard. The stockings, which are full of all those sewing notions you'll need, Kate made from a pattern she bought at the shop.

Make your own Cotton Bale gift

Everybody enjoys a gift that you've made yourself because it reflects time, talent, creativity and lots of love. At The Cotton Bale in The Barnyard in Carmel, you'll find everything you need to sew or hand-stitch something wonderful for nearly everyone on your Christmas gift list.

Owners Carol Owens, Esther Goodhue and Pat Bordonaro have filled The Cotton Bale with beautiful cotton fabrics imported from all over the world. That includes dressmaker cottons, shirting, decorator prints and solids, and wonderful holiday fabrics for napkins, placemats, tree skirts and Christmas stockings. And for some really fun entertaining, Cotton Bale carries polyvinyl coated cotton — perfect for tablecloths and aprons.

There's a huge assortment (visible and on the walls) of wall graphics to suit nearly every age and interest including florals, sports scenes, contemporary designs and children's prints.

Some other interesting gift items are available at The Cotton Bale and in the nearby notions store. In addition to the usual sewing necessities — thread, buttons, zippers and snaps — you can also find beautiful decorative ribbons, belting, cloisonne buckles, children's appliques and baby quilts.

Cotton Bale has kits for making stuffed Santas and other critters. There's also a lovely colorful selection of decorating home fashions — wreaths, ribbons and Christmas stockings to hang on the mantel.

An extra-special gift for the dressmaker in your life would be one of the beautiful sewing baskets that Pat's daughter-in-law has lined with beautiful Liberty of London fabrics — what a decorator touch to add to a sewing kit!

Carol also has pointed out that a gift wrapped in fabric and tied with real ribbon is really two gifts in one — and what a delightfully unique idea for someone who enjoys sewing or creative ideas!

Dream up your own creative ideas at The Cotton Bale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Essentials — one-stop gift shop

One stop at Essentials at The Crossroads in Carmel just might take care of everyone on your Christmas list.

Sergio Gomez and Janet Richards have created the kind of store that puts a little bit of fun into the most mundane of everyday chores. But there's also oodles of goodies for the great times in your life, and some wonderfully original ideas for holiday gift giving.

You can find everything you need to throw a fantastic pizza party. Gourmet pizza cookbooks (pizza is really in, you know), pizza pans including deep dish varieties, pizza paddles (to take it out of the oven), and even wine glasses, aprons and dinnerware.

There's a huge selection of Kosta candle holders, including the new crystal rose style. The store is ablaze with colorful goodies from Marimekko — stuffed sandpipers, dazzling umbrellas, beautiful gift wrap, and a whole assortment of party goods.

It has a very interesting selection of gift books, including some gourmet cookbooks, the new Ralph Lauren Northwoods dinner-ware, some beautiful teak and beachwood serving trays, and logoed ice buckets and champagne corks from Domaine Chandon.

Everywhere you look there's something that's just perfect for someone in your life — including yourself. Make up a special Christmas basket with gourmet jams, jellies, coffees, herbs and a bottle of Chateau Corn du Pop. It's a bottled popcorn for the true connoisseur and is a "better idea than wine in a bag."

You can decorate your walls or someone else's with great prints and posters (also frames), or fulfill your New Year's resolutions with dozens of great devices to organize your closet, your desk, your walls, garage or your life.

Take home some super gift boxes in red, green or white, or have your purchases wrapped in one. Essentials is a store with versatility, and changing goodies. See for yourself from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

ESSENTIALS at The Crossroads offers fun shopping for creative gift giving, including funwear in 14 different sweatshirt designs.

Merlin's has Christmas toy magic Merlin's Toys, on the lower level of the Lobos Barn at The Barnyard in Carmel, is a classic children's toy store in the Old World tradition. Marilyn McCurry found a winning combination when she opened Merlin's Toys four years ago to complement her other store, The Unicorn, located upstairs in the Sierra Barn. The Unicorn is a small wonderland filled with enchanting gifts and toys for all ages.

But stepping inside Merlin's Toys is like stepping into another world. A gorgeous Victorian tree is surrounded by beautiful lifelike porcelain dolls from around the world, many in their native costumes. They are kept close company by a menagerie of delightful stuffed animals created by Charlene Kinser and Oxford Properties. Cuddly, stately, proud and coy — all of them will make your heart happy.

Marilyn has quite a wonderful collection of storybook and baby dolls from Effanbee; sweet cuddly baby dolls by Carolle; and toys for children of all ages from Lego and Playmobil. Great gift ideas for smaller children include hard foam rubber picture puzzles by Lauri, and those frequently difficult-to-find hard wooden block sets that last for years.

Merlin's Toys also features an entire series of adorable collectibles known as Country Cousins. They are created in the Midwest by Ellen Williams, and the entire set of figurines and music boxes are made to resemble the faces and personalities of the children in her family.

Christmas decorations include House of Hatton handmade decorations from the Philippines, and some wonderfully nostalgic glass German ornaments from Old World Christmas.

Shop at either Merlin's Toys or The Unicorn at The Barnyard in Carmel seven days a week. They're two very delightful places to shop!

THE MAGIC of Merlin is evident at Merlin's Toy and Gift store located in The Barnyard. You'll love wandering into the tiny shop and getting acquainted with their fabulous doll collection. The Christmas tree is a sight to behold in soft rainbows of color. Don't miss the opportunity of shopping here for those unique gifts.

SOPHISTICATED women's apparel is a must for your shopping pleasure at the Glass Butterfly in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, across from Great Western Savings.

These beautiful jackets are just one example of their lovely coordinates that will take you everywhere during the holidays in the finest of style.

Glass Butterfly is for all ages

For 13 years Barbara Graham has owned and managed the Glass Butterfly at the Rancho Carmel Center at the entrance to The Barnyard. And for 13 years Barbara's customers — who come from all over the globe — have come to depend on the Glass Butterfly for that country suburban look that is seasoned with a dash of elegance and spice.

"They're all timeless styles," said Barbara, who knows exactly what her customers are looking for. "They all have an understated ease of elegance and appeal to an attitude rather than an age. We're really a very special specialty shop."

It's exactly the kind of specialty store where a young woman and her mother might each find something that would fit beautifully into each of their lifestyles and fashion preferences.

The Glass Butterfly features misses sizes 6 to 16 in dresses, coats, sweaters, separates and suits.

Barbara carries an excellent selection of reasonably priced and finely tailored wool gabardine slacks, as well as wool flannels and blends in patterns and solids. They team up nicely with sweaters that can go by day or night, including some very special beaded sweaters, perfect for holiday party going.

The Glass Butterfly also does a big business with knits, which are perfectly suited to the climate here on the peninsula. It carries Vivanti knitwear in sweaters, skirts and slacks.

"We also carry some wonderful things which are ours and ours alone," Barbara said. "Like our little custom-designed, hand-embroidered quilted jackets — the sort of things that make wonderful gifts."

There's also an excellent selection of accessories, including scarves, leather clutches, and ultrasuede belts for extra-special stocking stuffers.

For your shopping pleasure, the Glass Butterfly offers soft carpeting, gracious service, soothing music, comfortable chairs and more than enough curbside parking to keep you frazzle-free during winter shopping weather. Shop at the Glass Butterfly from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. It's as pleasant as it sounds.

Fifi's is the place for pastries

If you have a passion for sweets, there are two places you need to add to your list of pastry shops you can get to in a hurry:

Fifi's French Pastry at the Forest Hill Shopping Center in Pacific Grove, and Fifi's Bakery at Carmel Square, San Carlos Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

Both places are designed to satisfy even your most insatiable craving for delectable pastries and sweets, and in the true French tradition.

Four and one-half years ago, Philippe and Michele Tardivet left their home in the French Alps where Philippe was a pastry chef at a storybook ski village near Chamonix. They fell in love with the Monterey Peninsula and opened Fifi's French Pastry in Pacific Grove 15 months ago, about the same time their daughter, Thalia, was born. Fifi's Bakery in Carmel opened five months ago, and as you may have guessed, Philippe and Michele have been fairly busy since.

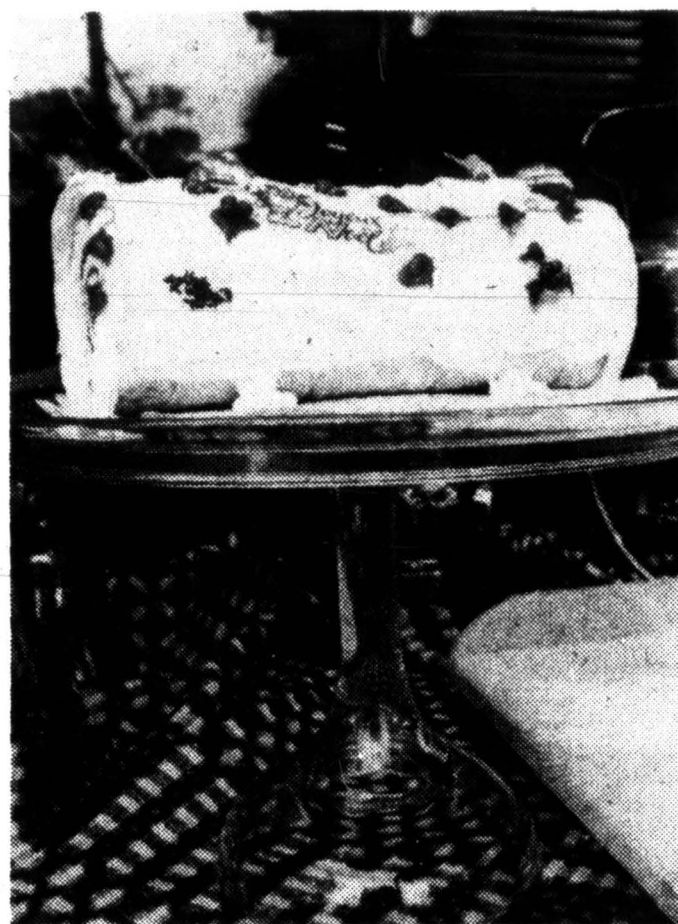

"We make everything ourselves," said Michele, who speaks with a melodic French accent. "And we use only the freshest ingredients."

The Tardivets make classic Napoleons — which are harder to find than you might think — chocolate eclairs, fresh fruit tarts, rum-baba (a delicate sponge cake soaked in rum), and chocolate truffles made with Grand Marnier, Kahlua or Amaretto. Naturally, you'll find fresh croissants, plain or with chocolate or almonds. And you can also pick up bran or blueberry muffins, and even some Danish pastries.

Some very special holiday yummies include a mouth-watering selection of classic French buches de noel, otherwise known as yule logs in America. They have trays and trays of beautiful little petit fours, and something that Michele calls croquembouche which are little puff pastries filled with custard; they are made in the shape of a tree, trimmed with caramel and are indescribably delicious. Fifi's also makes custards of plum and blueberry — and, oh heavens, butter cream meringue.

Their selection of cakes includes Black Forest, classic cheesecake and special orders for weddings, birthdays and all your special holiday parties.

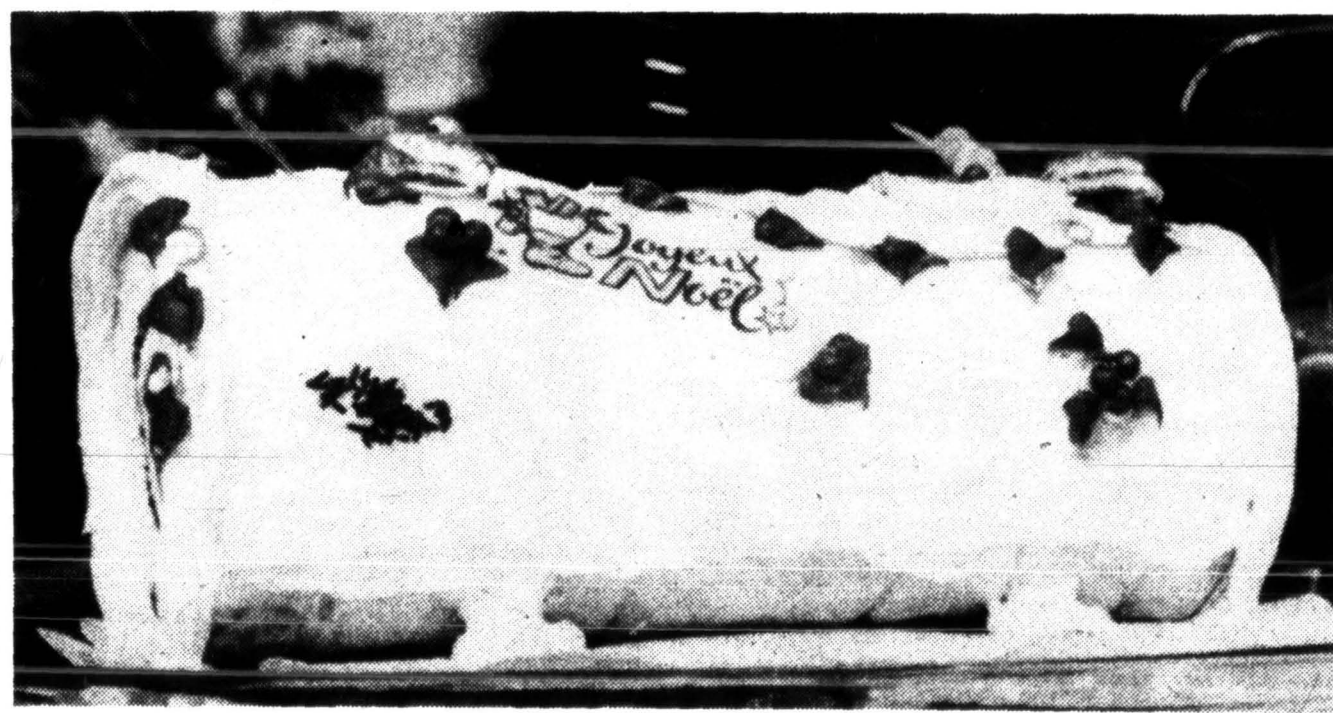

Remember, pastry lovers, there are two locations. Fifi's French Pastry at the Forest Hills Shopping Center is open from 8 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and Fifi's Bakery at Carmel Square on San Carlos is open from 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Be sure to stock up by Saturday, because they're closed on Sundays. Vive la France!

A DELIGHTFUL pastry experience for the whole family to enjoy awaits you with delicious aromas in Fifi's French Pastry in Carmel. You'll find freshly baked sweets and breads to enhance that holiday feast. Their yule logs are a great gift idea as well as a special treat to serve your family and friends.

Yule Logs Magnifique

They're so delicious that it's hard to resist a yule log baked in Fifi's traditional French manner. Choose Buttercream with Coffee, Chocolate or Grand Marnier; rich Black Forest; or Chestnut yule logs in sizes to feast 5, 10, or 15 people.

Top value fashions at Dick Bruhn

There is simply no better place to find top quality, famous maker names in men's clothing and fashions than the Dick Bruhn store on Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street in Carmel.

During the holiday season and all through the year, you can count on the labels you'll find here to take you anyplace you go. Some mainstays at Dick Bruhn include Halston, with the extremely popular Halsuede jackets in a host of Ultrasuede colors which can be casual or formal. They're appropriate during any season, and can make you look like a million dollars even if you're going to the post office.

Lanvin camel hair jackets are available in camel and heather tones, Rene Jourdane slacks come in 100 percent worsted wool, and they both team up nicely with classic Henry Grethel dress shirts.

You can always find those fabulous flat knit, 100 percent virgin wool sweaters by St. Croix, many trimmed in Ultrasuede or lisse.

Bruhn's carries Pendleton wool shirts as well as Lochlana soft wool and cotton blends by Hathaway. Leather jackets by Sawyer Shearling of Napa Valley provide a rugged look, and dress leathers are by Remy in real soft lambskin and Cortefiel d'Espana.

And no matter what the season, be sure to remember some other dependables at the Dick Bruhn store — free gift wrap, free tailoring and that wonderful "Green Frog" return policy, which says: "If it isn't right for you, bring it back." There's really no reason to buy men's clothing and fashion wear anyplace else.

Normal shopping hours are 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday and 10:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. on Sunday. Before the holidays Dick Bruhn's will be open until 9 p.m. on the following dates: Dec. 13-15, and Dec. 17-21. On Christmas Eve, it will be open until 5 p.m.

THE WIDE selection of gift-worthy shirts from Dick Bruhn's includes 100 percent virgin wools by Pendleton, from $42.95.

Dick Bruhn's is located on the corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street in Carmel.

WHAT FEELS better than silk at Christmas? M'Lady Bruhn features the richest colors of the season, from royal blue to pastel pink. Give your loved one a silk blouse by Joanie Char, Albert Nipon, Helen Fabri Kant or Omanti.

From St. Albans of London and you... A FREE GIFT FOR YOU! BRING THIS PINE CONE AD WITH YOU AND RECEIVE A FREE GIFT FROM ST. ALBANS TO YOU.

St. Albans
OF LONDON

OCEAN AVENUE, BETWEEN MISSION & SAN CARLOS, CARMEL, CALIFORNIA 93921 (408) 624-2297

TREAT YOURSELF to a fragrant stroll through St. Albans on Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets. You'll love Carbaline, Italy's most discriminating bath products. Their bubble bath, soap and body moisturizers were imported exclusively for St. Albans of London.

St. Albans: sweet smell of success

If you should suddenly catch the fresh beautiful scent of fine English toilet waters, perfumes and scented bath crystals, then you're probably standing in front of St. Albans a year and a half ago and since then it's become known as "Carmel's Original Apothecary."

"Locals in the community, as well as visitors, can count on finding the highest quality toiletries and cosmetics from all over the world," Dan said. He travels to Europe four times each year and its constantly looking for new products.

He has Carmel exclusives on many of the labels in the store, such as Penhaligon's of Wellington Street in London. Established in 1870, the company makes a "full range of traditional products for ladies and gentlemen." That includes a fine toilet waters, after-shave balms, talcums, scented handkerchiefs, hair care products and dressing table accessories of old English silver.

There's a full selection of toiletries from The House of Floris, established in London in 1730 in the fashionable quarter of St. James. The seventh generation of the Floris family still carries on the business from the same, although somewhat expanded, location at No. 89 Jermyn Street.

St. Albans also has an exclusive on the Kiehl skin care product line. This company, established in 1851, is the second oldest pharmaceutical house in the U.S. Its products are all pharmaceutically — rather than cosmetically — based for the ultimate in quality.

And from elegant salons in New York, Paris, Tel Aviv and South America, comes the il-makiage line of luxurious cosmetics, exclusive to Carmel at St. Albans. "It's a cosmetic line with a tremendous range of colors for women of all skin types and fashion influences," Dan said. "Our customers are welcome to come in for a makeup application by our staff."

St. Albans also features an extensive selection from Caswell-Massey. Established in 1752 in Newport, R.I., it is the oldest chemist and perfumer in America. The company was founded by Dr. William Hunter, and one of the earliest fragrances he created was the famous Number Six Cologne which he made for George Washington, which the general popularized by giving to his friend the Marquis de Lafayette and other notables of the period. That cologne is still made according to the original formula.

For a really unique gift, let your imagination run wild and have one of the staff at St. Albans help you put together a fabulously sensual gift basket of sweet scents, accessories and cosmetics. St. Albans also has a wonderful mail order service, and will ship your gift items or basket of beauty anywhere in the country!

You really owe it to yourself to see and smell all of this sweet scented history available at St. Albans of London in Carmel. A very professional and well trained staff is happy to assist you from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. seven days a week. St. Albans is probably the greatest stocking stuffer store in all of Carmel.

Dragginwood: island of serenity

If you find your nerves frazzled and your head pounding from the stress of the holiday season, stop by Dragginwood in the Glass Gazebo at The Mall on San Carlos avenue in Carmel, just in front of Jack London's.

Dragginwood is a very relaxing and soothing place to be. Beautiful prisms, colored beads and gemstones and crystal mobiles sparkle in the light to take your mind off the hassles of hurried schedules. Soft, soothing background music helps to create a serene environment to soothe your ruffled feathers.

Owners June Blacksin and Julie Williams, and their Carmel manager Barbara Davis, will be happy to show you around their lovely store. It carries a huge selection of crystal beads from Austria, all hand-polished and faceted in dozens of colors. They make wonderful gifts alone, or can be strung into lovely necklaces that you can make for a special friend.

You can find a bit of magic with some of Dragginwood's more exotic and fun gift items. Take a look at the wonderful crystal balls from Italy. They come in several sizes, are beautifully polished with lots of clarity and sit on their own stands. Make someone smile with the Original Magic Wand — a really unusual gift, which comes complete with "very clear instructions." It's guaranteed to be more fun than a pet rock.

Dragginwood is a delightful place to be. The friendly people and the sparkling, beautiful merchandise will clear your head and give you a new perspective on the Christmas season. Stop by from 10:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. seven days a week.

TUCKED among the magic crystals of the Dragginwood shop on San Carlos Street in Carmel discover the wonderful handcrafted sculpture of Steve and Jacque Tunturi. Each piece was created as an expression of their love for the world of fantasy.

Pappagallo is a fun place to shop

The Shop for Pappagallo is a fun, colorful place to shop, and this Christmas season will be even more fun and even more colorful.

Pappagallo has brought out some really great holiday gift items from its accessory line, such as lap desks in blue or pink calico prints, which open up for pencils, pens and stationery.

It also carries lap trays, which are similar, with a velcro-attached tray on a stuffed cushion designed for comfortable dining and very relaxed snacks. There's a great assortment of Pappagallo long and short nightgowns in flannel prints and stripes, great rain boots in several heights, and colorful mix-and-match slickers in reversible styles to go with the boots.

"Another new line we'll be carrying which will arrive in time for the holidays is the collection of stockings, anklets and knee socks by Ralph Lauren in argyle, stripes and solids in traditional fall colors as well as bright cruise colors for springtime," said owner Annette Alcocer.

The Ginie Johansen neckwear and sashes are a year-round mainstay at Pappagallo, and for the holidays it features some silk and taffeta patterns to change the mood of a simple dress or blouse to match a festive occasion. Pappagallo is also known for its wonderful selection of sweaters, and this year's Christmas sweater features a reindeer motif in a long-sleeved cardigan style or a vest.

The Shop for Pappagallo is located below the Thunderbird Bookstore at The Barnyard, with a second store at the Rancho Del Mar Shopping Center in Aptos.

Pappagallo offers free, very colorful gift wrap from which to choose and attentive service at no extra charge. Make shopping fun again from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

JUDI WALKER, an employee of Pappagallo, models an outfit by Geiger of Austria. The skirt is a wool challis. The boiled wool sweater jacket comes in an assortment of styles and colors to mix and match with pants or a skirt of your choice. You'll also want to pick out new shoes and accessories to complete your ensemble — all at Pappagallo, located in The Barnyard.

A NEW SHOP with dolls, dolls and dolls everywhere. Adrienne and Harvey Lisser have just opened their doors in the Court of the Golden Eagle on Lincoln Avenue to offer you an incredible doll collection — antique bisque dolls, cabbage patch dolls and the ever-popular Madame Alexander dolls. This is truly the place where a young girl's dreams can come true.

Carmel Doll Shop is nostalgia trip

The brand new Carmel Doll Shop and Hospital features antique dolls and collectibles from all over the world. "I've collected dolls all of my life," said Adrienne Zisser. "I even have some of my grandmother's dolls."

Adrienne and Harvey Zisser opened for business the day after Thanksgiving at the rear of the Court of the Golden Eagle on Lincoln Street near Ocean Avenue in Carmel.

The store itself has lots of windows and looks very much like a child's playroom, with lots of shelves for beautiful dolls to sit. "We wanted it to be as homey as possible for everyone who might wish to come in and we set everything up as a playroom with that in mind," Mrs. Zisser said.

It really is a unique business, because apart from a few of the Cabbage Patch dolls, everything in the store has been previously loved — in someone's home or in a collection, and everything in the store also has been meticulously cared for.

"Aside from Cabbage Patch dolls, the most sought-after collectibles on the market are the Madame Alexander dolls," she added. "We have a full selection of international miniatures by Madame Alexander, as well as the Little Women series, fairy tale characters, the presidents' wives and some wonderful baby dolls. We'll also be giving away one of the Madame Alexander dolls in our upcoming drawing," Mrs. Zisser said.

"The French and German bisque dolls, which are china rather than glaze, are the highest priced dolls on the market, sometimes fetching thousands of dollars.

We also have one of the very few 33-inch Princess Elizabeth Jumeau dolls, which was made in France in 1938 to commemorate the visit of Princess Elizabeth (now the Queen), and Margaret Rose."

Naturally, "doll hospital" means that you can bring a treasured doll from your childhood (or from someone else's childhood) in for a new lease on life. "Customers just need to bring their dolls in, and we'll see what we can do to make a sick doll all better again," Mrs. Zisser said.

What a delightful store indeed. It's open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. seven days a week.

ARE YOU finding the evenings a bit chilly lately? Warm your feet in a pair of lined slippers from Marco Polo. They're so com-table and soft and warm that you'll never want to take them off.

Marco Polo's has everything for travel gifts

Marco Polo's, on the lower level of the Carmel Plaza, is a delightful place to shop for yourself or for anyone who has places to go, things to do and people to see. You'll find everything you need from luggage to travel irons.

Marco Polo's specializes in soft luggage, featuring names like Florentine, Hartmann, Ciao and London Fog — functional luggage that is reasonably priced and stylish. You'll also be amazed at the affordability of handsome leather luggage pieces that will accompany you on trips for years to come.

In the back of the store is the "Walking Department," headquarters for tired feet. Marco Polo's has men's and women's comfortable walking shoes so you won't have to pay the price of a long day's shopping tour of Carmel. Names like Rockport, Timberland, Bernardo, After Hours, Clacks, Keds and Romika are featured. It also carries rainwear and the largest selection of Timberland boat shoes and hand-sewn penny loafers.

Other wonderful all leather gift items include handbags by Lady Bosca and Anne Klein. Men will find a wide range of leather wallets by Bond Street, including Elkskin and other exotic leathers. Look for beautiful shoulder bags for women by Etienne Aigner, Anne Klein and Jean Fogel.

For the office, you'll find briefcases, attaches, portfolios and manbags of the finest leather. Many pieces are in designer styles, with an excellent selection made for business women.

A trip to Marco Polo's is an adventure in unique gifts, travel accessories, and leather specialty items. There are great gifts for a hard-to-please person on your list. Come and explore at Marco Polo's at the Carmel Plaza between 9:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, or from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Holiday Hutch for Christmas

There are thousands of ways to say "Merry Christmas" at The Holiday Hutch in Carmel. Actually, there are two stores in Carmel — one at the Mission Patio on Mission Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues where it's been for 10 years, and the second store at The Crossroads in Carmel which opened two and one-half years ago.

Both stores carry pretty much the same merchandise, and both are brimming with gorgeous — and very unusual — decorations for your home or Christmas tree.

Deck the halls with Christmas mobiles, wreaths and wall hangings or paper mache flying angels.

Set a beautiful holiday table with hand-made Christmas tablecloths and table runners; serve your guests cocktails or snacks with glassware and accessories from the collection of Cuthbertson of New England in their "original Christmas tree design."

Find a future family heirloom with a beautiful Christmas music box, a traditional German nutcracker, or an exquisite nativity set by Armani, Anri, or Hummel. There are also several nativity sets created in Dallas, Tex. by the famous set designer Peter Wolf.

The beautiful tree ornaments are displayed on 13 Christmas trees, each with a different theme. One tree features all wooden ornaments, another just dolls, or teddy bears, or bread dough ornaments. One tree is an old fashioned Victorian with all of the Charles Dickens' characters. The Holiday Hutch also carries some handmade tree skirts to put the finishing touch around your tree for years to come.

For an extra special treat, take a look at the "egg case." As tree ornaments or just as collectibles, Holiday Hutch has some remarkably beautiful decorated eggs (real eggs, as in ostrich, goose or hen) from all over the world. There are eggs from Thailand, Russia, India, South Africa, mainland China and San Francisco. Some are beaded, some are cloissone, some are trim-ed with 14K gold and some are hand-painted and lined.

See how many ways you can say "Merry Christmas" at the Holiday Hutch. The Crossroads store is open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday; from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday; and from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday.

The Holiday Hutch in downtown Carmel is open daily from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. and until 5 p.m. on Monday.

HOLIDAY HUTCH in Carmel at Mission Street and Fifth Avenue is a year-round shopping delight. You will admire their new window display and their incredible Anri wood carvings. The world famous crib figurines are an example of the work of Prof. Karl Kuott, who created during his lifetime countless small art works now possessed by museums and private collectors.

Company Store is a Christmas treasure

All of the charm and flavor of a cozy country store can be found at The Company Store at The Lodge at Pebble Beach. The front portion of the store is devoted almost entirely to gift items, and you'll find some very clever, useful and unique sorts of items here.

Picnic baskets, aprons, pot holders, logo-designed glassware and accessories and an entire selection of trays and utensils are available to put into your picnic basket.

The gourmet goodie section includes jams, jellies, candies, cookies and fresh roasted coffees. The deli section will make your mouth water, and the staff will make you a sandwich and small salad to go or will prepare a huge party or picnic tray for 200. Creme de la Creme provides all of the irresistible sweets, including chocolate truffles in assorted flavors.

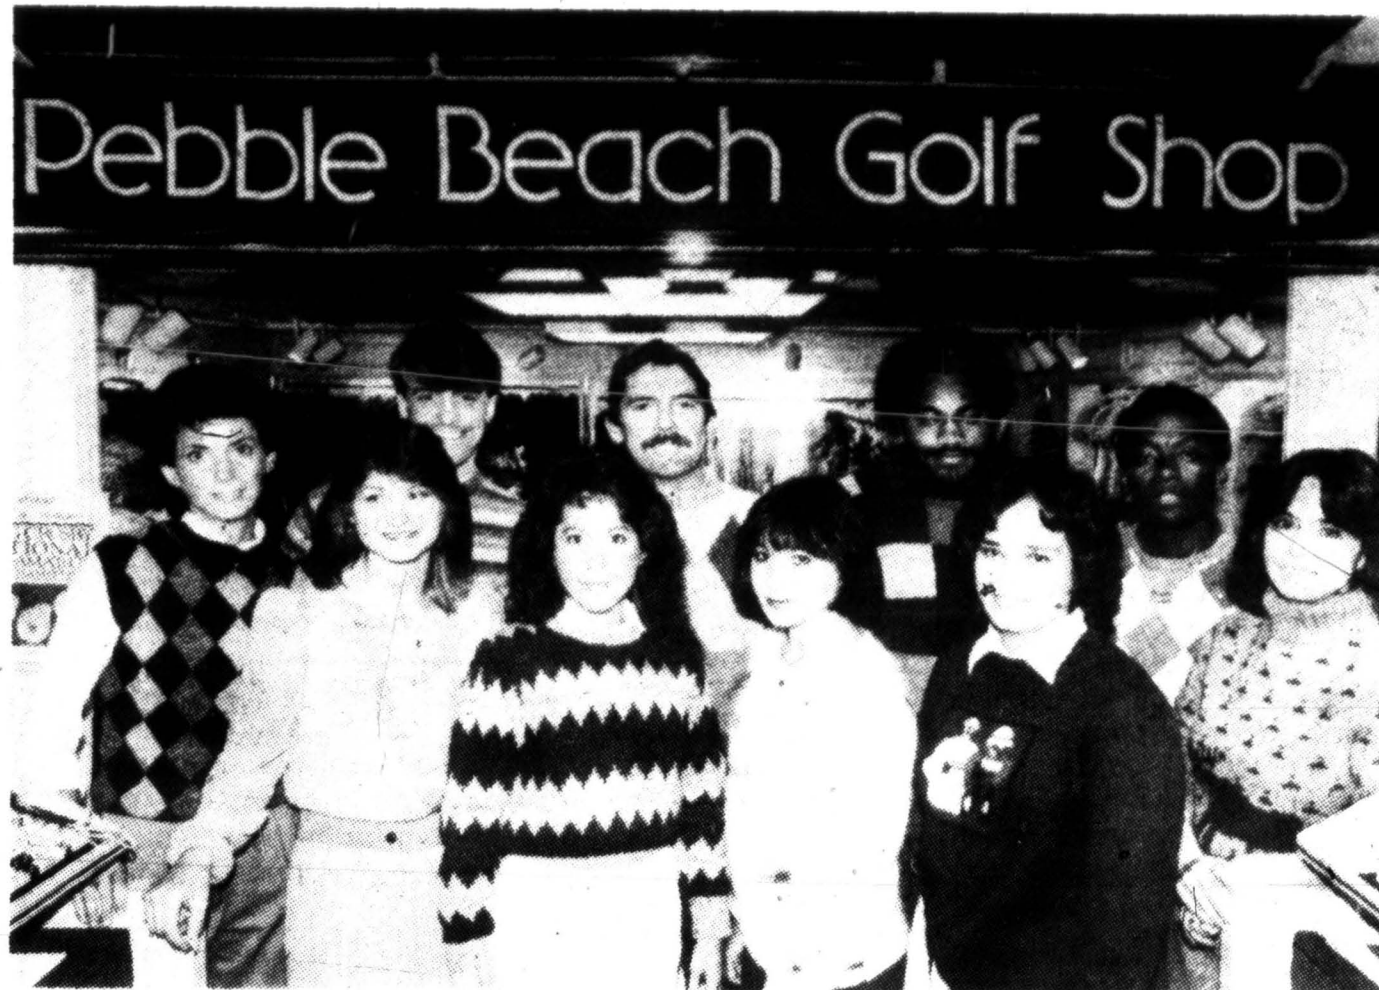

There are also some outrageously fun things like natural gourmet snacks for your dog or cat and a whole wall filled with colorful Pebble Beach sweatshirts for the entire family.

The liquor department carries a great selection of aperitifs and the "resident" wine connoisseur will put a smile on your face with the selection of wonderful domestic and imported wines and champagnes. The stock includes a large supply of the popular Pebble Beach champagne that was brought back to the store in time for the holidays.

This Christmas, The Company Store will make up some wonderful gift baskets in all sizes and varieties for some of your most special gifts.

The Company Store also has a convenient grocery section with cold beer, soft drinks, an exceptional produce department and a full selection of sundry items. You'll be pleasantly surprised to find so many wonderful things under one roof. Shop there from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., seven days a week.

WARM WINTER sweaters adorn the staff at The Pebble Beach Golf Shop. Stop by for a friendly smile and warm courteous service from Lee Mitchell, Steve Horine, James Lester, David Frazier, Patrick Jordan, Denise Work, Martha Frailey, assistant manager Janis Blagen, Lupe Hauswirth and Judith Gonsalves.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS from Greg Galuppo, Michele Morgan, manager Jim Clayton, Geri Casey, Stacey Ritonia and Jim Wallace of the Company Store located across from the Pebble Beach Lodge. While looking for party treats or a fine wine you'll want to do your shopping at the Company Store.

Lodge Golf Shop for quality gifts

If you have a golfer in your life — or if you're the golfer in your life — you'll be able to find some of the best golf gifts anywhere at the Golf Shop at The Lodge at Pebble Beach. But you really don't have to know a thing about golf to appreciate the great merchandise at The Golf Shop.

It carries a full selection of fashion clothing for women, including some gorgeous casual separates, walking shorts, knickers and slacks in wools, blends, and corduroys. The Golf Shop offers traditional hooded ladies' coats from England, classic tailored blouses, and warm, colorful flannel shirts. There's lots of outerwear for men, women and children, including colorful slickers and reversible jackets.

If you're interested in sweaters — and who on the peninsula isn't? — then you need to check out the selection at The Golf Shop. Ladies' sweaters cover an entire wall and you'll find plenty of motif sweaters in pullover and vested styles, some classic beautiful cashmeres, and shetland wools. Look for some great argyle sweaters for men in super fashion colors, and all kinds of logoed Ballantyne cashmere sweaters and Pringle of Scotland sweater jackets.

For logoed golfwear and accessories, you won't find a better place. The unmistakable Pebble Beach logo with the Cypress tree can be found on all kinds of things — visors, hats, alarm clocks, glassware, brandy decanters, towels and golf balls. The Golf Shop even has an exclusive on the Talbott tie with the logo design.

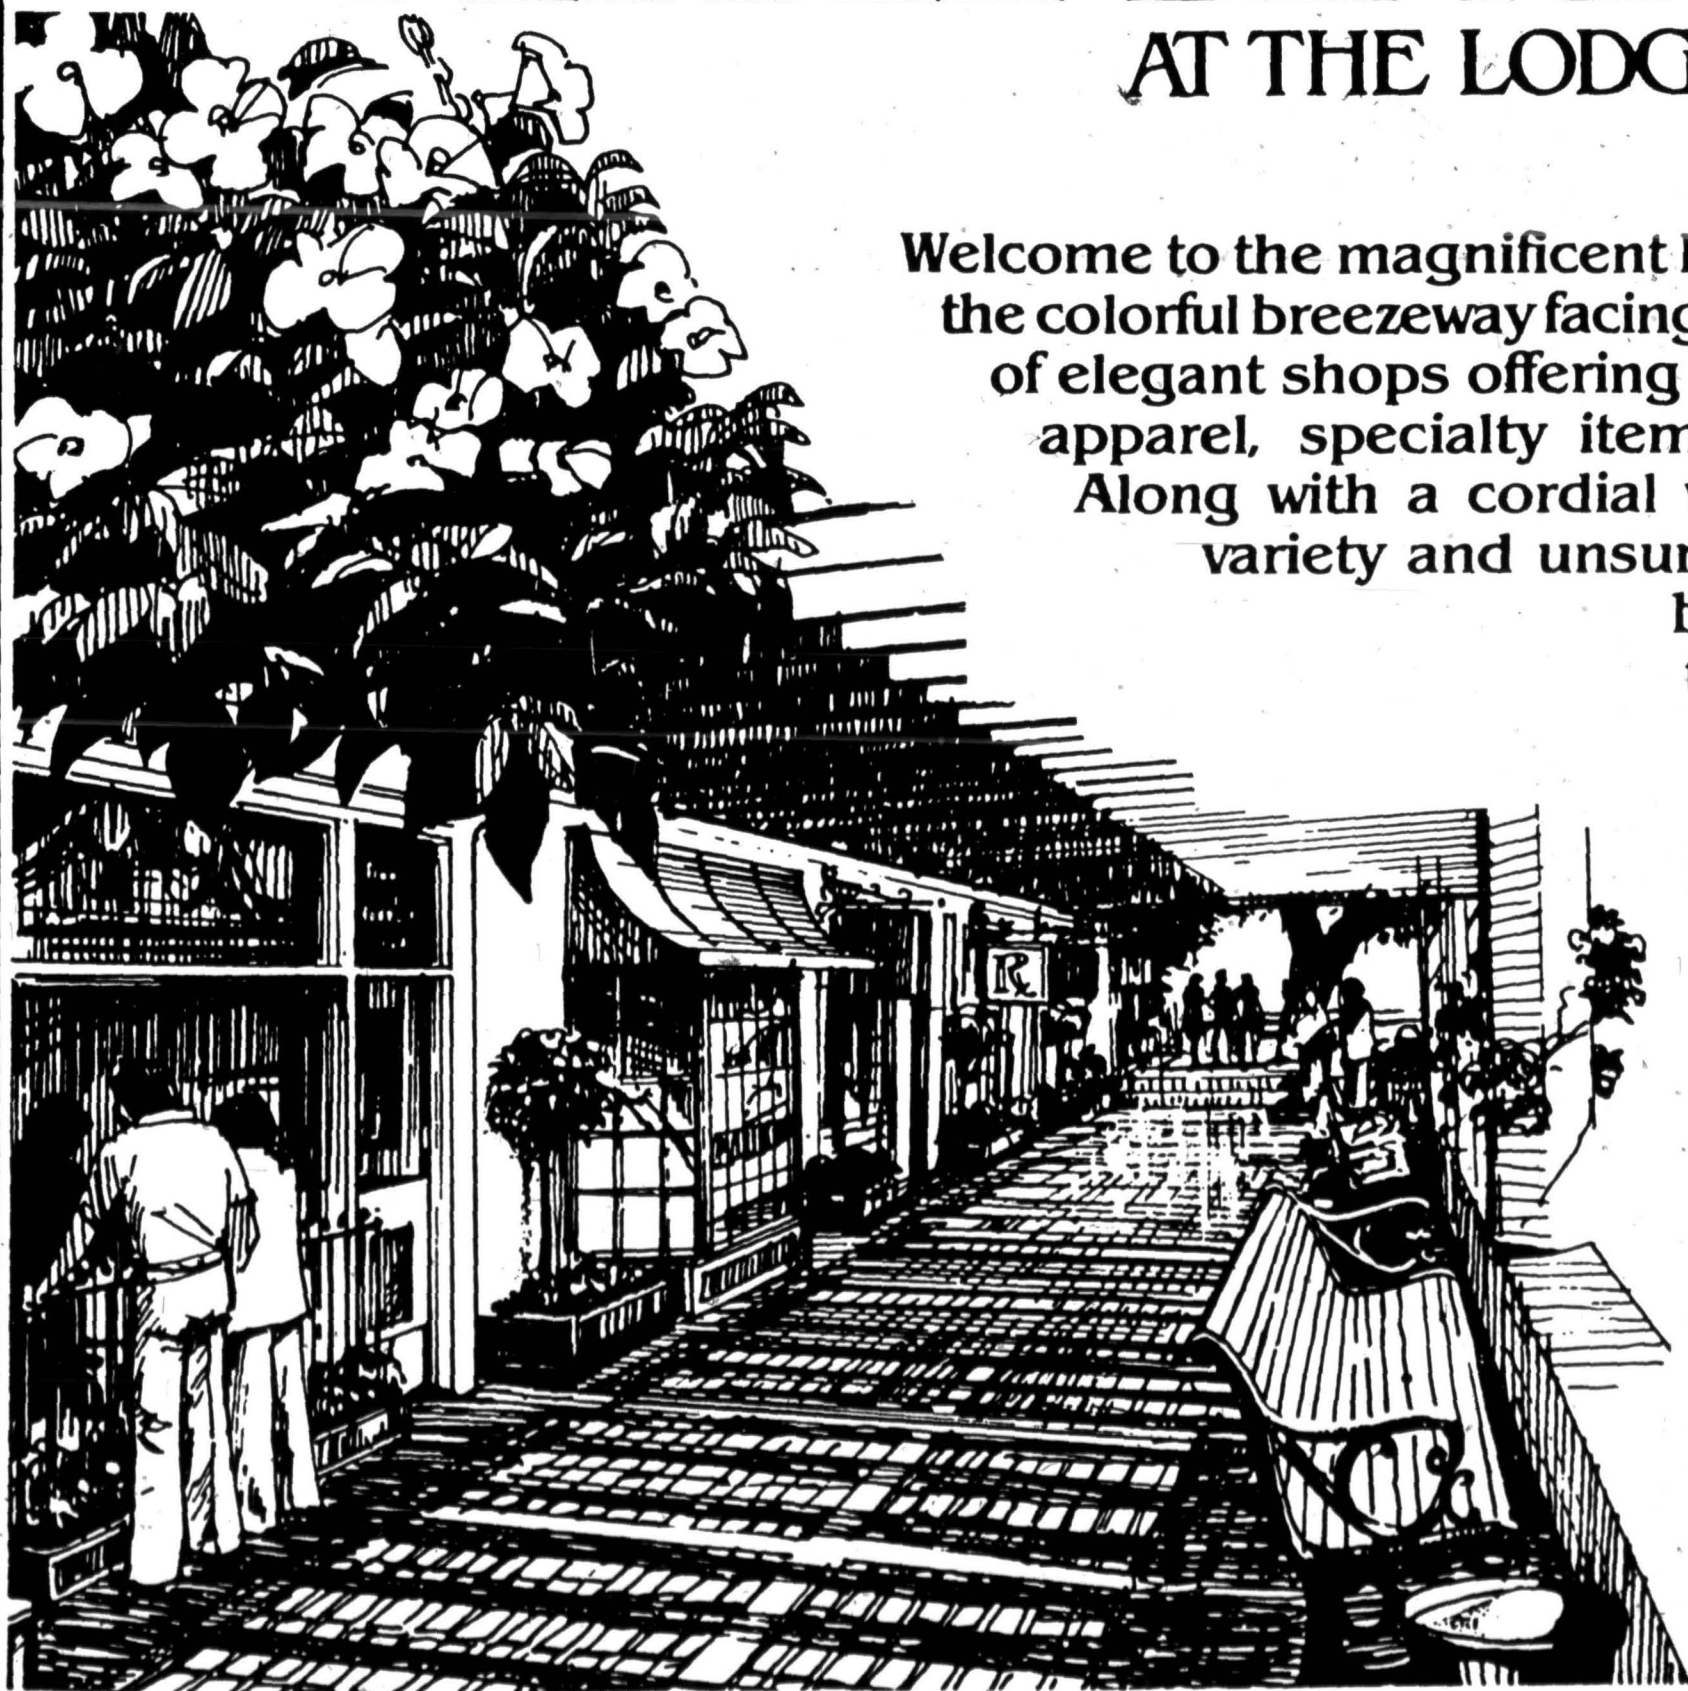

The Golf Shop carries men's and women's golf clubs and lots of golf accessories, including a good assortment of golf books.

The Golf Shop at The Lodge at Pebble Beach is a great place to shop whether you're "into" golf or not. Drop in between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., seven days a week.

SIGNATURES is a fantasy land for Christmas giving with gifts that will make her dream come true. San Carlos and Seventh, Carmel.

Surf 'n' Sand filled with holiday surprises

Surf 'n' Sand, at the corner of Sixth and Junipero in Carmel, is filled with all sorts of great surprises to help make your holiday season a little jollier.

There's simply no reason to wait in line after line this December for all the little necessities, conveniences and luxuries of life — all of which seem to multiply rapidly during the holidays.

Carmel's "greatest drug store in town" has a wonderful selection of gift items for all ages to choose from.

Take a look at the fabulous selection of classic books and educational toys and games for children — the kinds of items that owner Sandy Wise keeps in stock during the entire year, as well.

Sandy has brought in some wonderful muffin pans in harvest molds and animal puzzle molds from Pennsylvania. They're made of heavy cast iron because "the heavier the pan, the lighter the muffins."

There's an extensive selection of domestic and imported wines, featuring many local varietals such as Durney, Jekyl, Chateau Julien and others.

Some great stocking stuffers include miniature liquors; fragrances from Nina Ricci, Chanel, Worth and others; and motif and cartoon school supplies for children. There's also a wide selection of gourmet goodies and accessories for the cook, or cooks, at your house.

A great selection of cosmetics — Christian Dior, Elizabeth Arden and the full line of Lancome — will help you get gorgeous for the holidays and all through the new year.

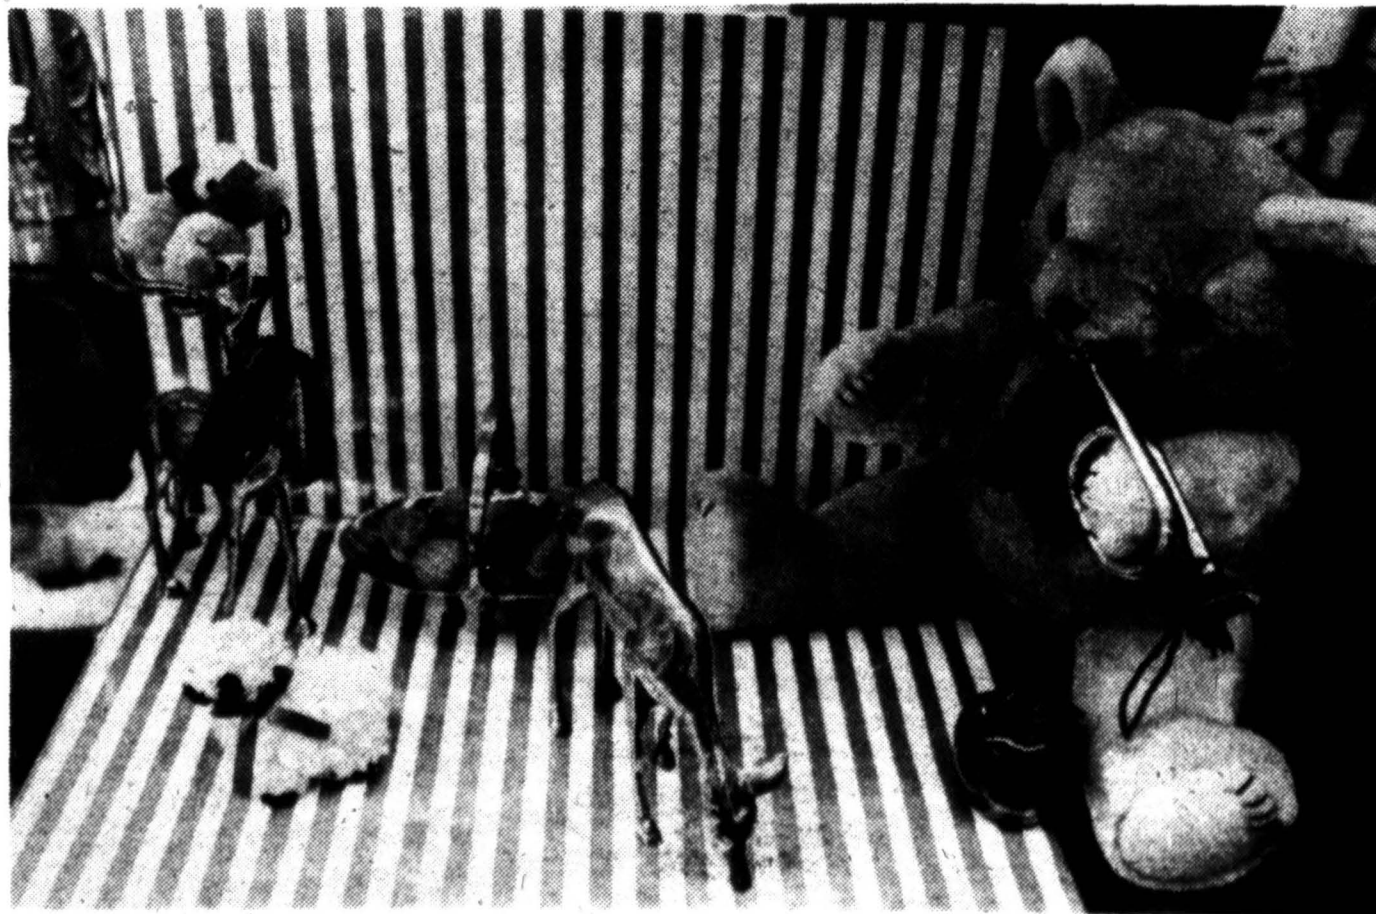

When there never seems to be enough hours in a day, and finally when there simply aren't enough days, give Sandy or one of the staff a call. They'll be glad to do some shopping for you, by putting together a gift basket of some of the wonderful things they carry in the store.

Other necessities you can find at Surf 'n' Sand include some great gift wrap to make all of your packages and stocking stuffers look beautiful, a wide variety of boxed Christmas cards in addition to the individual greeting cards, and some festive placemats, napkins and table accessories for holiday parties and dinners. It even carries Christmas aprons for the hostess, as well as all of the "little elves."

Other holiday conveniences include lots of parking right in front of the store, easy access to avoid heavy traffic congestion, and hours that will make you smile — 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day of the year.

"We really are open 366 days a year," Sandy said. "And that includes Christmas Day when you find you've forgotten film or batteries for your camera, a last minute gift to take to a friend's home, or anything else in the store that we carry."

Surf 'n' Sand will keep the smile on your face this holiday season!

AN ASSORTMENT of Christmas gifts and decorations await your inspection at the Surf 'n' Sand drug store, Sixth and Junipero in Carmel. Buy your wrapping paper and ribbon early or pick up a box of cards and tackle your mailing list early this year.

Marielle offers total beauty

It's the season for special occasions and festive parties, and naturally everyone wants to look good for all of those good times. But the professionals at Marielle at The Barnyard in Carmel want to show you how you can look your unique best all through the year and not just for the holidays.

So why not treat yourself or someone very special this year to a gift of beauty from Marielle? A salon de beaute by definition, Marielle offers some of the most wonderful personal services to help you feel, and look, like a million dollars.

And you can make a whole day (or a half day) out of it with one of their super special packages designed to make you feel completely pampered. There's even a package for men!

Hide away for a full day and begin with a wonderful deep cleansing facial, followed by a relaxing body massage, a French pedicure and a manicure. Snack on fresh fruit, yogurt, and herb tea and then have a shampoo and a hair styling. And for the finishing touch, you'll receive a makeup consultation and application. Five hours of bliss!

Beauty care classes are also available for individuals interested in skin care, makeup, hair and color consulting. Naturally, gift certificates are available for any of these services, including the packages.

Marielle also offers nail sculpturing, hair cutting and styling, eyebrow or body waxing, cellulite treatment and therapeutic body massage. And if you're looking a little pale, it even has a Silver Solarium sun tanning booth.

The staff at Marielle is dedicated to bringing out the individual beauty in everyone they work with, and they're anxious to show you how to achieve and maintain that perfect look that is right for you. Call them for a truly beautiful gift at 625-5588.

SCOTCH HOUSE, the store for genuine Scottish sweaters, features a classic favorite for holiday giving. This V-neck in luxurious cashmere is available in several colors and is made of the finest quality virgin cashmere, guaranteeing longer sweater life and resistance to pilling. Get The Right Stuff for Christmas

If you're searching for the kind of good looking outerwear that can be worn to work, to ski country, or to Point Lobos on a crisp day, then you'll find just the right thing at The Right Stuff in Pacific Grove.

Susan Ransley and Bob Swanson opened The Right Stuff last June and it's unlike any outdoor clothing store you've ever seen. For openers, The Right Stuff occupies a beautiful Victorian house on 17th and Laurel streets (one block above Lighthouse Avenue). Both Susan and Bob are outdoor enthusiasts and you'll always find one or both of them there to serve you or answer any of your questions.

"The whole idea of our store is that we carry top quality clothes for the outdoors that look great and are also designed to keep you warm," Ms. Ransley said. The store carries classic names in outerwear like Patagonia, North Face and Sierra Designs — the kind of outerwear designed with function and style in mind.

They can be worn anywhere — not necessarily out in the wilderness. And there's also dozens of all-wool sweaters for men and women — rag wool, shetland wools and cotton/linen blends — most in pullover styles that look sharp while they keep you warm.

There are some wonderful gift items at The Right Stuff that may never have to see a mountain trail to be appreciated. There's a huge selection of colorful (plum, teal blue, fuschia, red), Cricket day packs by Caribou which can be used for camera equipment, school books or for picnics at the Crosby. For the office they have some wonderful canvas shoulder bags and briefcases in various Yuppie-approved colors.

Try on a pair of Acorn slipper socks that are so durable they are worn by the astronauts, who definitely have "the right stuff." Slipper socks are 100 percent wool on a layer of foam with real leather soles. And they are, as it says on the label, "made with pride in Maine." The Right Stuff also carries some wonderful hand-knit woolen scarves, also made with pride in Maine.

The Right Stuff features a line of sweat pants and tops by Royal Robbins in 100 percent cotton. It's a lighter weight, yet very functional line, which is stylish and upbeat with pockets and similar detailing. Bicycle gear is by Bellweather, and includes jerseys, shorts, tights and packs.

"We're also the ocean kayaking center for the Monterey Bay," Mr. Ransley said. "We offer lessons, local day trips and winter and spring trips to Baja. We sell kayaks as well as all the clothing, accessories and even books that you'll need."

The Right Stuff has definitely got the right stuff for you or someone on your Christmas list. Stop by from 10 a.m. through 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Sorry, it's closed on Sunday and Monday.

lining. The Right Stuff carries a full line of Gore-tex and coated nylon rainwear.

Pamper yourself at Sim and Friends

All of your beauty needs can be wrapped up in one great place this holiday season with a visit to Sim and Friends on the upper level at the Carmel Plaza.

Salon owners Sim and Linda Simpson and their staff of six talented stylists are right on top of the latest trends in cutting, coloring, perming and contemporary styling.

Staying on top of things has earned Sim Simpson 78 national and international awards during his 23 years in the business. Those 23 years have included, among other things, several textbooks on hair cutting and a position as corporate director of education at Redken Laboratories.

Before he moved to Carmel, Simpson spent six years as head hairstylist for ABC-TV and Thomas Harris Productions, where he styled hair for the stars of "Soap," "It's a Living," and numerous specials and commercials. So it's not surprising that the entire staff reflects that same enthusiasm for excellence in the business.

"Gift certificates are available for all of our services," Linda said. "And they're packaged so beautifully in gold foil and bright red tassels that they're pretty enough to put under the Christmas tree."

Something new at Sim and Friends will be the brand new makeup bar, which they hope to have ready in time for all of your festive Christmas parties and very special nights out on the town.

Treat yourself, or someone you love, to a great lift when the sky is gray and your tan has long since faded with the summer sun. "We feature the Wolff Tanning System, which is one of the safest tanning lounges on the market. You can come in for individual sessions, or save on a series of visits. It's a great way to look even better in a sexy holiday dress," Mrs. Simpson said.

Besides, why should Santa be the only one with rosy cheeks? Call Sim and Friends for an appointment for any of their wonderful services from Tuesday through Saturday at 624-1570. You'll walk away smiling!

PEBBLE'S, located across from Pebble Beach Lodge on Seventeen Mile Drive, offers whimsical wear for tiny tots. You will not only want to buy at least one of every lovely clothing item you see, but will want to adopt one of these cuddly white bears.

Pebble's is for little ones

It will take you about 15 seconds to completely fall in love with Pebble's, located on the Promenade at The Lodge at Pebble Beach. Specifically designed for the little ones in your life (sizes 0 to 6X), Pebble's is easy to recognize by the large wooden rocking rabbit in the front of the store — which is also their logo.

Manager Yuriko Weathers has filled the store with wonderfully adorable goodies for babies and small children — the kinds of things that will simply melt your heart. If Christmas is meant for children, then this is the best place in the world to be.

Stuffed, cuddly animals are all over the store — bunnies, kittens, mice, teddy bears, and even little drummer bear. There's a whole collection of House of Hatten calico print animals, crayon aprons filled with crayons, story books, Monterey Peninsula coloring books, and plastic place mats with its own crayon pouch to use at home or when dining out.

Naturally, there are lots of T-shirts, sweat-shirts and outerwear with the Pebble's logo sewn on — the rocking rabbit. And they come in wonderful, cheerful bright colors in comfy cotton and snuggly velours.

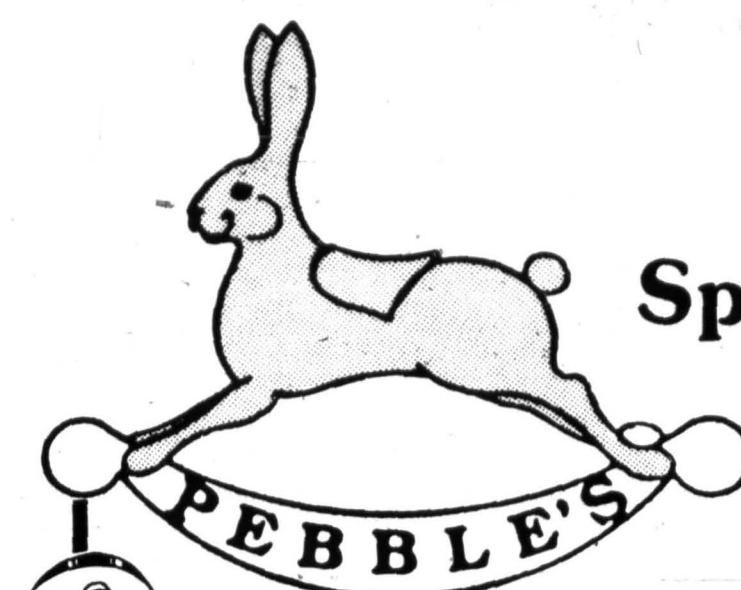

Stocking stuffers include designer plastic pants in outrageous colors, and pocket or purse size compressed towels that magically expand to wash cloth size (12 x 12 inches) or hand towel size (16 x 28 inches) when immersed in water. It's a brand new idea whose time has definitely come.

Pebble's offers free gift wrap, and they'll ship your gifts or purchases anywhere. Shop leisurely (your children are welcome here!) every day of the year from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Pebble's is the kind of store that makes you glad there's a Santa Claus!

SIM AND FRIENDS already have gotten into the spirit of things and hope you will stop by and let them give you a complete beauty treatment. The shop is located in beautiful Carmel Plaza in downtown Carmel.
